Purijk, Who Seemed to be Following President, Kept Out of Baltimore Church.

AUTO TRIP WITH MRS. GALT

Mr. Wilson and Bride-to-Be Visit His Brother and Attend Presbyterian Services.

TALK OF IMMEDIATE BRIDAL

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 10.—President Wilson and his bride-to-be, Mrs. Norman Galt, motored to Baltimore from Washington today to visit the President's brother, Joseph R. Wilson, and his family, who had not met Mrs. Galt, and while here attended services at the Franklin Street Presbyterian Church. The Secret Service men guarding the President saw something possibly suspicious in the conduct of a foreigner who seemed to be following the Wilson party, and prevented him from entering the church.

The man, who gave the name of Joseph Purijk, was not arrested. When told that he could not enter the church he went to the Cathedral, a block away, where he attended high mass.

The man protested that he had no wrongdoing in mind and merely wanted to attend the Presbyterian service. He declared in broken English that he was from Brussels, and took from his pockets several clippings from New York newspapers, one of which, he contended, showed that he was the accredited representative of the Ouevre du Vêtement des Soldates Belges, (Society for Clothing Belgian Soldiers.)

Purijg appeared at Police Headquarters later in the day and protested against any publicity concerning the unpleasant incident in which he had figured. He declared he was in this country to sell photographs of Princess Marie Jose of Belgium for the relief of Belgian sufferers. He asked if the authorities desired to search his effects or to otherwise convince themselves that he was above suspicion, and was told that it was not necessary. It is said that Purijk has been in this country three months, and that he spent the last three days in Washington.

Watched by Curious Crowds.

Several hundred Baltimoreans, who had learned of the visit of Mr. Wilson and Mrs. Galt, crowded about the church and the apartment house in which Joseph Wilson lives to catch a glimpse of the couple. Because it was Sunday, applause, such as greeted the President and his bride-to-be on Friday and Saturday in New York and Philadelphia, was missing, but the people voiced their approval of the President's choice in audible comments.

Mrs. Galt wore a blue taffeta gown, a black velvet hat, trimmed with fur, champagne colored gloves and a short face veil, and smiled happily at the crowd. The President, too, smiled continually. On the third finger of her left hand Mrs. Galt wore the diamond engagement ring given her by the President in New York. It had been reported that the ring was set with only a solitaire diamond, but today it was noticed that it also had several smaller diamonds in the narrow gold band.

The President and Mrs. Galt, it seems, decided only last night, after their return from Philadelphia, to make the trip today. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wilson and their daughter, Miss Alice, plan to go to Tennessee later this month and they wanted to meet Mrs. Galt before leaving.

Mr. Wilson and Mrs. Galt were accompanied on the ride from Washington by the Misses Lucy and Mary Smith of New Orleans, cousins of the President, who are White House guests. The ride to Baltimore was made in ninety minutes. The day was cold, and the members of the party bundled themselves up in rugs.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and their daughter were waiting at their apartment, and, after a short stay there, the entire party walked several blocks to the Franklin Street Presbyterian Church, where they occupied the pastor's pew, under the observing eyes of an eagerly interested congregation. The President and Mrs. Galt entered into the entire service, using the same hymnbook. The rector, the Rev. Harris E. Kirk, prayed that the President receive Divine guidance in the problems confronting him, and his sermon was on the subject, "The Power of Goodness." At the conclusion of the service the clergyman asked that the congregation remain until the President's party had left.

Luncheon at Joseph Wilson's apartment followed return from church. It was strictly a family affair, and was marked by the presentation to Mrs. Galt of a chop platter painted in gold and ivory tints by the President's niece.

It was after 3 o'clock when the visitors started back for Washington, driving from the apartment house through a street lined with people.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Many persons were disappointed today because President Wilson and Mrs. Galt failed to appear at either the Central Presbyterian Church, which the President usually attends, or St. Margaret Episcopal Church on Connecticut Avenue, where Mrs. Galt recently took a pew. The attendance was much larger than usual at "the President's church."

Mrs. Galt and her mother, Mrs. Bolling, joined the President's family at dinner this evening at the White House. The Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. McAdoo and Dr. Cary T. Grayson were of the party.

That the wedding will take place before Thanksgiving now seems probable,

GERMAN PAPER SEES BITTER END OF WAR

National Liberal Organ Warns the Nation Against Harboring Delusions.

AMSTERDAM, Monday, Oct. 11, (via London.)—The Berlin Korrespondenz, which is the organ of the National Liberal Party, warns the nation not to be too hopeful over the capture of Belgrade.

The newspaper asserts that the Government does not permit public discussion of Germany's objects in the present war, and that the German people are busily concerning themselves with its objectives along altogether illusory paths and are bound to be disappointed at the final results of the war, which will bring most intense bitterness to the people throughout Germany.

BRITISH SINK ANOTHER GERMAN SHIP IN BALTIC

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 11.—A Copenhagen despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company says the German steamer Lulea, of Lubeck, has been torpedoed by the British submarine E-19 near Giedeser Lightship, in the Baltic Sea, according to a dispatch which says that at 6 o'clock Saturday evening, a boat came ashore near the lighthouse with eleven men of the Lulea's crew. They reported that the vessel had been torpedoed three hours previously, but was still floating at 5 o'clock.

The crew was allowed to enter the boats before the torpedo was fired. One of the boats proceeded in the direction of a steamer coming from the west, which probably rescued the occupants.

CHICAGO DRY SUNDAY, THE FIRST IN 43 YEARS

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—Chicago is having its first "dry" Sunday in 43 years and withstands the shock manfully. The police found few violations of the closing order. Some arrests were made in places where the proprietors ignored the clock Saturday night.

A song of triumph and praise went up from the churches. Ministers praised the closing order and predicted the ultimate doom of the brass-railed bar. There was increased attendance at the churches. Parks attracted larger crowds than usual. Moving picture shows reaped a harvest. Ice cream parlors flourished. Billiard and pool halls saw new faces. Sight-seeing automobiles were busy. Some enterprising neighborhood stores opened their dors to cater to the spend-lots-of-money-on-Sunday habit.

Drug stores were visited by large numbers of persons who sought to see if the law could be evaded. The police had few reports of instances where the evasion succeeded. Many pharmacists were confronted with old prescriptions calling for liquor and other ingredients. Most of them, however, hid behind the customary injunction printed at the bottom of prescription blanks:

"Not to be refilled without approval of Dr. ———."

"I will catalogue all reports of violations and make a detailed report to Mayor Thompson," said Chief Healey. "This report will give him a basis for issuing such directions as he may see fit for handling the situation hereafter, though I don't think there will be any 'situations' to handle."

Hotels and clubs were not centres of law evasion. Only a few of the more prominent downtown bars, or those in districts to which after-theatre crowds made their way, arranged to open their places after midnight.

RULES BOSTON TAKEN BY HOSTILE FLEET

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—The war game, in which the capture of Boston was an objective, ended with a final bombardment by the hostile fleet beginning at 4:30 A. M. yesterday and continuing for several hours. The umpire decided that, although the fleet suffered such heavy losses that it failed to force a passage by the harbor forts, yet the forts failed to protect the city of Boston, and it might have been destroyed—or, more probably, a ransom of $500,000,000 demanded and paid.

Lieut. Col. W. G. Haan, U. S. A., commanding the seven harbor forts, when asked what lessons were to be drawn from the war game—aside, of course, from properly manning the forts by a minimum of 35,000 men instead of 2,250—replied:

"The forts are too near the city. New fortifications are needed as far away as Lynn."

Another decision of the umpire was that the hostile army of 50,000 penned up in Chelsea was able to break out and get back to its base at Salem; in other words, that an enemy could have taken Boston from the rear.

JUSTICE LAMAR ILL.

Supreme Court Jurist Has Excessive Blood Pressure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10. — Justice Joseph Rucker Lamar of the Supreme Court of the United States is here confined to his bed after a long illness at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. At the Justice's home tonight it was said that he had been suffering from high blood pressure, but that he was steadily improving. He returned to Washington about a week ago.

Mr. Lamar will not be able to take his place on the bench when the Supreme Court convenes tomorrow, or to pay the usual call of respect on the President. His friends think, however, that he will be up and about in a week or two.

LATIN REPUBLICS ACCEPT CARRANZA

FORMAL ACTION THIS WEEK

To be Accompanied by an Embargo on Arms to Enemies Who Refuse to Yield.

EXPLICIT PROMISES GIVEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Official advices have been received here that the Governments of Argentina, Brazil and Chile are in accord with the decision of the United States to grant recognition to the party led by General Carranza as the de facto Government in Mexico.

It became known today that some of the South American Governments long before yesterday's conference had authorized their diplomatic representatives to favor the recognition of General Carranza in the Pan-American deliberations.

President Wilson has received from Secretary Lansing a report of the proceedings of the final conference, but several days ago he indicated to the Secretary his acquiescence in the plan proposed.

The form in which recognition is to be accorded has not been decided, but it may be done by formal notification to Eliseo Arredondo, authorized representative here of the Carranza Government. The granting of recognition is expected within a week. This will result in the immediate order of an embargo on arms against factions opposed to the Carranza Government, a step which will materially weaken the resources of the Villa element which intends to continue the fight in Mexico.

George C. Carrothers, American Consular Agent, telegraphed the State Department the substance of a long interview he had had with General Villa at Juarez, in which the latter explained, in line with utterances to the press last night, that he intended to continue fighting Carranza.

Although the documents presented to Secretary Lansing and the Pan-American conferees by Eliseo Arredondo on behalf of General Carranza, on which the decision to recognize the Carranza party was based, have not been made public, it became known that the First Chief had given explicit assurances with reference to the protection of foreigners' claims, amnesty for political offenses and the treatment of the clergy. An extract from a memorandum presented to the Pan-American conferees on behalf of General Carranza contains the following articles outlining the program of his Government:

Definite Promises of Carranza.

1. The Constitutionalist Government shall afford to foreigners residing in Mexico all the guarantees to which they are entitled according to our laws, and shall amply protect their lives, their freedom, and the enjoyment of their rights of property, allowing them indemnities for the damages which the revolution may have caused to them, in so far as such indemnities may be just, and which are to be determined by a procedure to be established later. The Government shall also assume the responsibility of legitimate financial obligations.

2. The first concern of the Constitutionalist Government shall be to reestablish peace within the province of law and order, to the end that all the inhabitants of Mexico, both native and foreign, shall equally enjoy the benefits of true justice and be interested in co-operating to the support of the Government emanating from the revolution. The commission of crimes of the common order shall be punished. In due time an amnesty shall be enacted in keeping with the necessities of the country and the situation, which in no way shall exempt those under it of the civil responsibilities they may have incurred.

3. The constitutional laws of Mexico known under the name of laws of reform, which establish the separation of the Church and the State, and which guarantee the individual right of worship in accord with his own conscience and without offending public order, shall be strictly observed: Therefore, no one shall suffer in his life, freedom and property because of his religious beliefs. Temples shall continue to be the property of the nation according to laws in force, and the Constitutionalist Government shall again cede for the purpose of worship those which may be necessary.

4. There shall be no confiscations in connection with the settlement of the agrarian question. This problem shall be solved by an equitable distribution of the lands still owned by the Government; by the recovery of those lots which may have been illegally taken from individuals or communities; by the purchase and expropriation of large tracts of land, if necessary; by all other means of acquisition permitted by the laws of the country. The Constitution of Mexico forbids privileges and, therefore, all kinds of properties regardless of who the owners may be, whether operated or not, shall in the future be subject to the proportional payment of a tax in accordance with a just and equitable valuation.

5. All property legitimately acquired from individuals or legal Governments, and which may not constitute a privilege or a monopoly, shall be respected.

6. The peace and safety of a nation depends from the clear understanding of citizenship; therefore, the Government shall take pains in developing public education; to this end it shall utilize all co-operation rendered in

Will Take Months to Clear Canal of Slides; 10,000,000 Yards of Earth in Waterway

PANAMA, Oct. 10.—A careful survey of the slide area in the Galliard cut reveals the fact that there probably are 10,000,000 cubic yards of earth in motion which must be taken out by dredging operations before a permanent channel through the cut is possible. This is the conclusion reached by the canal engineers, who concede that there is now little hope of opening the waterway, even for the temporary use of shipping, much before the first of the year.

The present rate of wet excavation is a million yards a month, and at this rate it would require not less than ten months to remove the mass which is now sliding into the canal considerably faster than the dredges can take it out. It is said that often the canal bottom bulges up to a height of fifteen feet above the surface of the water, due to the tremendous weight of the hillsides.

The area of motion is roughly calculated to be in the neighborhood of 175 acres, which constitutes the greatest slide area in the history of the canal. It extends 2,600 feet along both banks of the waterway and on an average 1,500 feet back of the centre line of the canal prism.

Major Gen. George W. Goethals, Governor of the Canal Zone, has not yet made an official announcement concerning the probability of opening a temporary channel, but it is believed shipping interests understand the nature of the situation and it is probable that most of the one hundred ships now here awaiting passage through the canal will be ordered to their destinations by other routes.

ANTHRAX IS KILLING GEORGE F. STACKPOLE

DICTATES MESSAGE TO SON

Tells Him to Live Correctly so He May Be Able to Face Death as Calmly as His Father.

George F. Stackpole, 71 years old, lawyer and Justice of the Peace of Riverhead, L. I., is in Bellevue Hospital, and is reported to be dying of anthrax, a disease not infrequent among sheep and cattle, but extremely rare among human beings. Few recoveries from the disease have been recorded.

Mr. Stackpole was taken on Saturday from his home in Riverhead to the French Hospital at 450 West Thirty-fourth Street, under the direction of his physician, Dr. H. M. Silver of 276 Madison Avenue. A germ culture was taken at the hospital and sent to the Board of Health, which reported that the disease was anthrax.

Then a consultation of physicians was held, Dr. Silver and Dr. Walter C. Cramp of New Rochelle being among those who deliberated on the case, and Mr. Stockpole was taken to Bellevue at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was not officially entered on the records as suffering from anthrax, but it was the understanding that there was no question as to the disease. Last night his wife and daughter Mary were summoned to his bedside and spent the evening in a final settlement of his affairs.

Source of Infection Unknown.

How Mr. Stackpole became infected is uncertain, as he kept no chickens, cattle, or sheep at his place in Riverhead. But physicians say that the germs are easily carried on leather, either finished or raw, and it was suggested that it might even in this case have been transmitted from a considerable distance on a rough glove.

Dr. Cramp told a TIMES reporter last night that he thought Mr. Stackpole might have contracted the disease by scratching himself, and then getting the wound infected.

The patient first noticed a small lump on his face on Friday, which soon became a red, itching spot. The disease rapidly spread over his face and has now reached the chin. Ordinarily anthrax runs a course of four days. Its extreme rarity is indicated by the fact that Dr. Cramp has known of only two cases in ten years.

As it happens, there was another case of anthrax in Bellevue last week. John Miller, a laborer, living at 10 Vandam Street, was brought to the hospital on Tuesday, suffering from the disease, and died on Thursday. Doctors are puzzled as to how he contracted the disease.

Symptoms of the Disease.

Most cases of anthrax among human beings have occurred among men who were handling the wool, hair, hides, or carcases of animals which had been affected, and it has been called woolsorters' disease. Sometimes there is a form of malignant pustule on the skin, but in many cases there are symptoms of blood poisoning without external manifestations. In the former type, known as external anthrax, the infecting agent is accidentally inoculated into a slight abrasion of the skin. A minute swelling appears, and soon develops into a vesicle containing serum.

This varies in size, but is seldom larger than a quarter. The vesicle speedily bursts and leaves an ulcerate or sloughing surface around which numerous smaller vesicles undergo similar changes. Frequently there is severe constitutional disturbance in the form of fever, delirium, perspiration and prostration.

In internal anthrax, the bacilli are believed by some to gain access to the system through the air of close rooms which is charged with them. Most of the earlier symptoms are pulmonary, though in some cases rather intestinal. While four days is the normal course of the disease, instances are known where death has occurred within twenty-four hours.

Writes Last Note to Son.

Shortly after midnight a telegram from the dying man's son at Dartmouth College was received saying he was speeding to New York. Mr. Stackpole, knowing he had only a few more hours to live, wrote a note to the boy as follows:

"My Boy.—Lead a clean, pure, and upright life, so that you may meet your end as bravely as I shall."

He also recited to his wife and daughter, Syrena, William Cullen Bryant's "Thanatopsis."

The physicians at the hospital said Mr. Stackpole had but a few hours to live. The carbuncle at the back of his neck, they said, had spread to the front of his throat and was gradually choking him to death.

Dr. Silver, Mr. Stackpole's physician, was his classmate at Dartmouth in the class of 1873.

French Cabinet Discusses Situation.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—A meeting of the Cabinet was held this afternoon, and the diplomatic and military situations were discussed. President Poincaré attended the meeting. Premier Viviani will address Parliament this week on diplomatic affairs.

HOT GEYSERS BATHE 5TH AVENUE CROWD

STONE SHOWER OVER BLOCK

Traffic Held Up for an Hour When Big Heat Service Main Bursts.

Fifth Avenue, at Fifty-third Street, resembled the geyser region of Yellowstone Park last evening, when steam escaping from an underground general service main broke through the pavement in five places and spouted from fifty to sixty feet into the air. Carried up with the steam were hundreds of lumps of mud-stone, which shot up a hundred feet and fell pattering in the Avenue. The cover of a manhole in the middle of the avenue was also blown off.

The steam, condensing in the chill air, fell as water. The geysers, breaking out shortly before 7 o'clock, spouted for nearly half an hour, and all this time the lumps of mud-stone and water fell in a continual shower.

The roadway and sidewalks of the avenue when the geysers started were crowded, and after the first hurried scattering of those who were too near for safety when the steam began to escape, a large crowd collected above and below Fifty-third Street. Many persons ran out of the Hotels Gotham and St. Regis, at Fifty-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue, to see what was happening.

The police reserves of the East Fifty-first Street Station were called out to hold the crowd back, and they had some difficulty with those north of Fifty-third Street until a sudden gust of wind swept the shower of condensing steam over the crowd. Many men in evening clothes and a number of women were wet, and the crowd hastily retreated further up the avenue.

Traffic between Fifty-second and Fifty-fourth Streets was diverted from Fifth Avenue into Madison and Sixth Avenues for nearly an hour while the steam was escaping and repairs were being made.

The pipe line in which the break occurred is operated by the New York Steam Company, which has a branch office at 105 East Sixty-third Street and a power station at the foot of East Fifty-ninth Street. The pipe from which the steam escaped is six inches in diameter and supplies steam for heat to several loft buildings in the vicinity of Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street. The officials of the company would make no statement explaining the break, but the police assumed that it was due to too great pressure in the pipe caused by the heat in the loft buildings supplied, being shut off on Sunday. The steam was cut off in the power house and workmen filled in the fissures in the pavement with dirt. Traffic was resumed in the avenue after an hour or so, no evidence of the geysers remaining besides the dirt-filled cracks and an area of wet asphalt.

ITALIANS HARASS AUSTRIANS

Impede Their Intrenching Operations by Artillery Attacks.

ROME, Oct. 10, (via Paris.)—The following official communication was issued today by the War Office:

The enemy is displaying great activity in constructing defensive works and establishing his communications. His exertions, however, are being seriously impeded by our artillery and by bold raids by small detachments of our troops.

Along the Isonzo during the day of the 9th and the following night, after intense artillery preparation and volleys of hand grenades, a strong enemy force attempted attacks against our positions on the right of Slatenik, in the Plezzo Basin, on Mrzlivrh, in the Monte Nero zone, at Dolje, in the Tolmino section, and at Plava and at Zagora, on the lower Isonzo. The enemy everywhere was repulsed with heavy losses, even leaving prisoners in our hands.

VIENNA, Oct. 10, (via London.)—Today's official communication says:

The situation on the whole Italian front is unchanged. Italian attacks on the Vielgereuth plateau with feeble forces failed. They have lost here in the last two days, 2,000 men.

SALANDRA TO THE FRONT.

Premier's Trip May Be Connected with International Plans.

ROME, Oct. 10, (via Paris), Monday, Oct. 11.—Great importance is attached in political circles here to the departure of Premier Salandra for the front tonight for a conference. His visit is believed to be connected with the international situation.

Cardinal Amette, Archbishop of Paris, has notified Pope Benedict that he expects to arrive in Rome Oct. 20 to deliver to the Pontiff a full report on the situation in France.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 10.—Six thousand men, described as Bulgarian reservists from Germany, have been held up at the Rumanian frontier on suspicion that they are Austrian and German engineers and officers.

The Rumanian Government has demanded that these men be identified.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROTTERDAM, Oct. 10, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—The Cologne Gazette says:

"We understand that no arrangement has been made with Rumania and no negotiations are going on with that object.

"The people are inclined to believe that Rumania in future, just as hitherto, will continue to refuse transport for war material for Bulgaria and Turkey."

FRENCH INCREASE CHAMPAGNE GAINS

BERLIN CLAIMS GAINS, TOO

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The French have not relaxed their efforts to push home their attack upon the Germans' Champagne positions, and have been rewarded, in today's fighting, according to the Paris official night report, by the capture of a trench southeast of Tahure. Berlin, however, reports that the Germans have reconquered a strip of territory in this region two and one-half miles long and several hundred feet wide. An intense bombardment is reported from the Argonne and other points to the east and south.

There have been artillery actions by both sides in Belgium, in the environs of Lombaertzyde, and on the whole Artois front. The struggle with trench guns has been very spirited in the region of Lihons and to the north of the Avre.

In Champagne we are still making progress to the northeast of Tahure; a brilliant assault made us masters of a new German trench to the southeast of the village.

An intense bombardment on both sides has occurred in the Argonne, in the sector of Courtes Chaussés and La Fille Morte and between the Meuse and the Moselle, to the north of Flirey.

In the Vosges at Hartmannsweller-kopf there has been a very violent struggle with bombs and torpedoes.

A German aeroplane struck down by one of our machines fell within our lines in the forest of Puvenelle, to the south of Pont-à-Mousson. The two aviators were killed.

One of our air squadrons this afternoon dropped about a hundred large shellson the stations at the rear of the Champagne front and on enemy troops who were concentrating.

Following is the French afternoon report:

There was continued activity of the artillery on both sides on the ridges to the east of Souchez and to the south at the approaches to the road to Lille.

Further attacks of the enemy against the field forts in the Givenchy woods have been repulsed.

There was lively fighting with grenades and torpedoes from trench to trench in the sector of Lihons.

Between the Oise and the Aisne artillery fighting was very active before Nouvron and Quennevières.

The night was calm over the remainder of the front.

Germans Claim Tahure Gains.

BERLIN, Oct. 10, (by Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—The War Office announcement repecting the campaign in the West reads:

On the heights to the east of Souchez the Germans took several trenches and a machine gun.

The Germans by a counterattack reconquered near Tahure in Champagne the territory on a front of four kilometers (about two and one-half miles) and 100 meters (about 325 feet) deep.

The Berlin report as received by way of London says the ground regained by the Germans near Tahure amounted to "several hundred meters" over a front of about four kilometers, instead of 100 meters, as given in the version received by wireless to Sayville.

HAVE TWO SUBMARINE BASES.

Germans Operating from Bulgarian Ports of Varna and Burgas.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 10.—Telegrams from Sebastopol report that bases for German submarines have been established at Varna and Burgas, the principal Bulgarian ports on the Black Sea.

It is assumed that it was from these bases that the German submarines, mentioned in yesterday's Russian War Office report, approached the Crimean coast, from which they were driven by Russian destroyers.

A large number of Austrian and German aeroplanes is reported to have crossed Serbian territory in the direction of Bulgaria.

GREEKS LEARN OF SECRET TREATY

BULGAR DEAL IS MADE CLEAR

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 11.—The new Greek Cabinet held long sessions on Saturday and yesterday to consider its policy in regard to the alliance with Serbia, concerning which the Entent Powers are awaiting a definite announcement, but no decision was reached.

It is surmised here that its prolonged discussions are related to the secret treaty between the Central Powers and Bulgaria, said to have been made last July, information concerning which is understood to have been laid before Premier Zaimis by the Ministers of the Quadruple Entente. This treaty provided for the cession to Bulgaria of Serbian and Greek Macedonia, including the ports of Saloniki and Kavala.

An Athens dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Company says that the newspaper Hestia last evening confirmed the news printed in the Patris of the signature of this secret treaty last July.

The correspondent says that he also is able to confirm it, and adds that the British Minister handed the text of the treaty to M. Zaimis the day he assumed the Premiership.

"The treaty," continues the correspondent, "doubtless will be the subject of grave debate in the Parliament on Monday, when the new Government will announce its program and ask for a vote of confidence.

"It is understood that the supporters of former Premier Venizelos will give the Government just sufficient votes to secure a minimum majority—in other words, they will tolerate it."

King Constantine of Greece is ill and confined to his room, says a dispatch from Athens to the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin, which has been received here.

ATHENS, Oct. 10.—The representatives of the Entente powers, while exercising no pressure on the Greek Government, are urging it to reply to the question put last Thursday in regard to its future course respecting the Serbo-Grecian alliance. The Cabinet deliberated this question at great length yesterday and today, but has not succeeded in reaching any agreement.

A neutral diplomat in Athens reported to his Government his opinion that within less than a month former Premier Venizelos would be returned to power, or the ports of Greece would be blockaded by the Entente powers.

It is learned from an authoritative diplomatic source that the representatives of the Quadruple Entente have advised Greece that Bulgaria's present attitude results from a written engagement signed on July 17 by Prince Hohenlohe-Langenburg, then Acting German Ambassador to Turkey. This agreement, made on behalf of Austria and Germany, provided for cession to Bulgaria of Serbian and Greek Macedonia, including the Greek ports of Saloniki and Kavala; of Kastoria, in Northern Greece, near the Albanian border, and of all Albania. The representatives of the Entente powers assert they have proof that this agreement was made.

PICTURE TEUTONS IN IRON RING

PARIS, Oct. 10.—The view is entertained in diplomatic and other official quarters that the operations in the Balkans have assumed new and important significance.

The Austro-German drive to the southeast is regarded as a sequel to the French successes in the Champagne and the manner in which the Russians have prevented envelopment of their armies. Germany and Austria, according to this view, are compelled to seek a new field of effort toward the accomplishment of decisive results, as well as for the attempt to break through the enveloping ring of the Allies.

It is conceded the Germans have gained substantial successes in the past year in Belgium, France and Poland. Nevertheless Europe as a whole, is a vast theatre of war and the Entente Powers are now, as one French observer expressed it today, maintaining effective resistance against further German advances through France to the West, through Italy to the South, or through Russia to the East. Thus only

BELGRADE FULLY OCCUPIED

SURROUNDING HILLS TAKEN

London Military Circles Believe Bulgaria Will Hold Back to See How the War Goes.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 11.—The left wing of the invading Austro-German army is now in full possession of Belgrade and the heights surrounding the city, and has begun an advance eastward toward the mountains which the Serbians last year so stubbornly defended against the Austrians.

The attack by the right wing on the lower Drina, on the northwestern frontier, however, is said to have been repulsed with enormous losses for the Teutons, according to an official communication from Nish received in Paris. The statement says:

Belgrade has fallen into the hands of the Germans, after a desperate resistance.

Fighting continues all along the Danube and Save fronts. The purpose of the enemy is to advance through the Morava Valley, separating Kostolac (thirty-eight miles southeast of Belgrade) from Dubravatza, (on the Danube, thirty-five miles east of Belgrade,) where his chief efforts are concentrated.

The enemy suffered enormous losses in making unsuccessful attacks on the lower Drina. The enemy has been thrown back on an island he occupied before opening operations.

No reference to this setback is made in the latest Berlin official bulletin, which says:

Belgrade and the surrounding heights to the southwest and southeast are in our hands. The Serbians also were thrown back further east wherever they resisted. Our troops are advancing.

Southeastern front: The Austro-German troops have successfully advanced in Macva, Northwestern Serbia, north of Obrenovac.

The German regiments which entered Belgrade cleared the town of the enemy after street fighting. They now are attacking the southeastern and southwestern heights.

Further down the stream our allies have reached the southern bank of the Danube with strong forces and dislodged the enemy from several positions.

Despite the success of the Serbians on the Dvina, it is believed in military circles here that for some time to come the invaders will have to fight only rearguards, whose duty it will be to delay their progress, for the Serbians will doubtless do as they have done on previous occasions—fall back until they reach positions in which they will have the best opportunity of holding their ground. In fact, a pitched battle on this front is not expected for ten days or a fortnight, by which time the Allies' forces landed at Saloniki should have joined hands with the Serbians.

The Bulgarians, so far as is known, have not yet made any incursion into Serbian territory, and it is believed that they will hold their hands until they know how matters go with the Austro-Germans.

Some Balkan authorities, indeed, believe that the Bulgarians will not interfere with the movement northward of the Anglo-French expedition, for to do so would immediately bring the shells of the warships into their ports on the Black and Aegean seas, probably followed by the landing of Russian troops at Varna and Burgas and of allied troops at Dedeaghatch.

Greece and Rumania remain interested spectators, although the former has given assurances of her benevolent neutrality toward the Allies. Representatives of the Entente have furnished to the Greek Government information concerning the agreement between Bulgaria and Germany, which, it is asserted, gives the Bulgars a free hand to deal not only with Serbia, but with Greece as well, should the Central Powers win.

BELGRADE BADLY BATTERED.

Public Buildings Ruined by Shells —Teuton Capitals Rejoice.

AMSTERDAM, Monday, Oct. 11, (via London.)—The German and Austrian war correspondents assert that the hand-to-hand fighting in the streets of Belgrade was of a bitter character, and that the Serbians displayed great courage until the order came for them to withdraw.

The correspondents add that despite their efforts the Austro-German artillerists were unable to save the public buildings in Belgrade during the bombardment, and that some of them were badly damaged.

The Tageblatt says it regards the capture of the old Serbian capital as one of the greatest events of this phase of the war, since Belgrade is the key to Serbia and the best base for great operations.

BERLIN, Oct. 10, (by Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—Dispatches from the Serbian front report that Belgrade was not damaged greatly by bombardment. The city was spared as far as possible, although some private buildings were destroyed.

Serbian rearguards contested the passage through the city street of the Teutonic forces. Part of the civilian population remains in Belgrade.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERNE, Switzerland, Oct. 10.—Vienna and Berlin were illuminated last night in honor of the entrance of Austro-German troops into Belgrade. Special posters announced the event in all public places. Mackensen is now hero second only to Hindenburg.

SWEDEN ACTS FOR BULGARS.

Will Look After Their Interests in Allied Countries.

SOFIA, Oct. 10.—Bulgarian interests in the countries which have withdrawn their diplomatic representatives from Sofia will be entrusted to the Swedish Ministers.

An exception is made in the case of Serbia where, according to an official statement, "the breaking off of relations with the Bulgarian Legation was made in an unusual manner, the Serbian Government not giving the Bulgarian Minister time toi make necessary arrangements."

The Dutch Government having consented to the appointment of a Bulgarian Legation at The Hague, the Bulgarian Minister at London, P. Hadji Mischeff, has been named for this place.

BULGARIA'S WAR PLANS.

Three Armies to Operate on Serbian, Greek, and Rumanian Fronts.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 11.—The Times's Bucharest correspondent says he learns that the eleven Bulgarian divisions will form three armies which will be under command of Crown Prince Boris.

The First Army, under General Bogatcheff, fighting against Serbia, will be directed toward Uskub in order to cut the railway from Nish to Saloniki. The Second Army, under General Toncheff, will fight against Greece, while the Third Army, under General Teodoroff, will watch Rumania's movements.

CRITICISES SERBIA EXPEDITION

London Times's Expert Says Big Force or None Should Be Sent.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 11.—Nothing can be gained, according to The Times's military correspondent, by trying to minimize the fact that the Austro-Germans have achieved a signal initial success in the Balkan campaign. He asserts that unless from 300,000 to 400,000 allied troops are sent to the aid of Serbia and are sent in time the chances of a successful Serbian resistance are not great.

"The dispatch of a small allied force from Saloniki to Serbia," The Times's expert says, "is not a military operation and can be justified on military grounds only if it constitutes the advance guard of a large army or if the Greeks or Rumanians are to take the field.

"It is by no means certain that we should be wise, even if we could find the necessary men, to submit to German dictation of the initiative and open a great campaign in the Balkans because Germany beckons us thither. Germany's withdrawal of a quarter of a million men for an attack on Serbia has made the German campaign in Russia languish, and it is for us to take advantage of this fact to push our offensive in the West, and for Russia to strive by every means in her power to build up her new armies and complete her equipment."

BULGARIA'S PREPARATIONS.

Reserve Officer Describes Them Before Leaving Scotland.

A Bulgarian reserve officer, who had been residing in Edinburgh, was recalled to Sofia on Sept. 23. Before his departure he gave to The Edinburgh Scotsman this memorandum in regard to the Bulgarian Army:

"The general mobilization includes ten divisions of the Bulgarian Army, the latter having been increased by one division since the Balkan war. Before the war this would have involved 216,000 rifles. Now it affects 250,000 rifles, but the response is always about 10 per cent. greater than the calculation. The deficiency in officers caused by the Balkan war has now been supplied by Bulgaria's two military schools.

"The summoning of the Macedonians a week ago indicated on the part of the new Minister of War, General Jecoff, a disposition to tap the full able-bodied men of the country.

"From what I know the Bulgarian regimental stores in the past must have been amply replenished on the basis of providing for each of the forty regiments 6,000 complete equipments, so that the reservists now called to the colors will be better uniformed than during the Balkan war.

"The Krupp artillery taken from the Turks in 1912-13 was sufficient to turn all the non-quickfiring regiments into quickfiring regiments, but the non-quickfiring cannon have also been retained for service, implying a virtual increase of the Bulgarian artillery of nearly one-third. The army has worked very hard, and the spirit of the officers is splendid."

Changes in Bulgaria's Cabinet.

AMSTERDAM, (via London,) Monday, Oct. 11.—A dispatch received from Sofia by way of Berlin announces these changes in the Bulgarian Cabinet: Premier Radoslavoff will take the portfolio of Foreign Affairs in connection with his office of Prime Minister, relinquishing the Ministry of the Interior, which will be taken over by former Burgomaster Christo Poppow. General Newdenow has been appointed War Minister, to succeed General Jecoff, who has been appointed Commander in Chief of the troops.

GREEK STEAMER IS SUNK.

The Dimitrios and a British Vessel Destroyed in War Zone.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The sinking of two more steamships, one of them a neutral, was announced today. They were the British steamer Newcastle, 3,402 tons gross, owned in Newcastle, and the Greek steamer Dimitrios, 2,508 tons, owned in Andros.

The crews of both vessels are reported to have been saved.

NO LUXEMBURG PROTEST.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Oct. 10.—I learn from Basle that when the French aviators recently bombarded the station at Luxemburg the Germans attempted to force the Grand Duchess to sign a protest against this violation of Luxemburg's neutrality.

She refused, asking the General who was sent to her why Germany had violated her country.

HINDENBURG AGAIN CUTS RUSSIAN LINE

But Success Reported Before Dvinsk Has Brought Him Little Nearer to the City.

HEAVY BLOWS AT AUSTRIANS

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg is making slow progress in his operations against Dvinsk, and, although he reports the taking of more of the Russian positions, he does not appear to be much nearer the city than he was two weeks ago.

South of the Pripet River and in Galicia the tide of battle flows and ebbs. First the Russians, then the Austro-Germans, attack and counter-attack, and where during the Summer miles of country would change hands in a day, now it is a question of defending some isolated village. The heaviness of the roads doubtless is largely responsible for this.

The Russian War Office today made public the following official communication:

South of the Pripet River enemy detachments have occupied the village of Berejnaia Volia near Pojog. The enemy near Novo Seki and on the Styr near Ciartorisk, succeeded in crossing to the right bank of the Styr. Fighting continues near Milacheff, southeast of Kolki.

An enemy counterattack near the village of Garaimovki, southeast of Milacheff, was repulsed.

In Bukowina, (?) East of Buczacz, (Buczacz is North of Bukowina on the Stripa River) the enemy's attack was repulsed by an attack of our cavalry, which, charging like an avalanche, put the enemy to flight and took 150 prisoners.

In the region of Riga the enemy displayed no activity. A German aeroplane dropped some bombs on the railway station at Nitzhal, north of Dvinsk. In an action near the village of Pochiline we took 150 prisoners and captured some machine guns.

There was desperate fighting all day yesterday near the villages of Pochiline and Garbounovka, (on the Dvinsk front.) It diminished in intensity toward evening. Garbounovka was lost and retaken several times and finally was abandoned by us under the enemy's fire.

During one attack on this village we took 250 prisoners and seven machine guns. In attacks near Pochiline the Germans at first were successful, but toward evening the development of their offensive was checked east of the village.

Southwest of Dvinsk our artillery brought down a German aeroplane, which fell inside their lines. On the front from the Dvinsk region to the Pripet River nothing of importance has occurred.

In the district north of Likhovitchi our scouts made a successful night reconnoissance, penetrating into the enemy trenches, where they bayoneted more than two hundred Germans and took prisoner three officers and 453 men, they themselves losing only fifty.

German Progress at Dvinsk.

BERLIN, Oct. 10.—(by Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—The German effort to capture Dvinsk, on which Field Marshal von Hindenburg is now concentrating his efforts, has made further important progress. The War Office announced today the capture of Russian positions over a front of nearly five miles, north of the railroad running west from Dvinsk. A violent Russian attack west of the city, in an endeavor to regain the positions lost when the Germans last week made a gap of three miles in the Russian line, was repulsed.

After a violent hand-to-hand fight, Field Marshal von Hindenburg's army repulsed Russian forces which attempted to reconquer their lost positions near Garbounovka, west of Dvinsk. North of the railroad from Dvinsk to Poniewesch, to the west of Illukst, the Germans captured the enemy's positions over a front of about eight kilometers, (about five miles.) Six officers, 750 prisoners, and five machine guns were captured.

General von Linsingen's army took by storm the village of Sinczye, southwest of Pinsk. Cavalry engagements continue near Kucheckawela and in the neighborhood of Jezierczy. Several Russian attacks on the front between Rafalovki (fifty miles south of Pinsk) and the railroad running from Rovno to Kovel were repulsed, and 383 Russians were made prisoner.

Austrians Report Heavy Attacks.

VIENNA, (via London,) Oct. 10.—The official communication issued today says:

In Volhynia, after repulsing a Russian attack, we counted 500 Russian dead before our entanglements. We have made 1,000 prisoners since yesterday. The enemy again attempted to reach the west bank of the Styr north or Czartorisk, but was prevented by our fire.

RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE GAINS.

Austrians Thrown Back — Heavy Damage by Air Raid on Czernowitz.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 10, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—The stubbornness of the troops of General Ruzsky is still a match for the attempts of the Germans under von Below to secure Dvinsk and the line to the Dvina. A new German offensive is noted northward at Gorbunovaka, where, in order to protect the approach to the river, the Russians met the Germans with machine gun fire of such terrific violence whole columns were flung back, unable to parry the assault.

Similar fruitless attacks were made in the Smorgen region, 100 miles south of Dvinsk. These attacks were all repulsed. Heavy fighting is continuing here.

It is reported that in the marches of Pinsk bands of German deserters are plundering right and left. Local peasants are forming flying commands, and, armed with rifles, are conducting a successful guerrilla warfare against these German irregular troops.

After a fortnight's halt the Russians have renewed the offensive in the region from the Styr to the Sereth. Infantry forces by an energetic attack dislodged the enemy from the right bank of the Styr and occupied their position at Koshistchi.

More important still is the Russian offensive in the direction of Lutzk. On both sides of the Rovno-Kovel Railway the enemy was thrown back a distance of twenty miles. Near Lutzk the Russians captured 3,500 men, besides numerous trophies.

Successful aeroplane raids have been made against the railway at Czernowitz. This station always played an important part in German offensive operations in the south, and masses of troops and munitions have been brought there. Reliable reports state that the raid caused extremely heavy damage and serious disorganization.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN SOUTHWEST RUSSIA, Oct. 7, (Dispatch to The London Daily Telegraph.)—During last night the Russian forces opened a strong simultaneous attack. That of the army corps to which I am attached succeeded magnificently.

After an artillery preparation against large German and Austrian forces from the River Styr as far as Garaimovka the Russians advanced distances of from seven to five kilometers, and everywhere captured first and second positions.

On our centre they also pierced through all fortified trenches and barbed wire. On the front from Karpilovka to Mochaitsa we were engaged with the enemy; from thence to Nosovitch our troops pierced first and succeeding lines.

TWO MEMBERS OUT OF RUSSIAN CABINET

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Prince Cherbatoff, Russian Minister of the Interior, has been allowed to retire and will be succeeded by Alexei Khvostoff, Court Chamberlain, according to a Petrograd dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Company.

M. Khvostoff will be the first member of the Duma appointed to the Ministry. He was formerly leader of the Right Party.

Alexander Samarin, Procurator General of the Holy Synod, has also retired.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 10. (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—Today's announcement of changes in the Russian Cabinet comes as a surprise.

Samarin, who has been relieved of the post Chief Procurator of the Holy Synod, was only recently appointed. He enjoys a well-deserved reputation for integrity, devoutness and energy and it was expected that his term of office would be a period of much-needed ecclesiastical reform. Only last week the Moscow nobles' assembly, of which Samarin is a member, enthusiastically congratulated him on his appointment. The Synod has lately had trouble with the Bishop of Tobolsk, who not only cannonized on his responsibility, a deceased ecclesiastic of local reputation, but refused to give the Synod an explanation when it was demanded of him. This incident may or may not have had some connection with Samarin's retirement.

The resignation of Prince Cherbatoff from the Ministry of the Interior had been expected for some time. He had the best intentions, but found himself unable to cope with the exceptional difficulties of his position.

About the new Minister of the Interior Khvostoff, who is a relative of the Minister of Justice, it is hard to say anything definite. He is a member of the Duma and has been the leader of the extreme right: that is to say, one of the few parties that had not joined the Progressive Bloc. Formerly as Governor of Nishni Novgorod, he was reputed to be a reactionary, but in the Duma he has repeatedly expressed strongly oppositional sentiments. It was on his initiative that the Duma appointed a commission to devise measures for combatting the excessive influence of Germans in Russian public life.

Khvostoff's attacks on the Government have been chiefly directed against the Ministers of Finance and Industry, whom he accuses of favoring banks and syndicates at the expense of the consumer. Perhaps it is hoped he will be able by administrative measures to check the abnormal rise in prices in towns, but it must be admitted for the present the real significance of this appointment remains obscure.

RIOTS IN CONSTANTINOPLE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Oct. 10, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—According to news from Athens, a Turkish mob has wrecked the new building of the Italian Embassy at Constantinople, which has not yet been completed. The police passively looked on while the building was devastated. Doors and windows were broken, and everything portable was carried away.

The rioting was provoked by the high cost of living. Famine prices are ruling. Four thousand Moslem women assembled in front of the Sublime Porte and held an anti-war demonstration. They were charged and dispersed by the troops and the police. The mob regularly loots the bakers' shops, which are now guarded by the police.

The optimism of the Young Turks, due to Bulgaria's intervention, is not shared by the population, and the reports purposely spread that the Anglo-French forces have abandoned operations on the Dardanelles are belied by the enormous number of wounded who arrive daily in Constantinople. Many are dying owing to lack of medical attendance and hospital accommodation.

The massacres of Armenians continue, and the Turks are openly threatening the Greeks with the same fate.

TO CHECK BRITISH IMPORTS

London Post Urges Heavy Duties—Danger in Big Loans.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 11.—The levying of still heavier duties on imports from the United States and other foreign countries is urged by The Post's financial editor in discussing the problems of war finance. He regards this step as necessary in order to restrict further the use of luxuries and enforce economy upon the common people.

"On the assumption that the war will last for a long period and that our power over foreign exchange may tend to weaken rather than to become stronger," The Post says, "our whole policy should be in the direction of mobilizing all our available resources for offsetting adverse trade balances and checking all unnecessary imports from abroad. What has been done thus far in the taxation of such imports is quite insignificant. There must be an immediate further cutting of personal expenditure, which plays an important part in affecting the balance of payments to be made abroad."

The Post quotes approvingly the financial expert who declares future war loans must not be subscribed by the banks but by the people themselves. Unless this is done, he predicts, the war will be followed by "the greatest boom and the greatest collapse the world ever has seen, affecting alike Great Britain, the Continent, and the United States." It is estimated by this expert that Great Britain must find at least $3,000,000,000 more before March 31.

TO AUTHORIZE ALLIES' LOAN.

British Parliament Expected to Legalize Flotation Tomorrow.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The Sunday Times says that the Chancellor of the Exchequer will introduce a bill on Tuesday authorizing the floating of the Anglo-French $500,000,000 loan in the United States. It is hoped that the bill will be passed through all stages at one sitting.

The bill authorizing the loan for the French Government was introduced in the French Chamber of Deputies on Thursday and passed unanimously, after speeches by the Minister of Finance and the Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations. It passed the Senate next day without debate.

BUILD UP TEUTONIC LOANS.

Rothschilds Subscribe to Austrian and Hungarian Undertakings.

BERLIN, Oct. 10, (by Wireless Telegraphy to Tuckerton, N. J.)—Payments on subscriptions to the third German war loan up to Oct. 7 amounted to 6,420,900,000 marks, ($1,605,225,000.)

The Austrian General Pension Institute has subscribed 75,000,000 crowns ($18,750,000) to the coming Austrian war loan. The Vienna Bank Verein has subscribed 40,000,000 crowns, the Rothschilds 18,000,000, and the Skoda Works 5,000,000. The Vienna Bank Verein has subscribed 10,000,000 crowns to the Hungarian loan, the Rothschilds 18,000,000, and the Skoda Works 3,000,000.

JELLICOE THE IDOL OF BRITISH FLEET

And England Regards Him as Probably the Most Valuable Man in All the Service.

HIS ENERGY IS UNTIRING

Has His Great Armada of 3,000 Vessels in Trim for Action Every Minute.

LONDON, Sept. 27, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Of all the war leaders, Sir John Jellicoe, commanding the British Grand Fleet, is least known to the world, and his is the portrait which receives the most cheers when it is thrown onto a screen at a London theatre. But the British public knows nothing of him except that he is the fighting commander of the "invisible" power of the British Navy.

When war was threatening it is related that a meeting of Admiralty Lords and others who would have the say was held to decide who, in case of hostilities, should command the British fleet. The opinions ran something like this, it is said:

"Jellicoe! He has the brains."

"Jellicoe! He is young. He has the health to endure the strain. He has the nerve."

"Jellicoe! He has been tried in every branch of the service."

"Jellicoe! His fellow-officers believe in him."

It was that sort of recommendation that helped. When the war came he was placed in supreme command.

"From the time he was a midshipman, Jellicoe has been a marked man in the service," said one of his Admirals. "He is one of those men who seem to be born with tireless energy. No matter what difficulties arise, he is always smiling. Both he and Beatty were in the first attempt to relieve the Peking legations at the time of the Boxer rebellion. Captain Jellicoe was then Admiral Seymour's chief of staff. When he was wounded and the little band of seamen were surrounded by Boxers, and it looked as if every minute might be their last, he was smiling as cheerily as if he had been on the quarterdeck. Nothing ever seems to ruffle his equanimity. His personal charm would win him his way anywhere; but when you have served with him, then you realize what a master of his profession he is."

Only the Commander in Chief's flag which she flies distinguishes the flagship, which is in the centre of the fleet, from the rest of the gray fighters in their precise lines at anchor in harbor. Sir John takes his exercise and his holidays pacing the quarterdeck. He never leaves the fleet even for a few hours. The Commander in Chief is the one man who must take no risk of being absent if the German fleet should come out.

Wants No Luxury.

Descend a ladder under the shadow of two great 13.5-inch guns and the visitor is in a large cabin extending from side to side of the ship, which in a house would be called the dining room. Here when he was in port in time of peace the Commander in Chief would give his official dinners. In time of war the cabin is partly screened off, as there is more room than Sir John and his staff need for meals. Aft of this is what would be called in a house the living room. The furnishings are of the simplest. Everything inflammable could be removed promptly in case of action. The few names in the visitors' book on a table were suggestive of the fleet's isolation from intercourse with the rest of the world. One name was the King's and another the Prince of Wales's and those of a few high officials.

The visitor looked about in vain for signs of the immense amount of official detail which would seem necessary for the focal point of a vast campaign. Some staff officers and a few records were all. The flagship is kept cleared for action in this, as in all other respects. The actual directing of the 3,000 ships and auxiliaries of the British Navy is carried on in a space occupied in a New York office by a lawyer and two or three clerks. An orderly went and came with messages from the wireless room, which, aside from the installations, had space enough for the wireless operators to stand, and no more.

Officers said it was difficult to contemplate how such a naval campaign as the British in this war could ever have been conducted without the wireless. Sir John can talk with the Admiralty in London or with any ship, whether off Heligoland or Iceland. He knows what each man is doing. Let a German cruiser show her nose in the North Sea, and he would have the news a minute or two after she was sighted.

"He makes it all seem simple and easy," said one of his Admirals. "That is his gift—it is the essential gift for one who has such a great responsibility."

Beatty, who sank the Blücher, is the youngest of Sir John's young Admirals, 44 years of age, boyish, and quick. Sturdee, victor of the Falkland Islands battle, smooth-shaven, as smiling as Sir John, is quiet-spoken and rather studious in appearance; he is an expert in naval strategy.

In the British Navy promotion is by selection up to the grade of Captain. A man with a single flaw in his record as Lieutenant must wait on others before he can become Lieutenant Commander. Those with perfect records in each grade are canvassed by boards and those who have shown industry and initiative are chosen to go over the heads of less active men. The aim is to apply the system of civil life, where ability rises and mediocrity must be content with the lower rungs of the ladder.

Jellicoe, Sturdee, and Beatty entered the navy as boys of 14. None had any particular influence; they made their way by industry. Sir John has served in every branch. He is regarded as possibly the ablest ordnance expert in the navy, which means that he knows the guns which he will fire in action.

Success, His Watchword.

Notwithstanding his amiability, all agree that he has only one criterion—success. If an officer fails he is superseded. For the last ten years the average British naval officer has worked harder than men of any profession in civil life. They have kept up the grinding drill, which continues since the war began.

"We can take no risks," one of them said. "Our responsibility to the nation requires that we neglect nothing that devotion to duty will accomplish. Most of these crews you see have been at their posts, whether gun-pointing or passing ammunition, for five or six years. We want each man to be letter perfect in his part."

In all actions thus far the firing has begun at extreme range—eighteen thousand wards. At that distance a dreadnought painted the color of the sea is a vague speck. But one fortunate hit may be vital, and either side wants to get that fortunate hit first. The accuracy of fire both at the Falkland Islands and in the battle of the Dogger Bank, had been as good as at battle practice.

Seen among his Admirals, Sir John Jellicoe seems the head of a family. In frequent consultation, they know one another in the fellowship of their confined existence. If he has anything to say to one of them or they to him the definiteness of their remarks and the promptness of his replies are impressive. Decision seems automatic with him.

He showed the visitors over the flagship himself, calling attention to things which he thought would interest them, as he led the way along the cramped passages behind the armor or pointed the way to enter one of the turrets where the gun crews were going on with their drills, which they went through like so many human machines. Most of them were in the early thirties, mature, experienced, and confident.

"All they ask is that the Germans will come out," said an officer. "They could not work any harder than they did before the war. But the war has given them renewed eagerness."

CENSOR SUSPENDS 4 PAPERS

French Authorities Continue Severities Despite All Criticism.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—Beginning today four of the daily papers of Paris, Le Rappel, Le Radical, La Guerre Sociale, and L'Oeuvre, are suspended by order of the censorship, three of them for two days each and the fourth indefinitely.

PARIS, Oct. 1, (Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The censor, after coming in for so much criticism from Clemenceau of L'Homme Homme Enchaine and other discontented editors, has just been attacked before the court-martial of Paris by M. Jacques Bonzon, who was defending before the second court-martial of Paris M. Louis Leroux, charged with spreading alarming reports.

"The law of 1881," M. Bonzon recalled, "punished only the publication of false reports spread in bad faith, while the law of 1914 prohibits even the divulging of military or diplomatic truths if they are of a nature to exercise a harmful influence on the state of mind of the army or the population. Only the Government may tell the truth, even political, which means that we have accorded to the present Ministry what the Viscount Chateaubriand would not have conceded to the King, what Lacordaire would have denied to the Pope, and what Victor Hugo would not have permitted to the rising republic."

The court-martial appears to uphold the censor, for, in spite of M. Leroux's regrets, they fined him fifty francs.

BRITISH CENSORS ASSAILED.

Greatest Blunder Has Been Treatment of America, Says Daily Express

DONDON, Monday, Oct. 11.—The censorship is again criticised in the morning papers. Referring to the speech of Lord Selborne Saturday at York, describing the action of the censors in cutting out from a newspaper dispatch a correspondent's tribute to the bravery of German troops, the Daily Graphic says the country has a right to ask whether any one will be dismissed for the disgraceful proceeding."

The Daily Express asserts that the greatest blunder of the censorship has been its treatment of the United States. London correspondents of American newspapers have been prevented from sending the British case to their readers, "while Germany has poured a ceaseless flood of lies into America, which has misled American opinion."

LONDON, Oct. 1, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The inconsistency and partiality of the British censorship is again the subject of bitter complaint. Sir Frederick Milner, in a letter to The Times, writes:

"I have always supposed that the business of the Press Censor was to prevent the circulation of any news likely to be of service to the enemy. It appears, however, that he also deems it his duty to shield officials at home who do not correctly carry out their duties.

"Last week I wrote a letter, which was to have appeared in the principal London papers, pointing out some cruel cases of injustice to soldiers, incapacitated and discharged, giving the actual facts.

"Unfortunately, as I wished the letter to be widely circulated in the local press, I sent a copy of the letter to the Press Association. The Manager deemed it his duty to submit the letter to the Censor, and at the same time informed him that the letter would appear in Monday's issue of the London papers.

"A hurried message was issued to these papers forbidding them to publish the letter, or any letter dealing with the legitimate grievances of our wounded heroes. I contend, and everybody I have spoken to agrees, that this is a monstrous abuse of the powers of the Censor.

"Fortunately, I was able to defeat him to a certain extent, as I got the letter published in a leading Scottish newspaper, and also in a leading paper in the North of England, so that the facts will be well known in the North.

"I hope to get this abuse of the Censor's powers taken up in Parliament. In any case, I can assure him that though he may succeed in muzzling the press he won't succeed in muzzling me, and so long as this rank injustice continues so long will I go on exposing it, and I am convinced I shall have the whole British public at my back."

RENEWS ATTACK ON GREY.

London Times Holds Him Responsible for Balkan Diplomatic Losses.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 11.—Despite the protests of many newspapers against the press attack on Sir Edward Grey, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, and the Government on the ground that nothing could be more welcome to Germany, the attacks continue. The Times in an editorial today, referring to the failure of British diplomacy in the Balkans, says:

"From the first moment of the war, when the Germanic Empires stood alone against us, right down to the landslide of last week, one miscalculation seems to have followed another with almost mathematical certainty. Rumania still holds out, but she holds out now in passive isolation, no longer in touch with the advancing Russian armies and inevitably influenced by what is passing around her."

The Times thinks the Foreign Office must bear the brunt of the blame, but it recognizes the handicap of allied diplomacy, and especially the handicap of Italy, with her special claims on the Eastern Adriatic seaboard, while it says it is naturally impossible for the allied diplomats to make the swift decisions of a single Foreign Office in Berlin.

"Unless we are misinformed, however," The Times adds, "The British Foreign Office, which from the first had a privileged position in dealing with the Balkan peoples, was intrusted by the Allies with the leading part in Balkan diplomacy and must, therefore, be responsible for its failure."

The Times concludes that much of the trouble is due to lack of co-ordination between military effort and diplomatic knowledge and between the foreign policy and the military policy.

"It was this," says The Times, "that led to the disastrous Dardanelles blunders and to the Balkan failure, which has been largely influenced by the Russian retreat and our failure in Gallipoli."

How the Clearing House supervises its member Banks

ABOUT once a year, without notice, the New York Clearing House sends its official auditors to make a minute examination of the Trust Companies' or Banks' affairs. This examination is primarily in the interest of the depositors. It follows about the same plan as the examinations of the State Banking Department.

In addition to the above examination, every Saturday morning each member Bank must give to the Clearing House and State Banking Department a statement of deposits, loans, reserves, etc., and an analysis of cash on hand, showing the actual condition on Friday night. Another report along the same lines must be submitted—showing the average condition for the week.

These reports when consolidated for all Clearing House Banks form the "Weekly Bank Statement" which is quoted in all parts of the country.

one weak spot, it is pointed out here, is left to the southeast, in the Balkans.

It is therefore maintained that, the Allies having demonstrated their power of resistance in all directions except in the southeast, Germany is now massing her forces against the one remaining point there she may be able to break through the encircling wall. This is believed to be one of the chief reasons for the extent of the Austro-German movement to force a way to Constantinople and the routes leading to the Orient as well as for the counter movement of the Allies in landing large forces as Saloniki, interposing a barrier across this path of exit.

The Figaro says that the outcome of the new operations in the Balkans compares in significance with the historic battle at Salamis in which Themistocles finally held back the Persians.

SUGGESTS ALLIED COUNCIL.

Italian Idea for Handling the Situation in the Balkans.

MILAN, Oct. 10.—The Corriere Della Sera declares it to be a matter of urgent necessity that the Quadruple Entente adopt new methods of diplomacy and a more energetic policy in dealing with the Balkan States before it is too late.

"The Allies are too proud to adopt German methods," it says, "and consequently the eTutonic influence is spreading unopposed in these countries, leading to dire consequences."

This newspaper says that there should be constituted in the capital of one of the Entente nations an Executive Committee representing the allied nations for the purpose of increasing the rapidity and efficiency of diplomatic action and co-ordinating military efforts.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 11.—The Daily Mail points out this morning, that the success of Germany in establishing connections with Turkey, would mean the solution of Germany's copper problem, as virtually inexhaustible supplies of the metal would be available from the Arghana Maden Mine in Asia Minor. This mine, although hitherto much neglected, is one of the richest mines in the world, the newspaper says, and under German management it would soon be shipping copper wholesale over the new Bagdad railway.

"Turkey," The Daily Mail adds, "could also be very helpful in the matter of cotton, although she would hardly be able to furnish all of this staple needed by Germany."

The Daily Mail warns against the sending of any small or insufficient Allied force into the new Balkan theatre.

"To help Serbia inadequately," it says, "is not to help her at all. This is a very big and perilous operation. It requires a very great army, and it cannot be begun in a haphazard way. We do not want any new and more spacious version of the 'rescue' of Antwerp."

Considers Greece's Position "Clear."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Oct. 10.—The Greek Minister here declares that the position of Greece is quite clear. Greece had no part in the original conflict between Serbia and Austria, and has no responsibility in the present Balkan complications. She cannot either rival or compete with the great Powers in the conflagration which is destined to modify the map of Europe, and perhaps of the world, but her national aspirations are so legitimate that he believes the belligerents cannot fail to recognize them, and will not oppose their realization, as this will contribute in a large measure to the settlement of the Eastern question and toward insuring a lasting and satisfactory peace.

New Anglo-French Fleet Commander

PARIS, Oct. 10.—Admiral Augustin Boué de Lapeyrère, commander of the Anglo-French fleet in the Mediterranean, has been obliged to retire on his own request owing to serious illness. Vice Admiral Dartige du Fournet has been named to succeed him.

LONDON CAN'T TREAT NOW.

New Law, Effective Today, Makes the Penalty $500 Fine.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 11.—The new anti-treating regulation in connection with the use and sale of alcoholic drinks goes into effect in London and the surrounding district today.

It is the most radical and far-reaching effort for the curtailment of drinking yet tried, for it affects nearly 10,000,000 persons, and violations of the regulation are punishable by a fine of $500 and six months in prison. The authorities have given notice that these penalties will be inflicted without mercy on offenders.

The law will curtail the consumption of alcoholic liquors by 50 per cent., and unless it is effective it will be followed by an order shortening the hours of sale. The report of a few days ago that an order had already been drafted for a curtailment of hours was "premature," according to officials, and there will be no such curtailment until the Board of Control has time to observe the effects of anti-treating.

All cafés, hotels, clubs, and liquor dealers are required to exhibit prominently in their places a copy of the anti-treating ordinance, which says plainly that "each person must give his order and pay for his own drink." The only exception to the rule is that drinks ordered with a full meal may be paid for by a host.

PRAISES ARABIC DISAVOWAL.

Vorwaerts, Socialist Organ, Says It Will Leave No Bitterness.

Satisfaction over the settlement of the controversy between the United States and Germany "in a manner that will leave no bitterness," coupled with a warning that the tension between the two countries may be easily revived at any moment, is expressed by the German Social Democratic organ, Vorwärts, in its issue of Sept. 21. The paper says:

"The wise yielding of the German Government in the submarine controversy has changed the German-American relations at one coup. The hateful tone which had been adopted by the American press for months against Germany and all things German has almost disappeared, and the German Ambassador, whose recall was being demanded a short time ago, today receives scarcely less praise than President Wilson himself. The Americans regard the outcome of the controversy as a great diplomatic victory, and this recognition flatters extraordinarily the national feeling of a people which has heretofore not played on the international stage a rôle commensurate with its greatness and wealth. The diplomatic victory has mightily strengthened the prestige of the President, so that his chances of being re-elected are very favorable today.

"Doubtless this is a victory that will leave no bitterness behind it. Germany is sacrificing nothing to which it is legitimately entitled. It pledges itself to observe the international practice with respect to the saving of neutral passengers on enemy passenger steamers. Only a strong nation, says a New York paper, could see its way to granting such a concession. But what today appears conspicuously as a great diplomatic victory for America will probably look different in the immediate future. The most remarkable thing about the American victory, for example, is that England has [illegible] because of it."

HOW IRELAND GETS NEWS.

Sligo Man Writes That He Depends on The Times for It.

THE NEW YORK TIMES is furnishing to persons in the British Isles war news which they cannot obtain from their own newspapers, according to a letter THE TIMES has just received from James Nangle, a subscriber in County Sligo, Ireland. Here is his letter:

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Although I live in a remote corner of the western part of the Emerald Isle, I enjoy the supreme privilege of reading almost daily "All the News That's Fit to Print." All the way from New York City THE NEW YORK TIMES comes to me regularly with its pages full of interesting news from almost every country on the map. War news here, which for military reasons is rather scarce, is generously published by you, and this I greatly appreciate, since such news is otherwise almost unobtainable.

Occasionally I notice in your columns letters attacking Mr. Redmond's policy as leader of the Irish Nationalist Party. I would say that these attacks are unwarranted, since his policies are heartily indorsed by all loyal Irishmen at home and abroad whose faith in his able leadership has never been misplaced or betrayed. Mr. Redmond's attitude toward England at the outbreak of the European war demonstrates his desire to uphold the traditional honor of Ireland, her dignity and loyalty, and the principles for which she stands. Mr. Redmond is an able and fearless leader whose interest in the cause of Ireland and her people is vital and sincere.

I thank you for courtesies extended and am pleased to be a subscriber to your valuable paper.

JAMES NANGLE.

Upper Avigna, County Sligo, Ireland.

When a press censor severely reprimanded the editor of a morning newspaper of St. John's, N. F., recently for reprinting war news from THE NEW YORK TIMES, it was disclosed that THE TIMES was furnishing to the Canadians much information about the war that was suppressed by their local papers.

SOCCER STARS AT FRONT.

Colquhoun and Marquardt, Formerly of Columbia, with British.

Two former Columbia soccer stars, now fighting with the Allies in Europe, have recently been heard from. William Wallace Colquhoun and William C. Marquardt are the two men. The former is in the British trenches in Flanders and the latter is fighting with the British expeditionary force on the Galliopoli peninsula.

Both are of Scotch-English parentage and their pro-Ally sentiments led them to sail for England and enlist shortly after the outbreak of the war. Colquhoun comes from Tunbridge Wells, England, and received his education at Columbia. For three years he was considered the best soccer player on the Blue and White team and, single-handed, is credited with having kept his team in the championship race. He was a student in the Graduate School of Mining Engineering. In a letter to an official of Columbia, Colquhoun writes that he recently had a close call when a portion of his arm was shot away by a sniper. Later he was promoted to a Captaincy.

WAR GIVES HIGH PAY TO GERMAN LABOR

BUT FUTURE IS A PROBLEM

Return of Peace Expected to Flood Labor Market—How Different Trades Have Been Depleted.

BERLIN, Sept. 15, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—The huge drains and losses of thirteen months of war have had the paradoxical effect of placing the German workingman in a position of prosperity unexampled in his history, of raising his wages to a point never attained before, and of almost completely solving his nonemployment problem. The faster men at the front have fallen and holes in the ranks had to be filled, the better has become the situation of the men at home, the higher have mounted the savings banks deposits of the few doing the work of the former many.

Each month has drawn from the ranks of nearly all trade men whose places have not been filled, yet whose work has had to be done. The work has been done, in part by overtime labor, in part by workers whose value—and in consequence whose pay—increased about in proportion to the withdrawals.

Yet the very fact that the worker who has stayed at home is having an unprecedented heyday has created a problem which his leaders, if not he, is studying and worrying over—the problem of what is to become of him and of how to take care of him when the war is over, when hundreds of thousands of his fellows come streaming back from the front, when the lucrative manufacture of war materials suddenly stops. Some think the problem is to be solved by kindly employers who will immediately take back their former employes, even though business does not at once resume its before-the-war volume. Others, less optimistic, are far-sightedly negotiating with the Government already, and are asking that no matter when hostilities cease the hundreds of thousands not regularly employed as soldiers shall be kept on the rolls for eight or twelve weeks till economic matters adjust themselves and the men can get back to work.

The organized trades are piling up small fortunes in their treasuries against the time when they shall have to begin again paying out the non-employment benefits that just now have dwindled to the vanishing point. And the Government is practically pledged to supply hundreds of millions of marks, if necessary, toward this same end.

The labor situation in Berlin today is more than a fair measure by which to gauge the situation throughout the empire. More than ever since the beginning of the war there has been an influx of workers from the country, attracted by the high wages prevailing, especially in those trades catering to army needs. The country has always had a smaller percentage of men unfit for military service than the city. The needs of the army therefore, which have called for most of the men who are fit, has created a greater shortage of workmen in the small towns than in the cities.

At the great Central Employment Bureau, maintained by the principal branches of labor in Berlin, between 45 and 50 trades are represented. At the end of the first week in September 15 of these trades reported that not one member was out of employment; 30 others reported from 1 to 183 members unemployed and entitled to unemployment support. The total number drawing this support was 540; six trades had one man apiece, four had two men, and three had three. The unemployment on Nov. 21, 1914, numbered 8,406 among the trades represented.

The City of Berlin assists in supporting the unemployed, and adds on an average 50 per cent. of what the trades themselves pay out. Yet during the week ending Aug. 21 last, the city was forced to expend through this channel but one-half of 1,786 marks, while during the week ending Nov. 2, 1914, unemployment had been so great that the city's share had been one-half of 54,807 marks.

The following table shows the status of the organized workers of Berlin. In the first column is the number employed on July 1, 1915, in the second the number drawn into the army up to June 30, 1915, in the third the total employed on July 1, 1914:

The bookbinders' is one of the few trades in which wages have risen but little. Not only have many been called into service, but many others have voluntarily left it for more lucrative "army industries." The woodworkers present another case similar to that of the bookbinders. Not even the war and its shortage has made their trade advantageous, and several hundred have left it for other callings, in addition to those who have been called on for military service.

SAYS KAISER AND CZAR FACE REVOLT AT HOME

Delegate to Berne Conference Declares Discontent Is Growing in Germany.

Growing discontent in Germany and rumors of revolutions brewing in both Germany and Russia as a result of the war were reported yesterday by Mme. Alexandra Kollontay of Petrograd, who arrived here last Friday from Christiania for an agitation tour under the direction of the German-speaking section of the Socialist Party.

Details of the conference held on Sept. 5-8 near Berne, Switzerland, and participated in by some of the leading Socialists of Germany, Russia, Poland, Switzerland, France, Italy, and the Scandinavian and Balkan countries, at which the course to be followed regarding the war by the Socialists of Europe was debated from all points of view, were given by Mme. Kollontay. It was a conference at which a new Socialist International was practically organized, and at which it was made plain that large and influential bodies of Socialists in Germany and in Russia were going to do all in their power to end the war and to put an end to imperialism in the countries named—an end that could only be obtained, it was frankly stated, by the dethronement of the Kaiser and the Czar.

Mme. Kollontay is a friend and coworker of the noted German Socialist Karl Liebknecht, in whose house she was at the time it was searched by the German authorities and Liebknecht's private correspondence and other private papers seized.

Mme. Kollontay was one of those who attended the conference near Berne. The reason Liebknecht was not present at the deliberations was due to the fact, she said, that he had been conscripted and forced to go to the front by the German military authorities. The conferees, she added, were genuine representatives of the international party, and were men and women who would never forgive the Socialists who joined coalition cabinets in the countries at war, or who, like most of the German Socialists, voted in favor of the credits that made the war possible.

Asked to discuss Germany so far as the attitude of the Socialists there was concerned, Mme. Kollontay said:

"This is an imperialistic war, and the Socialists of Germany know and realize that it is such."

"But the Socialists in the Reichstag at the beginning of the war voted in favor of it and helped vote the war credits to carry it on. How do you reconcile that with what you have just said?"

"Those who voted for the German war credits will never be forgiven, just as those who accepted portfolios in coalition cabinets in other countries will not be forgiven," she answered.

"Is there a revolution brewing in Russia, one of the objects of which would be to depose the Czar?" Mme. Kollontay was asked.

"Yes, I am quite sure there is, and the same is true of Germany, for if there is a revolution in one of those countries there will be a revolution in the other also. Once the revolution starts in Russia it will start in Germany, too."

"What is the situation in Germany? Are the people contented?"

"There is no contentment in Germany, but before I refer to it more at length I also want to make it plain that there is no contentment in the other countries at war either. In Germany the discontent with the situation is growing all the time. No matter what reports are sent out, it is a fact that great suffering prevails in Germany. The cost of living has increased tremendously, in some instances the cost of necessaries having gone up 60 and 70 per cent., and in others 100 per cent. and even more. You can say that every necessity has gone up more than 50 per cent. The Government, it is true, makes a small allowance to women and children, but this allowance is barely enough to pay the rent and leaves nothing for the purchase of the food that is even more necessary than is the roof. The unemployment situation in Germany could be worse than it is, yet it is true that the percentage of unemployed is greater now than ever before in German history."

"Are the Socialist leaders, that is, those of the new International, in Germany and in Russia in communication concerning the plan to put an end to imperialism?"

"It is perfectly true to say that they are," was the answer.

Mme. Kollontay will speak in German to the Socialists of Brooklyn tomorrow night at the Brooklyn Labor Lyceum on the international situation created by the war, as viewed from the standpoint of European Socialism.

DERNBURG'S LATEST SCHEME.

Wants Germans to Punish Italy by Keeping Away After the War.

AMSTERDAM, Monday, Oct. 11, (via London.)—Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, writing in the Tageblatt, makes a proposal to punish Italy for her "betrayal of the German cause" by every German pledging himself to refrain from visiting Italy for five years after the war.

The Tageblatt opposes this idea, and many intellectual Germans criticise it as mad and foolish chauvinism.

EDISON HAD HAND WIRELESS

Aid Tapped Morse Code on Inventor's Wrist at Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 10.—How Thomas A. Edison overcame the disadvantage of deafness as Chairman of Secretary Daniels's Naval Board when it met in Washington last week, was told by Dr. Miller Reese Hutchison, chief engineer of the Edison industries, who was made Chairman's Assistant of the board.

Mr. Edison has been exceedingly deaf since a boy. Dr. Hutchison made a special acousticon for him, but the inventor declined to be bothered with the contrivance. But Mr. Edison and Dr. Hutchison were both telegraphers once, and both are acquainted with the Morse code. So they arranged that Dr. Hutchison should keep Mr. Edison informed by tapping his wrist.

Throughout the sessions Dr. Hutchison sat at the side of Mr. Edison gently tapping his wrist in the Morse code. When Mr. Edison wanted to know anything quietly, the process was reversed and he did the tapping on Dr. Hutchison's wrist. So well did the signals work, that probably Mr. Edison will continue to employ them at all meetings.

PADEREWSKI ASKS WAR AID.

He Pleads for Poland at a Concert in Aid of Its Victims.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—Before an audience that filled Symphony Hall this afternoon Paderewski gave the first of three concerts in aid of the Polish Victims' Relief Fund. The other two will be given in New York on Oct. 23 and Philadelphia on Oct. 30.

Preceding a recital of Chopin's music he spoke eloquently for forty minutes of Poland's past, and pictured the country as it was today after having been a battlefield for more than a year. When he entered the audience rose to greet him. When he ended the same tribute was paid to him.

It has been long since a Boston audience has been so profoundly impressed by a speaker. Paderewski spoke without notes, and never once faltered or sought for the right word. In his description of Poland as it is today he took no sides, and made no sensational statements or accusations.

RE-ENTERS ENGLISH CHURCH

Rev. R. J. Campbell Announces Move in Farewell City Temple Sermon.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The Rev. Reginald J. Campbell, who last month resigned the pastorate of the City Temple, in his farewell sermon tonight announced that he was about to return to the Church of England, after an interval of twenty years spent in the nonconformist ministry.

Mr. Campbell will receive ordination from the Bishop of Birmingham. He will be attached to the Cathedral in that city.

The Rev. Mr. Campbell's career has been a spectacular one since the time when, at Oxford in 1895, he abandoned his plans to take orders in the Church of England and joined the Congregationalists as pastor of a church in Brighton. Eight years later, at the age of 36, he was made minister at the City Temple in the East End of London, a post he resigned on account of ill-health last month.

DR. GRANT SEEKS HEALTH.

The Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension, at Fifth Avenue and Tenth Street, has gone to Bedford Hills to recuperate from an attack of pneumonia early in the week as a result of a cold caught during a 50-mile ride in an open automobile which he made in order to conduct a funeral.

H. H. Baxter, sexton of the church, told inquirers yesterday that Dr. Grant is in no danger. Services were conducted at the church last night by the Rev. C. W. Naumann of Chicago.

CONGRESSMEN JOIN DEFENSE CAMPAIGN

MANY SENATORS IN LINE

Mr. O'Gorman Says He Will Do Everything in His Power to Advance Movement.

About one-third of the members of the National House of Representatives, as well as a large number of Senators, have written to the National Security League announcing their purpose to support a program for an adequate defense in the next Congress. Yesterday excerpts from the replies of the Senators and Congressmen so far received were made public by the Security League.

The names of Speaker Champ Clark of Missouri and of Senator O'Gorman of New York head the list. Mr. Clark wrote that in a speech delivered in San Francisco he indicated his views on the matter in question. He said he favored a policy of peace with honor, but that he had no sympathy with a "peace at any price" policy.

Senator O'Gorman wrote that he would do everything in his power to advance "the general object of preparedness for national defense." Senator Weeks of Massachusetts said he always had been and still was in favor of reasonable preparedness for national defense.

"I favor action by Congress," says Representative Joseph Walsh of Massachusetts, "which will secure to this country an adequate means of defense both by land and sea."

"My voice and vote will be for the full measure of defense to which the American people are entitled," says Representative John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, "and for such measures of the Army and Navy Boards as, in my opinion, will give such measure of defense or a step toward it."

Representative E. J. Hill of Connecticut, who says that he is against unnecessary expenditure of money for aggressive purposes and is particularly opposed to any bond issue, states, however, that he is "heartily in favor of all legislation necessary for the absolute defense of the United States against attack from abroad."

Where New York Members Stand.

The replies of seven New York Congressmen are incorporated in statements given out by the league as follows:

Michael F. Conry, Fifteenth District: "I am positively in favor of retaining for our country military and naval forces sufficient in strength to enforce respect and guarantee peace perpetually."

Walter M. Chandler, Nineteenth District: "I am in favor of greatly strengthening both our army and our navy in every branch and in all lines of the service, to the end that we may be amply prepared to defend the country and the flag in any emergency that might arise."

Jacob A. Cantor, Twentieth District: "I am in favor of having our country thoroughly prepared for national defense, and will do all I can in or out of Congress to aid that result."

Walter W. Magee, Thirty-fifth District: "I stand for America first, last and all the time. I am against militarism, but believe in a regular army of sufficient size to form a sufficient nucleus to sustain, at any and all times, the honor, dignity, and traditions of this republic. I am in favor of the building of a modern navy second to none as the best safeguard for peace, a first line of defense that in all human probability cannot be successfully attacked."

Harry H. Pratt, Thirty-seventh District: "I am in sympathy with the aims and purposes of the National Security League and favor giving to the American people the full measure of defense to which they are entitled and which the situation of this nation demands."

S. Wallace Dempsey, Fortieth District: "I earnestly favor adequate preparation for national defense."

Charles Bennett Smith, Forty-first District: "I am in favor of more adequate national defense."

Two members from New Jersey, J. H. Capstick and Frederick R. Lehlbach, add their names to the four New Jersey members who have previously gone on record in favor of adequate national defense.

Representative Capstick says that he finds the sentiment throughout his district is in favor of strengthening national defenses.

Mr. Lehlbach writes: "I am heartily in favor of increased preparedness for the defense of this country."

From Delaware, Senator du Pont writes that he is glad that the League has been organized and the question of national defense which should have been considered long ago is now receiving attention which it so eminently deserves.

Senator Harding's View.

Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio states his position as follows: "I heartily favor a program of preparedness, especially naval. The aerial service and submarine force should be equal to all possible needs. It is not wise to rush to militarism and we will not do it. We do need an army double the present force, with some practical method of providing trained officers for the available volunteers, aside from practical encouragement and through training of the militia of the several states."

"I am emphatically in favor of thorough and adequate preparedness, and shall so speak and vote in the coming Congress," says Representative Nicholas Longworth

Representative A. M. Overmyer of Ohio, writes that President Wilson will no doubt recommend to the next Congress a considerable program for National defense and he adds, "I have no doubt that it will be of such a nature that I can consistently support the same."

One of the most important letters from Illinois comes from Representative Fred A. Britten, who says that he has just returned to this country after a seven-months' trip to the Far East and is now more than ever convinced that an effective council for national defense and for national preparedness for any emergency must not be delayed any longer. Other favorable expressions from Illinois Congressmen come from Representatives McKinley, Fuller, Sabath and Sterling.

Letters from the West and Middle West indicate the growth of sentiment in favor of adequate preparedness in those sections of the country.

Representative D. R. Anthony of Kansas, who is a member of the Committee on Military Affairs, says that there should be an increase of a regular army of fifteen regiments of field artillery, fifteen regiments in infantry and five regiments of cavalry.

DESTROYERS WIN LAURELS.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 10.—Thousands of officers and men from the Atlantic Fleet visited Newport today following the end of the war game which they called the greatest ever held by the navy on the Atlantic Coast. The lesson is regarded as a valuable one for all hands.

The conduct of the submarines was good, save in the case of the D-1, Lieutenant C. Q. Wright commanding, which had to be convoyed to Block Island by the destroyer MacDougal, because of engine trouble. What minor troubles other submarines had were repaired by the officers and crews. Some of the submarines were far south during the game.

The destroyers Cassin and MacDougal discovered the "Blue" fleet and in general the destroyers covered themselves with glory, so much so that Admiral Fletcher sent a wireless message of congratulations to Captain William S. Sims, in command of the flotilla, for the strenuous and successful efforts in locating the enemy, these vessels covering about two thousand miles at speeds of from fifteen to thirty knots, running almost to Bermuda.

The ships will be here until the end of the week, when the battleships will go to their navy yards for two weeks' overhauling.

The commander of the fleet, Admiral Frank F. Fletcher, arrived this afternoon on the flagship Wyoming.

DEBATE NATIONAL DEFENSE.

Villard and Menken Speak at the Sunday Evening Forum.

Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of The Evening Post, and S. Stanwood Menken, President of the National Security League, debated national preparedness at the Sunday Evening Forum of the Free Synagogue, 36 East Sixty-eighth Street, last night. Mr. Menken advocated the strongest possible navy and an army of sufficient size to form, with the National Guard, the nucleus of a great volunteer army in the event of a national crisis. Mr. Villard, on the other hand, said he favored the smallest possible army, and suggested one of 25,000 men, the size of the regular establishment prior to the Spanish war. He also said he favored a navy of about the size of the navy prior to 1898.

The Rev. Dr. Stephen S. Wise, rabbi of the Free Synagogue, made a short speech at the end of the debate and deplored the fact that President Wilson had come out for national preparedness. He also denounced those who would throw the United States into war with Japan, and praised Japan for its dignified and conciliatory bearing toward America. He named William Randolph Hearst and Richmond Pearson Hobson as "lunatics" who would, if they could, bring on war between Japan and this country. Likewise he paid his compliments to the "Sand Lot orators" of San Francisco who, he said, wanted to run the foreign affairs of this country. Dr. Wise came out unqualifiedly for disarmament.

Mr. Menken opened and closed the debate. He said it was one of the good signs of the times that preparedness, which he characterized as the most vital question before the country, was being discussed in church and synagogue, and that the people were awaking to the importance of the issue. He cited army and navy officers as his authority for the statement that the United States had not sufficient ammunition in reserve to fight a battle an hour long, and said that a first-class power, once it had defeated the navy, could land an army of 40,000 men on Long Island and capture New York City in three days and "demand any tribute of any size desired."

"An army and navy adequate to give America the protection needed is the best of insurance, and I am in favor of that insurance, no matter what it costs," said Mr. Menken.

Mr. Villard said that military preparedness such as was advocated meant the loss by the United States of its moral position in the world. He said that the army and navy lobby in Washington was worse than the lobby maintained by any "big business."

"The lobby of the big interests takes a rest now and then, but the army and navy lobby goes on forever," he said.

Naval officers, and not the builders, Mr. Villard said, were responsible for whatever defects existed in the submarine arm of the navy. Referring to army and navy legislation in the coming Congress, he said that the naval estimates to be submitted to President Wilson would call for $250,000,000, while Secretary Garrison's army estimate will be about $300,000,000. The yearly cost of the navy, he said, exceeded the returns on all the endowments of all the universities in the world, while the national defense bill of the Government called for an expenditure of about 75 cents out of every $1 appropriated by Congress for all purposes.

"Conscription lurks in the background," said Mr. Villard, "if the policy of those who advocate preparedness is carried out. Army officers have told me that if the proposed military legislation is enacted it will mean conscription, perhaps as it affects the National Guard, but conscription in a way, just the same."

SAYS WE NEED FOREIGN POLICY

Norman Angell Asserts the Lack of One Will Bring Us to Disaster.

Norman Angell, author of "The Great Illusion," spoke yesterday morning on "America and the World Crisis" at the Free Synagogue, in Carnegie Hall.

"I believe this country will have great and bloody wars in the future," he said, "but they will not be fought on our soil. The Monroe Doctrine and the Japanese immigration question are but two of the many causes that may precipitate bloodshed. If Americans do not wish to witness such a state of affairs here as Europeans are now facing, they must do something active to prevent it. By inert indifference to the problems confronting us we are merely heading for the catastrophe.

"Military preparedness without preparedness of policy will avail us nothing if we are going to have a great army and navy. We should first have a definite international policy. This is what most of the European nations have lacked. Great Britain's policy with reference to the German problem only became certain twenty-four hours before war was declared.

"What is the policy that American armament is to protect! For always, in the last resort, an army and navy are used to protect, not a country, but a policy. No amount of military preparedness can give her real security.

"If our present attitude is persisted in it will some day land this country, however great its military force, in disaster, in possibly long and exhausting wars, which will transform the character of American civilization and Prussianize it. All such things may be avoided by real preparedness, preparedness on the side of policy.

"Although our condition will be relatively better after the present war, we shall, as a matter of fact, be worse off than previously. Europe is not going to be a good market after the wholesale destruction that is now going on there. The people will not be able to live in luxury. South American countries will not be able to obtain in Europe, as in the past, capital for the development of their resources."

NAMES NEW DESTROYERS.

Daniels Honors the Memory of Six Noted Navy Officers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Secretary Daniels tonight announced the selection of names for six destroyers now under construction. They are to be designated as the Sampson, Rowan, Davis, Allen, Wilkes and Shaw.

The Sampson is named for Rear Admiral William T. Sampson, who was in command of the naval forces operating against Spain in the West Indies in 1898. The Rowan is named for Vice Admiral Stephen Clegg Rowan, who served in the Mexican and civil wars. The Davis is named for Rear Admiral Charles Henry Davis, who was a member of the board on ironclad ships which recommended the construction of the Monitor, and was a flag officer in 1862.

The Allen is named for Commander William Henry Allen, who entered the navy in 1800 and died in 1813. He was Third Lieutenant of the Chesapeake in 1807 when she struck her flag to the British ship Leopard, and he fired the only gun from the Chesapeake.

The Wilkes is named for Rear Admiral Charles Wilkes, who commanded the expedition of 1838-42 which explored islands of the Pacific. He commanded the San Jacinto in 1861 when she took from the British steamer Trent the Confederate Commissioners Mason and Slidell. The Shaw is named for Captain John Shaw, another early hero of the navy, who died at Philadelphia in 1823.

In the center of the commercial district

The Woolworth Building is probably the most central point in New York's commercial district. It faces City Hall Park, a short distance from the East River, the North River and the Financial Section.

Out of Mr. Woolworth's desire to see the Irving National Bank properly housed grew his idea of constructing the Woolworth Building so successfully located in the center of the commercial district.

TAFT EXPOUNDS HIS PEACE PLANS

CITES MODERN PRECEDENTS

What Arbitration Did for America and Britain It Can Do for Others, He Says.

When the great war in Europe ends it will find both victor and vanquished in a state of exhaustion the like of which generations have not seen, said ex-President William H. Taft, in the course of an address he delivered in the Mount Morris Baptist Church, 126th Street and Fifth Avenue, yesterday morning. Mr. Taft, who is President of the League to Enforce Peace, organized in Independence Hall, Philadelphia, last June, talked of the purposes of that organization, and held out the hope that the time would come when arbitration would make it easier to avert war.

An audience that taxed the capacity of the church greeted the ex-President, while hundreds of others were unable to get in. It was Mr. Taft's first appearance here since his return from the West, and he never looked in better condition.

"We have," he said, "a dreadful cataclysm before us in Europe. We have been brought very close to it. We have been made to realize that the attitude of the neutrals with respect to war is growing more and more difficult and nearer and nearer to the controversy. We are going on, because of the changes in the methods of carrying on war, to a state of things where every war affects all the world more and more closely.

"We have had a crisis in our own affairs, in our own relations to Germany and to England, and others of the belligerents, which we would not have had a hundred years ago, due to the new methods of making war. We find that the interests of neutrals are sacrificed more in modern conditions of warfare than they ever were before. And so it was that a number of gentlemen met at the Century Club one night in a postprandial meeting. The gentlemen who were gathered there agreed on a plan which they thought, if worked out—not the details but the general features of a plan—might make war less probable. We are not, we hope, attempting the impossible. We shall continue to have war as long as Governments are made of men, and men have the human nature and the defects of human nature that lead to controversy, and ultimately to war. And the business of men who are practical men is to look about for some plan, not to abolish war, but to furnish a means of avoiding war, furnish some means by which war when it threatens shall be made less probable."

Mr. Taft then outlined the purposes of the League to Enforce Peace, the first of which is that all justiciable questions, capable of settlement on principles of law and equity by a court, arising between nations, which can not be settled by negotiation, shall be submitted to an international court to be established by the league, and that that court shall have the power to decide whether the question before it is one that can be settled, and if it can not be, shall have the right to refer it to a council of conciliation, which shall hear the controversy, negotiate between the parties to the dispute, and finally recommend a settlement.

Ready to Fight for Peace.

"Also," added Mr. Taft, "it was decided that if any of the nations bound by the league to submit their questions to either the court or the council of conciliation should fail to do so, but instead begin hostile acts and war against any other member of the league with whom the controversy was had, then all the rest of the league by economic and military force should defend the one who was thus prematurely attacked. And by that threat we hope that war may be avoided. If you had ten or twelve or fifteen nations in this league, and a nation intending to begin war faced the probability that all the rest would protect the nation against which it intended to bring the war, we feel that the moral force of that obligation would make war very unlikely."

The league also proposed, Mr. Taft pointed out, the holding of international congresses for the discussion of questions of international law, and framing, in a way, a kind of legislative body the purpose of which would be to enlarge international law, with an international court to administer it.

After citing the hundred years of peace between the United States and Great Britain, despite the many differences which had arisen, and the good grace with which both countries had submitted to arbiters' awards against them, Mr. Taft said:

"Now, that is the kind of experience that helped to put us in a proper condition for arbitration. Unless you are willing to lose in an arbitration you are not fitted for arbitration. Unless your state of mind is such that you are willing to play the game, then let's fight all the time, because an arbitration in which, if I may use the expression, the dice are loaded, is no arbitration at all. In other words, when we submit ourselves to a court we must be willing to abide the judgment. It's like the old orthodox, Puritan, strict views we had in Connecticut that required that a man, if he wished to be saved, should be willing to be damned. And so, if we go into an arbitration, we must be willing to abide the judgment of the court.

An Anglo-Saxon Example.

"Now, we have permanent arbitration between Canada, Great Britain, and the United States. We have a permanent arbitration to settle the matter of boundary waters, exactly the question that arose in Kansas against Colorado and in Missouri against Illinois. And they are sitting all the time taking up these questions along the border. And so we have a permanent Claims Commission that sits as an arbitration to settle present and future claims to arise. Therefore, I say that the precedent of an international court is right before us, and it is working practically."

Discussing the question of the obligation on the part of all members of the league to protect that member of the league against whom another member attempts to bring war, Mr. Taft said:

"You say that treaties won't bind a nation to perform an obligation that is so burdensome as that. Well, we have it in this war. France had no relation to Serbia; England had no relation to Serbia, or the relations between Serbia and Russia and between Serbia and Austria, and yet England because of her obligation to Belgium, France because of other obligations, and offensive and defensive alliance with Russia, those two nations have gone in and risked their entire integrity, growing out of treaty obligations. And yet you say that treaties are always broken. Sometimes they are, but ought we to proceed on the theory that treaties are not to be kept? Why, you would break up society if you proceeded on the theory that contracts were not kept between individuals simply because sometimes they are broken and it leads to a lawsuit."

DR. LYNCH PRAISES WILSON.

Peace Advocate Calls His a New Standard of Diplomacy.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—Dr. Frederick Lynch, Secretary of the Carnegie Church Peace Union, addressing the International Peace Congress today, praised President Wilson's handling of the German dispute arising out of the sinking of the Lusitania as having established a higher standard of diplomacy than had hitherto prevailed.

"Notice," said Dr. Lynch, "when President Wilson, rising above the low and universal conception of national greatness, and carrying it up into that level where we judge great men, insisted that the first duty of the United States was not retaliation, not revenge, not protecting her honor, not even seeking reparation, but was the securing of safety on the seas of all innocent people, and the rescuing of Germany from her mad course. Notice, we say, how many Christian men in high places excoriated him and spoke with sneers and jeers. When men put self first they fought day and night. When they learned to put service first they had peace. The same law will hold with nations."

Measuring up to modern demands

Library Bureau is always alert to the trend of modern business. That is why it was quick to recognize the importance of the mechanical posting machine.

This machine opened up a new field of usefulness, and today, the L. B. card ledger is used in connection with all makes of posting machines.

The card ledger is the most practical method of keeping accounts, whether you have a few hundred or many thousands. Its advantages over book and loose-leaf include the handling of more accounts, in less time, with least trouble.

When used with a posting machine, it measures up like a soldier to the demand for quick work and accuracy. Its operation is simple, and postings are easily kept up to date.

Would you like to know some of the businesses which are profitably using the L. B. card ledger on a mechanical posting device? You are welcome to the information.

If you have a posting machine in your office, we'll be glad to demonstrate the added advantage of the card ledger.

SPARE ARMENIANS, POPE ASKS SULTAN

GERMANS RESENT BLAME

ROME, Oct. 10.—Mgr. Dolci, the Apostolic Delegate at Constantinople, having reported to the Holy See on the sufferings of the Armenians, Pope Benedict has written an autograph letter to the Sultan of Turkey interceding for the unfortunate people.

BERLIN, Oct. 10, (by Wireless to Tuckerton, N. J.).—"The Cologne Gazette refers to the accusations of Lord Cromer and the Marquis of Crewe in the House of Lords that German Consular officials encouraged the Turkish population to attack Armenians," says the Overseas News Agency. "The newspaper states that the purpose of these unfounded assertions is easy to comprehend. England wishes to divert the attention of neutrals from the violation of Greek neutrality, and, since the Belgian question is no longer novel enough, turns to new accusations."

TURKISH HORRORS IN PERSIA.

American-Educated Native Asks Aid for Thousands of Victims.

Shleeman Malek Yonan, a well-to-do Persian who was graduated from Washington and Lee University in 1913 and returned to his native city of Urumiah, has sent an appeal to the country that gave him his education to help the thousands of sufferers about him.

Mr. Yonan, whose nickname in college was Prince and who as a track athlete established the Washington and Lee record for the broad jump, makes his appeal in a letter written to a classmate on July 25, 1915, in which he describes as much of his terrible experience as the censors would pass. The letter is addressed to F. W. McWaine and has been printed in The Ring-Tum Phi, the Washington and Lee college weekly. It says in part:

"It would take volumes, as big as the Encyclopaedia Britannica to give to the world a picture so horrible. No such thing has happened since Creation.

"When Turkey declared war against the Allies, the Russians had a small army in Urumiah. A couple of months later the army was withdrawn from Urumiah. Now the sought chance had come to the Mussulmans. Oh, they did what they had contemplated, and a hundred per cent. more.

"From that day commenced our tortures and evil days. Honestly, as I am writing, the tears are running down my cheeks. I can't help crying. Thousands and thousands of our people—men, women, and children, have been butchered in cold blood. Thousands of girls from seven years up have been destroyed by the Moslems. Thousands have been forced against their will to become Mohammedans. Our churches are converted into stables—three-fourths of them burned. More than a hundred and twenty villages of Christians have been turned into ashes. Today there is no habitation left for us. Our own houses have been burned—property taken away—absolutely nothing left. Not being satisfied with this, the cruel Moslems imposed a heavy fine upon certain persons. There was a heavy fine on me. I couldn't find the money. Then I was warned to hide myself; if not I would mount the scaffold. I had to borrow the money to pay the fine.

"Well, I suppose you would think perhaps that was enough for me. But this was merely an introduction to the greater horrors. My folks had fled to Russia when they had a chance. My little brother and myself were left behind—found it impossible to go, so we had to stay.

"For exactly four months I hid myself. A Moslem friend of mine hid me. Imagine four months in a dark room, not being able to see even sunlight. Three times I escaped the capture. God himself saved me. The authorities were hunting me hard. Why they were so diligently hunting for me I do not know.

"The Christianity has absolutely perished here. About twelve thousand have perished by famine, murder and typhoid. Thanks to the American missionaries; they did a heroic work. It was their efforts which saved the remaining Christians.

"As a friend, college mate, and classmate, I appeal to you for help. We are making appeals everywhere. The people are starving to death."

In submitting the letter for publication, Mr. McWaine accompanied it with an appeal in Yonan's behalf, saying that contributions might be sent to him, at Lexington, Va., or direct to Shleeman Malek Yonan, Urumiah, Persia.

TO PLEAD FOR ARMENIANS.

Mass Meeting to be Held at Century Theatre Sunday.

The Armenian Atrocities Committee of 70 Fifth Avenue, through its secretary, Professor Samuel T. Dutton, announced yesterday that a mass meeting would be held in the Century Theatre next Sunday afternoon, when the situation in Turkey would be discussed. It will be under the joint auspices of the committee and the organization known as Armenian Sympathizers, which has on its rolls the names of more than 20,000 persons. The Rev. Dr. James L. Barton of Boston, ex-President of Euphrates College; Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, and several prominent Armenians will speak. Several missionaries, recently returned from Turkey, are expected to be present, and will tell of their experiences in Armenia.

The meeting is called primarily, says a statement issued by the joint committee, to make a protest in the name of the American people against what has every appearance of being a governmental policy on the part of Turkey to wipe out the entire non-Moslem population of Turkey.

The secondary purpose of the mass meeting is to interest the public in the necessity of raising funds for those whose needs can be reached through the activities of the embassy at Constantinople. This has the hearty support of Henry Morgenthau, our Ambassador to Turkey, who has already received $100,000 from the American Committee.

It was announced yesterday that Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore had accepted membership on the Armenian Atrocities Committee, among the members of which are Bishop Greer, Dr. Barton, Cleveland H. Dodge, Oscar S. Straus, and other prominent men.

The committee will issue tickets of admission, which may be obtained from Professor Dutton at 70 Fifth Avenue, or at the headquarters of the Armenian Sympathizers, at 175 Fifth Avenue.

Prays for Morgenthau's Work.

Dr. J. H. Jowett, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, in leading his congregation in prayer yesterday, remembered Henry Morgenthau, American Ambassador to Turkey, and prayed that the Envoy's efforts may continue successful in obtaining protection for the Armenians. Dr. Jowett also prayed that the nurses may be able to continue their work.

Trains Kill Two Boys.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Oct. 10.—Two boys were killed last night at railroad crossings here. George Lloyd, 16 years old, a son of Police Sergeant William Lloyd, died in General Hospital from injuries received when he was struck by a freight train of the Central Railroad of New Jersey. James Dennison, 20 years old, of 433 Felton Street, was instantly killed when a Long Branch division train hit him at Elizabeth Avenue. There are no gates at either crossing.

NEW HALL FOR VASSAR ON 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Three Alumnae to Erect Building to Cost Several Hundred Thousand Dollars.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Two thousand visitors here for the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Vassar College, which began this afternoon, were told that Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken, President of the college, would make the formal announcement tomorrow that $60,000 was to be presented to the college as a foundation for a $150,000 fund to build an alumnae hall.

Mrs. Avery Coonley of Chicago, class of 1896, and her sister, Mrs. Elon Hooker of Greenwich, Conn., class of 1894, and another graduate whose name was not obtainable tonight, are the donors of the $60,000.

The college authorities plan to build two wings on the new hall, which are to contain apartments for the unmarried members of the Faculty. The hall will be erected on Rock Lot, opposite the college.

The need of spiritual gifts from the colleges to American life was emphasized by President W. H. P. Faunce of Brown University in the anniversary sermon this afternoon.

"Some colleges for men have gone astray in the pursuit of ideals of scientific research divorced from life, and some have interpreted too narrowly the idea of vocation," he said. "Our women's colleges have never yet followed these false gods. The gift most needed today from all the colleges is in the realm of international relations. The appalling tragedy of Europe, which has involved already Asia and Africa and has threatened America, has stripped us of many illusions and brought home to us the primitive facts of national and racial psychology. We find that the roots of war are not in the desire for bread or gold, or even for wife or child. The roots of war are sentiments of devotion to an ideal entity, the State. And if the roots of war are ideal the remedy for war is in the ideal realm also, in the renovated spirit of man. If we can through the American college convey some such gift to the world we shall fulfill the most ardent hopes of those who laid their foundations in sacrificial toil and undying faith."

Following Dr. Faunce's address there was a reception in the athletic circle for delegates from other colleges here for a series of student conferences this week.

This evening an organ recital was given in the chapel by T. Tertius Noble, organist of St. Thomas's Church, New York.

Tomorrow the pageant of Athenae will be given by the students.

CHARGES MINOR JILTED HER.

Anna Duchner Starts Suit Involving Jewish Ceremonial.

Sam Raucher is 20 years old. Anna Duchner, who is 28, is suing him for $5,000 for alleged breach of promise to marry her. When the case comes up in City Court today Judge Ransome will have to decide whether Raucher, who is a waiter, was old enough to break a promise to marry when he was not old enough to wed without his parents' consent.

Raucher has engaged Rudolph Stand of 170 Broadway as counsel, and the young woman has retained Meyer Glickstein of 299 Broadway. In April, 1914, Miss Duchner got a judgment of $1,044 by default against Raucher and had him put in Ludlow Street Jail. She relented when the waiter promised to marry her. Sheriff Grifenhagen opened the prison doors and they hurried to the Marriage License Bureau. There no license was obtained because of Raucher's age, and the young couple went away with sad faces—she to her millinery shop, he back to jail.

Raucher retained Mr. Stand and he was released on a writ. The young woman then brought suit again. So the defendant is raising the age question and also is contending that they met through a schatchen, or marriage broker. He called on Miss Duchner several times, but spoke no words of love. One night he went to a feast at her house, and right in the midst of it a crash of a china plate was heard. That, he explains, stands for mazeltuff, (congratulations,) and the ceremonial of an engagement. Thus began a discussion over the wine, schnapps, sponge cake, and gefillte fisch about marriage, and the young woman, he asserts, said something about a wedding. A day or two later, he declares, Miss Duchner met him on the street and asked him for the names of his friends, he not knowing that they were to be invited as wedding guests.

The plaintiff is still willing to marry him, but if he refuses she wants $5,000. Raucher says he has not that amount of money any way.

FINDS HIS HOME RIFLED.

Burglars Ransack Rooms of W. J. Paglieri, Jr., in His Absence.

William J. Paglieri, Jr., who lives on the top floor of the five-story apartment house at 2,444 Valentine Avenue, the Bronx, came home last night to find his rooms in disorder. Burglars had entered the front apartment on the same floor, which was occupied by Mrs. Loock, by making their way down the dumbwaiter shaft from the roof.

From the rooms of Mrs. Loock, a large amount of silver had been taken, and then the thieves had visited Mr. Paglieri's apartment by way of a fire-escape. There they stole about $200 worth of silverware, and broke up furniture worth $90 more. The police are working on the case.

Carnegie Helps Buy Church Organ.

Special to The New York Times.

NESHANIC, N. J., Oct. 10.—Andrew Carnegie has contributed $1,000 toward the cost of a new pipe organ which has just been installed in the Reformed Church here. The Rev. John Hart, pastor of the church, solicited the gift. The organ cost $3,000, and will be dedicated on Oct. 20. J. Warren Andrews, organist of the Church of the Divine Paternity in New York, will play the organ at the dedication ceremonies.

as it is known that the President wishes to be back in the White House with his bride before the opening of Congress early in December. An early announcement of the date is expected.

There is even talk in some quarters that the wedding will take place within the next day or two. The main reason for this surmise is that Secretary and Mrs. McAdoo have deferred until Tuesday their departure for the Pacific Coast. They were to have started last week. One of the official associates of Mr. McAdoo said tonight that the Secretary had been obliged to remain here on account of an accumulation of business and that there was no significance in the change of plans. The idea of an immediate marriage is offset by the theory that, as the trip of Secretary and Mrs. McAdoo to California will occupy a month, the wedding will not take place until after their return.

Miss Margaret Wilson having deferred her return to the White House, the preparations for the reception of its new mistress have been placed in the hands of Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, cousin to the President. The friendship between Miss Bones and Mrs. Galt is so close as to lead to the idea that Miss Bones will continue her residence at the White House, where she has been practically in charge since the death of the late Mrs. Wilson, on Aug. 6, 1914. Prior to that time she was Mrs. Wilson's private secretary and closest companion.

Engagement Pleased Mrs. McAdoo.

While Miss Wilson and Miss Bones were the first members of the family to adopt Mrs. Galt as an intimate, the acquaintance of Mrs. Galt and Mrs. McAdoo dates much further back than last Autumn. Mrs. McAdoo, then Miss Eleanor Wilson, was one of the young people frequently entertained by Miss Gertrude Gordon at her home and at the Columbia Country Club with Mrs. Galt as Miss Gordon's favorite chaperone. Mrs. Galt was Miss Gordon's legal guardian. Mrs. McAdoo was also the first of President Wilson's daughters to openly express satisfaction at the prospect of her father's second marriage. With her husband, she was a member of the dinner party in the State Dining Room last Wednesday night when the formal announcement of the engagement was made.

While Mrs. Galt and her mother have been frequent guests at the White House to luncheon or dinner, several of the President's future brothers-in-law have met him for the first time since the announcement of the engagement. The President made a formal call at Mrs. Bolling's apartment on Thursday, and since then he has met most of the family in Washington at Mrs. Galt's home.

The President will deliver an address tomorrow morning before the Daughters of the American Revolution, and on Wednesday will lay the cornerstone of a new memorial amphitheatre at Arlington National Cemetery. Mrs. Galt is expected to be present on both occasions.

Messages from the rulers of foreign countries congratulating the President on his coming marriage began arriving at the White House today. The first to come was from President Poincaré of France. The Ambassadors and Ministers of the various countries already have congratulated the President.

Among the congratulations received by Mrs. Galt were those from an aged negress who has been on the domestic staff of the Galt household all through its existence and whose great ambition now is to go with "Miss Edith" to the White House.

BOY THIEF SURRENDERS.

Tells Police He Is Tired of Dodging—Wanted Here.

RUTHERFORD, N. J., Oct. 10.—"I'm tired dodging the police so I want to give myself up," said William Larkin, 18 years old, when he walked into the station at East Rutherford this afternoon. The boy told Chief McClelland that he was wanted in New York. He said he fled from that city last week.

Chief McClelland communicated with the New York police and learned that they were looking for Larkin to answer a charge of stealing $120 from the Stein Knitting Company, 135 East Twelfth Street. Larkin had been employed in the office of the knitting concern.

THREE FIREMEN KILLED.

Falling Wall Buries Richmond Men After $500,000 Blaze.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 10.—While firemen were at work among the ruins of buildings destroyed by fire early today a brick wall toppled over and buried them. R. M. Norment, Captain of Fire Company 1, was instantly killed. O. L. Atkinson and W. R. O'Delt were so badly injured that they died soon after reaching the hospital. A. K. Davenport and D. C. Johnson were seriously injured.

The fire, which destroyed Cronshaw's tobacco warehouse and a dozen other buildings, caused $500,000 damage.

PASTORS FOR EFFICIENCY.

Methodist Episcopal Convention Will Meet Tomorrow.

The Church Efficiency Convention of the New York Methodist Episcopal Conference will meet tomorrow in Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, in West 104th Street, between Columbus and Amsterdam Avenues. This is the mid-year assembly of the New York Conference, which includes about 300 ministers.

Many laymen have registered to attend the conference. At 9 o'clock tomorrow the delegates will gather at 150 Fifth Avenue, where four Fifth Avenue buses will take them on a tour of the institutional churches and playgrounds of the city. They will reach Grace Church at 11 o'clock, where the Rev. W. F. Compton, Superintendent of the Poughkeepsie District, will preside. Addresses will be delivered by Bishop Luther B. Wilson and Dr. Worth M. Tippey. After luncheon Ezra M. Tipple, D. D., President of Drew Theological Seminary, will preside at a meeting devoted to the discussion of the question, "What Is Church Efficiency?"

At 2 o'clock Fire Commissioner Adamson will preside. John Mitchell, Samuel Gompers, and William Wirt, who is in New York inaugurating the Gary school system, will deliver addresses. Later in the afternoon pastors from various districts will tell of plans which they hope to inaugurate. At 6:30 o'clock there will be a dinner, at which Commissioner of Public Charities Kingsbury will speak on "Charity and the Church." H. H. Fleming of Kingston and Warden Osborne of Sing Sing will also speak. Later there will be a private exhibition of motion pictures.

Urges Strike at Paterson Mills.

The Paterson members of the I. W. W. met yesterday afternoon at Haledon, N. J., just outside Paterson, to hear speeches from Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, Carlo Tresca, and Adolph Tressig. Miss Flynn attacked John Binson, the Paterson Chief of Police, for refusing to allow the meeting in the city. Now that the mills were running full time, she said, it was the chance for the I. W. W. workers to strike.

Brooklyn Pays $750,000 for Triangle Plays

Kemble of Brooklyn is a big man who knows big ideas when he sees them—which is the reason his Crescent Theatre has made money in a big way.

When Kemble observed that the TRIANGLE IDEA blocked everything else in the film world clean out of sight, he connected himself with TRIANGLE in the biggest way he could—in a bigger way than any exhibitor ever connected himself with any film enterprise before.

On October 8th Kemble crossed the Brooklyn Bridge into New York and signed for the exclusive rights to TRIANGLE PLAYS in Brooklyn for two years, binding himself to pay in that time nearly Three Quarters of a Million Dollars for the privilege.

The TRIANGLE PLAYS Kemble has secured for Brooklyn are the kind you can see here in New York at the KNICKERBOCKER THEATRE. All this week, for example:

"THE COWARD," with Frank Keenan.
"OLD HEIDELBERG," with Dorothy Gish.
"STOLEN MAGIC," with Raymond Hitchcock.
"A FAVORITE FOOL," with Eddie Foy.

Kemble of Brooklyn will go on making big money but his profits will now be greater than ever, for he will have the plays that produce the profits.

There are other Kembles in other cities. Many of them have already signed TRIANGLE contracts. More will be signed today—tomorrow and—for many days to come.

If you are interested in seeing what Kemble pays Three Quarters of a Million for the theatre is at Broadway and 38th Street.

Wrote Emerson, but, say
He didn't know about the pull
That wagons have to-day
He didn't know that wagon wheels,
Electrified, are what
The strongest star that ever pulled
Is not.
And other wheels on land and sea,
Electrified, bring forth
The East, West, South and North.
Today
Electricity is the way
To progress; the force
That drives along the course
Of success and, by gum,
It is going some.
"Hitch your wagon to a star"
Today is quite beside the mark;
If you would get there, near or far,
Hitch your wagon to a spark!

CALLS VOTING DUTY, NOT WOMAN'S RIGHT

The Rev. Dr. Holmes Would Have Every Citizen Assume Responsibility to State.

IDEAL OF TRUE DEMOCRACY

Ida V. Simonton Tells of Woman's Sphere in Africa—Mrs. Laidlaw Confident of Victory.

"Woman Suffrage," declared the Rev. John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the Church of the Messiah, at a meeting in the church last night, devoted chiefly to the question of women voting, "does not involve a discussion of women's rights, but rather the assumption of their duties to the State. The world is rather concerned with the duty each citizen owes the community than with any rights he may demand, and the relation of the sex of a person to his duties ought not to be considered.

"Equal suffrage to all regardless of sex, color, or the amount of property possessed is the ideal of every true democracy, and every extension of the privilege of voting has been the means of tearing down the barriers of class and making society firmer and better. The first victory for woman suffrage was won at Runnymede when the English Barons got the Magna Charta many centuries ago, and now any one who opposes suffrage for women is consciously or unwittingly an adherent of the autocratic form of government rather than of democracy."

Dr. Holmes was followed by Miss Ida V. Simonton of Pittsburgh, who has traveled and hunted much in the jungles of Africa. Miss Simonton declared that even in the French Congo, where Du Chaillu first discovered the gorilla, and where the most primitive conditions of life exist, the women exercise the full right to cast the ballot on every question of tribal import.

Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw, Chairman of the Manhattan Borough Branch of the Woman Suffrage Party, pleaded with the voters this November to remember to vote yes on the suffrage amendment regardless of how they voted on the new Constitution.

"Put us into a Constitution," she said. "It does not matter just now in which one. This year sees the culmination of seventy-five years of unremitting toil and endeavor on the part of the women of this State to carry out the greatest duty God ever gave the human race, to create an ideal democracy.

"We have put so much time and money into the campaign for suffrage this year," she went on, "that we can't afford to fail. In the name of expediency, I urge you not to permit any one to keep you from casting your vote for us on November 2. From Montauk Point to the Canadian border and from the Harlem River to the North Woods, we have been working and waiting for seventy-five years, and I appeal to you to prove that we have not spent our energy in vain.

"It is true we are breaking the Sabbath and expect to do so for several weeks to come in the greatest spiritual and material movement of all the ages. A house divided against itself cannot stand, and we are striving and working, inspired by the memory of those who have died in the cause, for the ideals of a true democracy."

Mrs. Laidlaw in reply to a question as to what she thought President Wilson's decision to vote for suffrage would do for the cause in New York declared that she would not dare say how much, but she felt almost as if the battle were won.

"Tens of thousands of votes will just come rolling in," she said. "The President has been considering the matter, of course, for a long while, and it is indeed fortunate for us in New York that he made his decision just at this time. Mrs. Galt may have had something to do with it, but you know his daughter, Margaret, has always been a strong supporter of ours."

LAYS EVILS TO SUFFRAGE.

E. P. Wheeler Thinks Women Voters at Fault in Colorado.

Everett P. Wheeler, Chairman of the Man-Suffrage Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, has written to Secretary of War Garrison in answer to the Secretary's assertion that giving the vote to women "does not seem to contain any danger," and that if woman suffrage is not a success "no harm will come from it." Great harm will come from such an extension of suffrage, Mr. Wheeler contends.

"We think that the result in Colorado is probably the fairest test," Mr. Wheeler says in his letter to Secretary Garrison. "Women have had the suffrage in that State since 1893. Many of them have taken an active part in politics. One of the first things their committee did when President Wilson was inaugurated was to telegraph him asking for offices. They favored the adoption of that evil system, the recall of judicial decisions, by the amendment of the Constitution of Colorado adopted in 1912. If a court in that State should decide that an act of the Legislature is in violation of the bill of rights contained in the Constitution it has no power to enforce this decision for a period of ninety days after its judgment is entered.

"You have seen the inability of the Governor of that State to protect the rights of person and property and to enforce the laws, and have been obliged to send United States troops thither and keep them there for over eight months to do what the State Government should have done. As we see it, this lawlessness and disorder are largely the result of the constant interference of women politicians to harass the Executive; and by hysterical appeals, and what can be best described as nagging, to keep him from decisive and manly action.

"Again, is there any one reform which the suffragists advocate as a party? If there is I do not know it. Their leaders, Miss Shaw and Mrs. Catt, have distinctly said during the present campaign that all they were interested in is political suffrage and that they would not take sides on any other question. They have undoubtedly done this in order to secure as many votes as possible. How is that attitude consistent with your proposition?"

DR. WISE URGES SUFFRAGE.

Tells Why He Thinks New Jersey Women Should Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 10.—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of the Free Synagogue, New York, today delivered an address at the Apollo Theatre in which he contended the ballot should be granted to the women in New Jersey.

"In New York State, not ten years shall have passed after equal suffrage before men and women will vote in the school houses," he said. "We have long objected, and rightly, to saloon politics, but under the present régime it is inevitable. It is our business to wrest the issue away from the rum interests and make it as it should be, a domestic concern. Once given the vote, women will co-operate with men to the end that voting and all the functions of political life go on at places wholesome and fitting.

"Assuming that men are to vote because potentially they are the country's armsbearers, what of the infinitely more significant service in the State by women, who do not bear arms, but who bear the men that bear the arms of the republic?

"Capitalism need not be fearful of the menace of woman's vote, save for such capital as is invested in morally vicious occupation or industry. For example, certain interests do well from their own point of view to oppose equal suffrage, because it will wage relentless warfare against every dollar invested in such things as are injurious to the life of the State and its people."

PRAISE PRESIDENT'S STAND.

But Western Suffragists Want Him to Favor Federal Amendment

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Miss Alice Paul, Chairman of the Congressional Union, upon her return from the Woman Voters' Convention in California, today expressed her pleasure at the declarations for suffrage of President Wilson, Secretary of War Garrison, Joseph Tumulty, and others of the President's official family. She said, however, that she hoped they would not limit their support to the movement in the States, but would indorse the proposed Susan B. Anthony amendment to the Federal Constitution.

Mrs. Sara Bard Field and Miss Frances Jolliffe of California, as envoys from the Woman Voters' Convention, are coming to Washington to present to the President and Congress petitions from the women voters of the West in favor of the amendment. They will call at the White House and lay before the President thousands of petitions and resolutions, and the indorsement from Governors of equal suffrage States.

Miss Jolliffe is a Democrat and a sister-in-law of Rudolph Spreckels, and made campaign speeches for President Wilson.

$10 for Schoolgirl Suffrage Poster.

A prize of a $10 gold piece is offered by Mrs. Laurent Oppenheim for the best Votes-for-Women drawing to be made on Thursday afternoon, Suffrage Day, at the School Art League Exhibition at the Fine Arts Building. It is to be a time contest by fifty Washington Irving High School girls. A poster is to be drawn in an hour. The fifty easels will be set up in the hall and the spectators will watch the contest.

DIFFER ON STATION DRINKS.

Dr. Reisner Says Pennsylvania Will Stop Sale; Baker Says Not.

In a sermon last night on "A Cure for Booze," the Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, in West 104th Street, said he expected New York to follow the example of Chicago and become "dry" on Sundays. He said many corporations were banishing liquor from their property, mentioning specifically the Pennsylvania Railroad in its stations here and in Philadelphia.

When H. H. Baker, Superintendent of the restaurant and dining car service of the Pennsylvania lines between New York and Baltimore, was asked about this he replied:

"A year ago last February an order was issued to banish liquor from all the station restaurants when the license expired, but twenty-four hours before the expiration of the license this order was countermanded, and we were ordered to continue the sale of liquor. And on Oct. 1 another license was obtained for the New York Station, which I recall because I had to pay an additional $300 for it. Four of the seven restaurants under my charge between here and Baltimore are continuing the sale of liquor."

Mr. Baker said the sale of liquor on the cars of the Pennsylvania system east of Pittsburgh had been discontinued since July 11, 1912. A similar order went into effect on the New York, New Haven & Hartford about a year ago.

TENNESSEE GETS IN, CABINS RIPPED AWAY

ONLY ONE SERIOUSLY HURT

Nearly Two Hundred Transferred at Night in the Sound to the Concord and Safely Landed Here.

The steamer Concord of the Colonial Line arrived from Providence at her pier, foot of West Houston Street, at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning, an hour and a half late, because she had stopped south of Fisher's Island on Saturday night to take on 191 passengers of the Bay State steamer Tennessee, which had been rammed by the schooner Samuel S. Thorp.

Several passengers who had received cuts and bruises in the collision were treated at the pier by Dr. O'Mara of the French Hospital. Robert Keating, 54 years old, a traveling salesman, of Woodhaven, L. I., who occupied Cabin 9 on the upper deck of the Tennessee, was so severely injured about the back that he was sent in an ambulance to the French Hospital. His condition is serious.

After transferring her passengers the Tennessee proceeded under her own steam to New York, and made fast at the Bay State Line pier, foot of Peck Slip, at 11:30 A. M. Her port side forward of the beam above the waterline was ripped open and torn out two decks deep for forty feet.

Cabins a Tangled Wreck.

All that remained of seven cabins on the upper deck was a mass of twisted ironwork, tangled bedding, and splinters. The bowsprit of the schooner dug through to the bulkhead, and cleaned out every berth. The washstands and lockers, and in some cases the heavy china washbowls, had been hurled through the bulkhead into the saloon amidships.

Captain George Enos said it was remarkable that no passenger was killed when the schooner ripped out the staterooms while they were in their berths. "The passengers seemed to be just pushed out of their cabins into the saloon by the bowsprit," said Captain Enos. "Two women put on their life-belts, but there was not much excitement. The stewards got blankets for those who did not have time to dress, including one woman who had six small children with her. The cabins demolished were 9, 11, 15, 17, 24 and 45. All were occupied. In addition to the cabins the silver lockers and a lavatory were carried away."

Crash Heard on Concord.

Speaking of the collision, Captain Enos said the steamer was making about 16 knots, with Pilot John Anderson steering. The night was dark and slightly overcast and the port light of the schooner was sighted on the port bow about three minutes before the collision.

"Pilot Anderson sheered to starboard," the Captain said, "and believed he had cleared the schooner, which was bound east, running free with a northwest wind at about 8 knots. Suddenly the schooner luffed and her bow swung into the side of the Tennessee with a crash that was heard on the Concord, which came to our assistance.

"After all the passengers had been mustered in the saloon the Concord came alongside, and planks were run out, on which all were transferred. After an examination to see that no damage had been done below the water line I proceeded to New York. The steamer will go into drydock at Hoboken tomorrow, and it will probably cost $10,000 to make repairs."

Robert J. Noble, General Manager of the Bay State Line, said the schooner was to blame for luffing instead of keeping her course. The pilot on the Concord told Mr. Noble that he saw the Thorp suddenly sheer right into the Tennessee.

The Concord had 200 passengers from Providence, and with the 191 from the Tennessee was much crowded. The men gave up their cabins to the women and children and slept in the saloon on blankets.

The Samuel S. Thorp is a three-masted schooner from Perth Amboy, and was bound from Newport News with coal for Newburyport, Mass., in charge of Captain Pierce. After the collision she was towed into New London with her headgear carried away.

Justice Werner Rapidly Recovering.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Justice William E. Werner of the Supreme Court of this State was reported today as rapidly recovering from an attack of dysentery, which began two weeks ago. Justice Werner's general condition was said to be satisfactory.

Forty Americans on the Cameronia.

The Anchor liner Cameronia did not leave New York for Liverpool and Glasgow until 9 o'clock yesterday morning because she had to wait for a quantity of war munitions for Great Britain. Among her passengers was Dr. Lee de Forest, who was going to London on business. The Cameronia carried the overland mail from Australia, which arrived from San Francisco too late to catch the New York on Saturday. She had thirty-five first, 250 second, and 370 third class passengers, among whom were forty American citizens.

Call Jewish Congress American.

In accepting his election as an advisory member of the Jewish Congress Organization Committee Dr. Henry Moskowitz has written the Secretary of the committee defending as strictly American in spirit the plan to form a congress of Jews which shall "assert the claims of Isreal among the nations and seek fundamental civil and political rights" for Jews in the countries at war.

Church Fifty Years Old.

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., Oct. 10.—Today was the fiftieth anniversary of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and the commemoration services were largely attended. The 11 o'clock service was conducted by Bishop Fields of Newark. At the close a committee of the vestry distributed souvenirs in the form of photographs of the church and the several rectors, and a history of St. Paul's parish. This evening there was a service with the combined choirs, and the preacher was the Rev. Howard C. Robbins, a former rector, now rector at the Church of the Incarnation, New York.

CHURCHES PREPARE FOR THE GARY PLAN

DR. ADAMS PRAISES SYSTEM

New York churches are ready to play their rôle in the Gary school plan. The Rev. Dr. Fred Winslow Adams of the Interchurch Committee on Religious Education, said yesterday that as soon as the Board of Education and the Wirt leaders are ready the churches will be.

The St. Andrew's Methodist Church, Seventy-sixth Street, near Columbus Avenue, of which Dr. Adams is pastor, has engaged the Rev. George Edward Mayer of Grace Church, Troy, N. Y., as director of religious education, and Miss Florence Halimand, a graduate of Mount Holyoke College, as his assistant. St. Andrew's is to start at once a religious day school. It has available two large rooms, accommodating 150 each, and six smaller rooms. Out of a large Sunday School this church expects to draw a large day school enrollment. It has asked co-operation by Rutgers Presbyterian, Manhattan Congregational and other churches on the west side. Its plans are to introduce the same work, study and play plan that is advocated by Mr. Wirt. The theory of Dr. Adams is that this plan is the right one, and he said yesterday he wanted to show it will work in church as it does in public schools. He declares his conviction that within a few years the Wirt plan will be general throughout the city.

The Madison Avenue Methodist Church, Sixtieth Street, the Rev. Dr. Worth M. Tippy, pastor, has engaged as religious education director the Rev. J. H. Lewis. The church aims to have all in readiness the moment the Gary plan is adopted by the Board of Education for the whole city. The Creston Avenue Baptist Church, Fordham, will also inaugurate the plan. Other churches considering the employment of religious education directors include Grace Methodist Church, in 104th Street; the West End Presbyterian, in Amsterdam Avenue, and the Madison Avenue Presbyterian, at Seventy-third Street.

The Episcopal Church has opened a demonstration school in Harlem, and will hold a public meeting in Synod Hall on Oct. 22, with Superintendents Wirt and Etlinger present, to consider co-operation. They disclaim any purpose to inject religious teaching into public schools, and that the only relation with the public school is the release of children, as is now successfully done in School 45 in the Bronx. Protestants, Catholics, and Jews are members of the committee that is co-operating with the public school authorities.

St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, 156th Street, near Prospect Avenue, Bronx, has taken up a plan for a community service centre, which includes the building of a pavilion on land owned by the parish that will serve evenings and Sundays in Summer for outdoor auditorium, and on weekdays, if the need arises, for a Gary school. The location is between two of the largest of Bronx public schools. Bishop Greer has approved the plan of the playground, it being a foreign population section. The rector is the Rev. Roland C. Ormsbee, who is also the religious education director.

TO CONSTRUE SHERMAN ACT

Important Decisions Expected at This Term of Supreme Court.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The Supreme Court will convene tomorrow for a term that is expected to result in far-reaching construction of disputed points in the Sherman Anti-Trust act. In view of statements made by high officials of the Department of Justice, it is not too much to say that the anti-trust act itself will be on trial as a means of regulating the big business of the country. In the last year the Government has lost in the lower courts nearly all its important anti-trust suits, and if the lower courts are sustained before the court of last resort new legislation will be obtained or anti-trust suits practically will be abandoned.

The most important of the trust cases to come before the high court are those against the Harvester Trust, the Reading Railroad Company, the United Shoe Machinery Company, and probably the United States Steel Corporation, although the Government has not yet appealed this case, despite its announced intention.

Of these cases the Government in the lower courts won only that against the Harvester Trust. This case was before the Supreme Court at the last term, but was ordered to a reargument, probably because the incapacity of Justice McReynolds, who as Attorney General had instituted the suit, left the bench divided four to four. As the makeup of the court is unchanged, this case will probably result in a close decision.

The Department of Justice in pressing these cases to final decision seems not so much actuated by a desire to obtain favorable opinions in the particular cases at issue as to get a uniform and final expression on what the law means.

Cases questioning the constitutionality of the income tax law also are to be argued. The success of the tax is regarded by the Government as hinging on these cases, and the Attorney General has prepared an elaborate defense.

Good Tracks Make Faster Horses.

S. K. Hughes, official timer on the Kentucky course, in a recent interview discussed the changes in the speed possibilities of race tracks. As a trainer Hughes twice won the Harold Stakes, once in 1897 with Pink Coat, and once in 1908 with White Face. White Face ran the Harold Stakes, at five furlongs, in 1:00 3-5. Pink Coat ran the same distance in 1:02¼. To win a five furlong race on any of the three old Kentucky tracks in their best racing condition now a colt has to go the same distance in a minute or less. Hughes does not believe the winner of any 2-year-old stake on the Kentucky tracks in recent years is two or three seconds better than Pink Coat was at that age. He believes that the reason for the better record is that tracks have been grealy improved.

Humanitarian Cult Campaign.

The Humanitarian Cult will open its Fall campaign on Tuesday evening in Leslie Hall, Eighty-third Street and Broadway. Misha E. Appelbaum, founder of the Cult, will speak on "The Necessity of Abolishing Private and Public Charity Organizations." Another speaker will be Franklin Brooks, former Assistant District Attorney. There will be a concert after the speechmaking.

IN NEW JERSEY.

JERSEY CITY.—Otto Hansen of 62 Grand Street, an employe of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, was run over yesterday by a train at the Claremont Avenue crossing. He was hurried to a hospital, and died there.

BAYONNE.—By order of the Commissioner of Safety, Henry Wilson, all moving picture houses were kept closed yesterday.

BAYONNE.—While her husband was struggling with two men, who had dragged him across the bar of his saloon at 118 Avenue E Saturday night and robbed him of $20, Mrs. Frank Duck removed the money from the thief's pocket. He shook himself free and escaped before he discovered his loss.

NEWARK.—A two-alarm fire yesterday in a four-story building at 178-182 Emmet Street did damage estimated at $25,000.

MONTCLAIR.—The Montclair school teachers, who will spend two days next week at the Wanaque Camp of the Appalachian Mountain Club, have been notified that, as their tents are made of costly balloon silk, they should provide themselves with pincushions and receptacles for hat pins and other instruments likely to injure the tents.

MONTCLAIR.—The Board of Education has agreed to the Alliance Francaise conducting French conversation classes in one of the school buildings on Tuesday afternoons during the Winter.

MONTCLAIR.—One of the guests yesterday at the silver wedding of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Darby was J. P. Whitmore, who made the match by introducing Mr. and Mrs. Darby about twenty-six years ago.

Other articles refer to the plans for the establishment of Constitutional Government, first by the election of municipal councils and then by the election of a federal congress. To this body the First Chief will render an account of the use he may have made of the executive power so that decrees previously made may be enacted or rejected. The congress, it is stipulated, will convene an election for President and Vice President throughout the republic and as soon as this takes place the First Chief shall deliver the executive power to the President-elect.

Villistas' Plans to Fight On.

M. Diaz Lombardo, Foreign Minister of the Convention Government, and Enrique C. Llorente, the Villa agent here, tonight issued the following statement:

"The decision reached by the Pan-American conferees means that the American nations recognize the triumph of the revolution begun and led by President Madero and continued by Carranza and Villa. This fact is a source of satisfaction to all who have contributed their efforts to the struggle against Clentifico rule.

"Our opinion is that it is very doubtful whether the conferees have acted wisely in declaring that the Carranzista faction is the only one with the essentials of recognition as the de facto government, inasmuch as that decision is based on recent military successes which cannot be regarded as conclusive or permanent. The Conventionist faction has yet at is disposal powerful elements and has the advantage of possessing territory within the boundaries of which there are no Carranza forces.

"The decision of the conferees has surprised us, because it is not consistent with the precedent established by the American Governments which took part in the conference. The policy previously followed was to recognize only the de facto Governments which were based on the consent, tacit or otherwise, of the nation. No such consent has been accorded Carranza's rule.

"Surely the Conventionist Party will continue the struggle. Sooner or later it will demonstrate to the world that the Mexican people wish the establishment of a legal Government and will not tolerate a dictatorship of indefinite tenure and inefficient administration, such as has been shown by Carranza's failure or unwillingness to organize a Cabinet and suppress the frequent armed movements against his authority."

Villa's Leaders Deserting?

Special to The New York Times.

EL PASO, Oct. 10.—Hearing that Carranza was to be recognized by the United States and the other powers, Villa's leaders are deserting him, according to messages received in Juarez from Casas Grandes where Villa's headquarters are now established. Four of General Villa's principal generals, including General Rodriguez and Acosta, have deserted him, according to the telegrahic information which is verified by private reports received by the Carranza secret service.

Upon his arrival in Casas Grandes, where he learned that there was a mutiny in the ranks, Villa flew into a rage, the report says, and declared he would execute every man who deserted his cause at this time. This he stated would include any civil officials. Many executions have occurred among the ringleaders of the revolt and more are expected to occur tomorrow.

Reports say that Sebastian Vargas, Villa's sub-Secretary of the Treasury, had been ordered executed at Chihuahua.

Villa agents are rushing all available ammunition across the border to Juarez in anticipation of an embargo on ammunition.

General Villa's formal declaration to George C. Carothers, special agent of the State Department at Washington, that because of the recognition of the Carranza Government he would not hold himself responsible for the safety of the lives and property of foreigners today created little apprehension of immediate danger to foreigners.

From a military source it was learned that General Villa had declared to Mr. Carothers that the United States and other foreign nations could not hold him responsible for what happened to their nationals in his territory, and, while he and his bands would commit no depredations, they would not attempt to stay the operations of bandits that might spring up.

"The United States and foreign nations having recognized Carranza must look to him for protection," he was quoted as saying.

ARGENTINE APPROVAL.

La Nacion Sees a Long Step Toward Peace in Mexico.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 10.—The opinion is expressed by La Nacion that recognition of General Carranza's Government will not bring about a final solution of the Mexican question, but that it will be a long step in that direction.

The United States, it says, is desirous of promoting the progress and well-being of Mexico, and, therefore, the American Governments which charged themselves with the apparently hopeless task of re-establishing peace in Mexico are to be congratulated for what has been accomplished.

CARRANZA CONFIDENT NOW.

He Says That Recognition Will Destroy Enemies' Hopes.

VERA CRUZ, Oct. 10.—General Carranza received with great pleasure the news that the Pan-American Conference at Washington had decided to recommend recognition of the party led by him as the de facto government in Mexico, although he pointed out that he had received no official notification to this effect. Telegrams from Carranza agents at Washington brought the news, and the First Chief received the congratulations of his associates at Constitutionalist headquarters. The Washington telegrams were read in the theatres and received with great enthusiasm. General Carranza will not alter his plans for a trip through the Northern States, for which he is to depart tomorrow.

In response to questions, General Carranza said:

"This news puts an end to all efforts of our enemies to bring about foreign intervention. They continue their intrigues and their attacks in the newspapers, but recognition of the Constitutionalist Government naturally will rob them of the fruit of their eforts.

"When peace is absolutely restored and tranquillity really established throughout the republic amnesty will be granted to all these persons, but not now. To permit them to return at this time would be to endure their machinations within the republic.

"The immediate effect of this news will be a great moral strengthening of the cause of Constitutionalism, and a corresponding disheartening of opposing factions. There will be no more formal battles. Fighting of that sort already has ended, but naturally the struggle to put down minor outbreaks and lawlessness must be continued for a greater or less time in a country such as this, where there are extensive open areas.

"Already these bands are disintegrating rapidly and their chiefs are surrendering. This development will bring the surrender of the leaders of the opposition, since the news of recognition will remove from them further hope of success. This applies not only to those who are actually fighting in the field, but to those enemies of the cause who are intriguing, both within the country and abroad.

"News of the coming recognition is pleasing, since it will renew and strenghen the friendly relations between Mexico and other nations."

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 10.—News of the decision to recognize the Carranza Government was received with great joy by the military element here. All the newspapers issued extra editions. General Pablo Gonzales, Commander of the Carranza forces in Mexico City, will hold a reception tomorrow in celebration of the event.

HUERTA UNRECONCILED.

Special to The New York Times.

FORT BLISS, Oct. 10.—Recognition of Carranza comes too late to be of any real service in the cause of peace in Mexico. General Victoriano Huerta, the deposed dictator of Mexico, declared tonight in his prison home in the parade grounds. He said that had his Government been recognized at the time he took charge of affairs in Mexico permanent peace would have been established in the republic and two years of needless war and bloodshed would have been spared the people of his country.

"I insist that my Government was founded on as legal a basis as any other, certainly as much as Carranza's, General Huerta said. "The recognition of the Carranza defactor Government, which has been boosted into power through blood letting and killing, comes as a tardy admission on the part of the United States that a great international mistake was made when my Government was not recognized at the time when recognition meant peace to Mexico. But this recognition of a defacto Government, not as strong as was mine, and certainly no more constittuional, comes too late. The seeds of discord and revolution have been sown throughout the land, and instead of one central government and a revolting bandit, there are now factions upon factions and I see no peace in sight for my Mexico."

ZAPATISTAS MENACE CAPITAL.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Information reached officials of the State Department today that the Zapatistas were becoming very active in the vicinity of Mexico City and that there was strong prospect that they would deliver an attack on the capital within the next few days. The source of this information was not disclosed, but it was regarded as important.

It has been known for some time that the Zapatistas were planning to recapture the Mexican capital from the Carranzistas for the purpose of embarrassing the latter and seeking to convince the Pan-American conferees that the Carranza party was not strong enough to be recognized. The activity of the Zapatistas south of Mexico City is part of this program.

The Villa Agency gave out this statement tonight:

"A dispatch to the agency from Naco announces the capture of Cananea, Sonora, by forces of General Beltran. Convention troops from Chihuahua have reached Babispo, Sonora, and are expected in the vicinity of Naco soon. Demoralized Carranza troops are still straggling into Agua Prieta."

TOTAL REGISTRATION FOR 1915 IS 667,366

Political leaders of all parties expressed satisfaction yesterday over the total 1915 registration, which amounted to 667,366 for all five boroughs of the city for the six days the books were open. Considering that only local officials, with the exception of Assemblymen, are to be elected, the political experts said the showing was unusually good. The total for the last political "off" year, 1911, was 615,986. This year's registration of 667,366 was larger even than last year's, when the total was 653,613, and last year a Governor was elected. In 1912, a Presidential year, the total registration was 705,288.

In analyzing this year's figures political leaders were inclined to credit the good showing to the interest in woman's suffrage and the proposed Constitution.

The registration in Manhattan this year was the poorest in any of the boroughs as compared to last year. It was 3,745 behind the 1914 figures, while Brooklyn showed a gain of 10,116 over that year. The Bronx, Queens, and Richmond all did better than last year. Owing to tardiness in the receipt of returns the complete figures for the registration on Saturday were not available until yesterday morning. The following tables show the registration by districts on Saturday for each of the boroughs, the total for the six days last week, and the registration by districts in 1914:

ATTACK CITIZENS' UNION.

Produce Dealers Think Legislators Should Not be Pledged.

The Wholesale Produce Dealers of the city issued a statement yesterday attacking the Citizens' Union because of its voters' directory issued several days ago. It was announced that the union would submit to candidates a market bill similar to the one prepared by the Perkins committee and supported by the city administration. The Wholesale Produce Dealers' statement said that this measure, if adopted, would have cost the city fully $60,000,000, and would, in addition, have caused great economic damage by "its attempt to arbitrarily change established trade terminals."

George H. Stege, representing the Wholesale Produce Dealers, said:

"This attempt of a civic organization to pledge in advance members of the Legislature to various proposed measures under an implied threat to recommend their defeat unless they please the organization, is a serious menace to legislative freedom of action.

"It would be well now to consider what the Citizens' Union is. There is no doubt a general impression that the Citizens' Union is a great representative body whose conclusions represent advanced and correct public sentiment. It is also believed that its conclusions are the result of a most careful consideration after a thorough study and complete investigation. As a matter of fact, that is not the case. The control of its affairs and the determination of its policies are in the hands of a few. That these few are always disinterested is extremely doubtful, and it is also doubtful whether or not politics does not enter into their conclusions. It is a fact that the Citizens' Union rarely disagrees with the city administration.

"The Citizens' Union recommendations are merely opinions of men no better qualified to judge than any ordinary committee of citizens."

Statement Says Primary Votes in 23d District Weren't Counted.

The "Frank Moss League" last night issued a statement in which it was said that the league had the affidavits of voters in the Sixteenth Election District of the Twenty-third Assembly District, to the effect that they had voted in the primaries for Frank Moss for the Republican nomination for District Attorney. The returns from the district showed a vote of 23 to 0 for the nomination of District Attorney Charles A. Perkins.

The statement also said:

"Twelve Election District Captains in the Twenty-sixth Assembly District sent their resignations yesterday to Samuel Krulewitch, Republican leader of the district. A copy of the resignations were mailed to County Chairman Koenig. There are 25 Election District Captains in the district and before Election Day it is expected that other Captains will quit Krulewitch as leader.

"The Captains who went out will conduct a vigorous campaign for Frank Moss for District Attorney. They will also work for Nathaniel Lieberman for Alderman, in opposition to Isaac Goodman, Krulewitch's candidate. Goodman is Captain of the Sixteenth Election District. Three other Captains will resign before the end of the week."

WHITMAN TO GETTYSBURG.

Will Deliver Eulogy at Dedication of Monument to General Webb.

Governor Charles S. Whitman will go to Gettysburg this morning, where he is to deliver the oration and eulogy at the unveiling of the bronze statue of General Alexander S. Webb tomorrow, Columbus Day. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Whitman, Brig. Gen. Louis W. Stotesbury, Major J. Stanley Moore, the Governor's military secretary, and three members of his staff; Bernard Sandler, and members of the New York Monuments Commission.

A special train bearing the Governor and his party will leave the Pennsylvania Station at 9:40 o'clock. The itinerary will occupy four days and will include a visit to the famous battlefield, where the party will view the monuments erected to New York troops. From Gettysburg the party will go by automobile to the battlefield of Antietam, at Sharpsburg, Md., on Wednesday, and through the Cumberland Valley, following the line of General Lee's retreat from the famous battlefield.

The exercises at Gettysburg will begin at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The monument to General Webb is erected in the "Bloody Angle," the "high water mark of the rebellion." The party will return on Thursday.

Bazaar for Widowed Mothers.

Plans are being made to hold a bazaar at Delmonico's restaurant, Fifth Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, on the afternoon and evening of Nov. 14 and 15, for the benefit of the Widowed Mothers' Fund. One of the features of the entertainment will be a score of small boys and girls dressed as mannikins displaying various specially designed costumes, and novel fashions for men. Mrs. Samuel Floersheimer is the Chairman of the committee.

TEACH BLIND TO 'SEE' WONDERS OF NATURE

Museum Prepares Illustrated Lectures to be Delivered in School Classrooms.

Collections for Public Libraries Displayed to Rouse Interest in Young Readers.

More pupils in the public schools will have, this term, aid in their studies through illustrated lectures on such subjects as geography, history, travel, and natural science, put at the disposal of teachers by the educational department of the American Museum of Natural History. Even the blind children are to have special talks, illustrated with specimens which they may handle.

Among 30,000 lantern slides available for this work are included the special series prepared by the late Professor Albert S. Bickmore for the State Department of Education, the originals of which were destroyed in the fire in the Capitol at Albany in 1911. All are to be lent through a special financial arrangement with the Board of Education, without charge to the teacher. Each teacher may make his own selection, and the slides will be delivered, together with full description of each slide, so that the teacher may prepare a lecture with the minimum of work.

The work on the same line undertaken at the Museum lecture rooms in behalf of the blind children has proved so successful that it has become a regular feature of the general school work. This can only be provided advantageously at the Museum because of the equipment needed, but that condition has been met by having the teachers take pupils to the lectures. This privilege has also been granted to out-of-town schools, particularly those of Newark. There are also some special collections for the blind which are sent to schools and institutions. The educational department has also arranged for two evening lecture courses for the adult blind.

The Museum will continue its own lecture system, which has had an average annual attendance of 50,000 school children. President Henry Fairfield Osborn of the Museum says of this department: "There are many thousands more, however, who could not afford the necessary carfare or for other reasons could not come to the Museum." The extension work in the schools will remedy this. Through the Museum's efforts, including circulating collections, comprising 10,000 specimens, in daily use in the schools, it is estimated that 1,300,000 school children were reached and directly benefited last year.

Co-operation with the public libraries is another feature of the Museum's work which is receiving much attention. Several collections have been prepared for the children's rooms of the public libraries. These collections are designed to stimulate the reading of good books relating to the subjects illustrated with the specimens.

KILLS HIS TWO CHILDREN.

Scranton Carpenter Then Shoots Himself as Wife Seeks Police.

SCRANTON, Penn., Oct. 10.—Robert M. Orr, 37 years of age, a carpenter's foreman, shot his two children and himself to death at their home here today. His wife found the three bodies when she returned to the house with policemen.

Fifteen minutes before, Orr had knocked senseless his aged father-in-law, Henry Rawson, who had denounced Orr for kidnapping the two children Friday night. The husband had just returned and was embracing his wife when the trouble started. He threw Rawson into the rear yard, and when his wife tried to escape with the children, Orr hit Rawson with a blackjack and grabbed the children. He went into the house and locked the doors, while his wife ran for the police.

Cuban Sugar Workers Ask Aid.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The American Federation of Labor has received from a committee representing many Socialistic and labor associations in Cuba an appeal for assistance for a dozen sugar workers arrested on charges incidental to their attempts to unionize their fellow-workers. The appeal asks for funds to employ counsel, but if money is lacking, the Cuban committee asks for a public declaration of sympathy, or a move for a protest from Washington. According to the appeal, the least complaint from the wealthy sugar operators is enough to start the legal machinery of Cuba prosecuting offending workingmen.

HAYES SUCCEEDS CUSACK.

Auxiliary Bishop to be Pastor of St. Stephen's Church.

Announcement was made yesterday that Cardinal Farley had appointed the Right Rev. Patrick J. Hayes, who is Bishop Auxiliary of New York, to succeed the Right Rev. Thomas F. Cusack in the pastorate of St. Stephen's Church, 149 East Twenty-eighth Street. Bishop Cusack was recently appointed to the See of Albany. His successor will assume charge of his new parish immediately.

Bishop Hayes was born on Nov. 20, 1867, in New York City, and was educated academically by the Christian Brothers and at Manhattan College. He made his preliminary theological studies in St. Joseph's Provincial Seminary, after graduation from which he was ordained on Sept. 8, 1892. He took up supplementary theological study at the Catholic University of America, from which he received his degree in 1894.

For nine years Bishop Hayes was secretary to Cardinal Farley, and he was Chancellor of the Archdiocese of New York for eleven years. In 1903 he organized the Cathedral College, the preparatory seminary of the diocese, and became its first President.

SURE NORRBOTTON IS LOST.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 10.—Hope for the safety of the Swedish steamship Norrbotton was abandoned tonight when the Norwegian steamship Thelma arrived here from Greenland and reported that a search had been made for the missing vessel, but that no trace of her could be found.

The Norrbotton, which carried a crew of forty men and was one of the largest ore-carrying vessels in the North Atlantic trade, left Narvik on Sept. 11 for Philadelphia with a cargo of 10,000 tons of iron ore consigned to the Bethlehem Steel Works. On Sept. 21 Captain Lundmark, of the Norrobotton, sent a wireless message to the station at Cape Race, Newfoundland, saying that he would arrive in Philadelphia on Sept. 26. Nothing has been heard from the vessel since that time.

On Sept. 24 and 25 a storm of unusual violence raged off Newfoundland. It is believed in shipping circles that the Norrbotton was caught in this hurricane and sent to the bottom.

TRAIN KILLS POLICEMAN.

Lieutenant Ahearn Ground Beneath Car in Brooklyn.

Lieutenant Patrick Ahearn, 48 years old, attached to the Butler Street Police Station in Brooklyn, was crushed to death late yesterday afternoon beneath the wheels of a four-car train of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system at Kings Highway and Gravesend Avenue. He was on his way to the station from Gravesend, where he had visited relatives, and slipped as he attempted to get aboard the forward car of the train. His body became wedged under the forward truck of the second car.

Patrolman Schaeffer and the crew of the car were unable to get Ahearn from under the truck, and Dr. Held of Coney Island Hospital crawled beneath the car and administered a hypodermic injection in the hope of saving the Lieutenant's life. Half an hour later, when the car was raised, however, he found that Ahearn was dead. Traffic on the line was tied up for forty minutes by the accident.

Four Yale Players Injured.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 10.—As the result of injuries received in the Yale-Lehigh football game Saturday four Yale players will be unable to play for several weeks, it was learned tonight. Full Back Guernsey has a cracked shoulder bone; Quarter Back Thompson has a twisted knee; Black, a guard, has a wrenched knee, and Bells, an end, has an injury to his leg. Most of the Yale players were battered. Quarter Back Chenoweth of the Lehigh team, who suffered a fractured ankle in the game, is at a local hospital. The contest was one of the roughest seen here in years.

POLK OUT AGAINST NEW CONSTITUTION

LABOR OUTLINES ITS FIGHT

Frank L. Polk, Counselor of the State Department, went on record yesterday as opposed to the adoption of the proposed Constitution. Mr. Polk came to New York from Washington on Saturday to register, and was seen before he returned to the capital.

"In the light of my experience as Corporation Counsel," he said, "I feel that the people of New York City have little to gain from the adoption of the proposed Constitution. Home rule is the crying need of the cities of the State, but the proposed Constitution is scarcely less grudging in this regard than the old. While it makes a specious show of granting larger powers of self-government, it limits every concession with clauses that make it useless and ineffective. New York City can expect nothing better than to be embroiled in endless litigation if the Constitution is adopted.

"No change worthy of note is made in the city's representation in the Legislature. Although New York has more than half the population of the State, and pays 70 per cent. of the State's total taxes, it has only 42 per cent. of the representation in the Assembly. The proposed Constitution would continue this injustice for twenty years, as there is good reason to believe that no reform in this matter will ever be accomplished through a separate amendment.

"It seems to me that there are many other defects in the proposed Constitution, and that much of the good it contains may be secured through legislative action."

The Executive Council of the New York State Federation of Labor also stated yesterday its position against the adoption of the Constitution, giving thirteen reasons for its rejection by the voters.

Some of these reasons are that the memorial presented to the convention by organized labor was ignored; that the form of short ballot proposed clinches on the State "invisible government;" that the judicial system proposed creates "power that may be used against labor"; that "the State Labor Department and the Workmen's Compensation Commission are made the football of partisan politicians"; that the proposed constitution does not protect working men, women, and children; and that it does not give "a clear definition of freedom of speech and of the press."

Standing against this opposition came a public letter yesterday from United States Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr., Chairman of the Committee for the Adoption of the Constitution. Senator Wadsworth says that the proposed Constitution deserves support on its merits; that its provisions regarding the State debt will save millions in interest payments; that the article providing for a State budget is good; that the proposed Constitution's organization of "the present welter of over 150 State agencies into seventeen administrative departments" will save money and increase efficiency; that the home rule article gives the cities of the State enlarged powers, and that "the judiciary article will quicken and cheapen the security of justice."

The proposed Constitution and its relation to business will be discussed at a luncheon meeting of the Members' Council of the Merchants' Association in the Hotel Astor on Oct. 20. The leaders of the discussion will be Henry L. Stimson, Chairman of the Constitutional Committee on State Finances, and former Supreme Court Justice Morgan J. O'Brien.

"What point?"

"Ignition point."

"But I've always bought gasoline on a gravity basis."

"But doesn't a low ignition point always go with high gravity?"

"You ought to know. Does it?"

"What do you mean?"

"You buy high gravity gas. Do you ever have trouble starting?"

"Well, sometimes, when my tank is nearly empty—

"Thought so. You see your high gravity gas isn't always what it's cracked up to be. Probably it's a mixture of a very light fuel with a heavy fuel. That wouldn't be so bad, if the mixture only stayed mixed. But it doesn't. The light stuff is used up first—car going like a dream. Then you get down near the bottom of your tank and your engine begins to have duck fits trying to chew up the heavy end of that mixture."

"Then ignition point is what I'm to ask for—"

"Ask for SOCONY Motor Gasoline. It's a straight-distilled product—not a mixture. The ignition point is right, the gravity is right, and every drop is like every other drop, whenever and wherever you buy it."

"But where can I buy SOCONY?"

NOVICE'S AUTO DRIVE COSTS WIFE HER LIFE

Mrs. F. J. Bauer Killed and Three Thrown Out of Upset Car at Mahwah, N. J.

MOTHER HURT SAVING BABY

In automobile accidents in and near this city yesterday, a woman was killed, and a girl was injured critically and a dozen other persons suffered broken bones and other severe hurts. The woman was killed at Mahwah, N. J., when a big touring car overturned at racing speed. The girl suffered a probably fractured skull when the car in which she was riding with her father, mother, brother and sister, was struck by a Long Island Railroad train at Ozone Park. The boy was knocked down in the Bronx by an automobile ambulance in which a dying man was being rushed to Lincoln Hospital.

Frank J. Bauer, of 308 Park Street, Hackensack, yesterday obtained a license to run an automobile in New Jersey, and in the afternoon he and his wife took Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Fiedler of Camden Street, Hackensack, to ride. After a tour of several miles all were returning to their homes in the early evening, Mr. Bauer was at the wheel and when the car reached Franklin turnpike, he turned out to allow a big car to pass and the right wheels went off the main road. In trying to get back on to the road again, he evidently became confused and as the car struck the road it shot across to the stone wall and turned turtle, pinning the four motorists beneath it.

Mrs. Bauer suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries; Mr. Bauer lacerations of the head and body; Mr. Fiedler scalp wounds and many cuts, and Mrs. Fiedler a dislocated shoulder and lacerations of the face and body.

Several other automobile parties hurried to give aid. The injured persons were driven in other machines to the Good Samaritan Hospital at Suffern two miles away. There Mrs. Bauer was pronounced dead. It was said the others would recover. Mr. Bauer and his brother, Louis, are proprietors of the Bauer Lithographing Company of this city. Mrs. Bauer was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Tracy, and a member of a prominent New Jersey family. A sister married Count de Vaux of Paris two years ago, and is now living in that city.

Hit by Long Island Train.

An automobile owned by Peter E. Nolan, a real estate dealer of 3,954 Fulton Street, Woodhaven, L. I., and occupied by himself, his wife, and their children, Hazel, 10 years old; Harvey, 7, and Ethel, 4, was wrecked by an electric train on the Long Island Railroad at the crossing at Liberty and Ocean Avenues, Ozone Park, at 6:20 o'clock at night.

Mr. Nolan, Hazel, and Harvey jumped clear of the car and escaped without serious injury. Mrs. Nolan, who stopped to pick up the youngest child, was thrown several feet and suffered a dislocated right hip, a sprained back, and severe bruises and contusions. Ethel landed on her head and suffered a probable fracture of the skull. Mrs. Nolan is in a critical condition, and the baby has little chance of recovery. They are at St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica.

Mr. Nolan, who was driving, the automobile, said that just as he started to cross the tracks the safety gate was lowered suddenly and struck him on the nose, inflicting a deep wound. Then he saw the train, which was approaching from Rockaway Beach, about 200 feet away. As the gate on the farther side of the crossing was open he decided to make a dash for safety. The wheels of the automobile slipped on the rails and when he reached the gate ahead of him it had been closed.

"I knew there was sure to be a smash up," said Mr. Nolan, "so I shouted to my wife to grab Ethel and jump. Then I picked up Hazel, and calling to my son to jump, took a header out of the car. I got out of the way just in time, but I heard the train crash into the automobile and knew that my wife was caught."

According to the railroad company's version of the accident, the gate had been lowered before Mr. Nolan reached the crossing and he ran into it despite the fact that there was a lantern to warn him. His automobile, it was stated, smashed the gate. It was contended that every precaution had been taken to guard the crossing, and that a watchman named Webster was on duty there.

In Flushing, L. I., John Virias, 21 years old, of 651 Broadway, was riding on his motorcycle along Broadway, near Murray Street, when he was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. W. C. Burhans of 81 North Fourteenth Street. He was knocked unconscious and was taken to the Flushing Hospital, where it was found that he had a possible fracture of the skull and contusions of the head and body. His condition was serious.

Run Down from Behind.

Edward Allen of 1,205 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, was riding along the Merrick Road at Baldwin, L. I., in the evening in a seven-passenger touring car with three companions when, according to his story, his car was run down from behind by a huge automobile truck. The touring car was overturned and the four occupants were thrown into the ditch. The truck, Allen said, put on speed and disappeared. He gave a description of it to the police.

Those in the car with Allen were Adam Schliger, an agent of 24 Central Avenue, Brooklyn; E. A. Van Dyke, Jr., same address, and A. Hissiger of 198 Harmon Street, Brooklyn. Schliger had three broken ribs and possible internal injuries, and the others escaped with slight cuts and bruises. They were attended by Dr. John Hutcheson and Dr. D. W. Seaman. The accident happened almost in front of the home of Congressman George W. Loft. The men were taken to the Nassau County Hospital at Mineola.

In one of the many automobile accidents in Manhattan James Connors of 212 West Thirty-fifth Street turned his taxicab sharply into Eighth Avenue from Twenty-third Street early in the morning and knocked down Alexander Orstil, a clerk, of 47 St. Nicholas Avenue. Orstil suffered a compound fracture of the left leg and a fractured collarbone. He was taken to New York Hospital Connors was arraigned before Magistrate Krotel in Jefferson Market Court on charges of felonious assault and reckless driving and was held under $1,000 bail for examination tomorrow. Two women who were in the taxicab driven by Connors got away before their names could be obtained.

Crossing Prospect Avenue at 156th Street, the Bronx, at night, Benjamin Levine, 8 years old, of 736 Union Avenue, was run down and probably mortally injured by an automobile ambulance of the Lincoln Hospital, operated by Frank J. Avery of 680 East 139th Street.

The ambulance was returning from 164th Street and Prospect Avenue, where it had gone after Adolph Stern, 67 years old, of 892 Fox Avenue, who had been seized in the street with heart trouble. Dr. Epstein placed the boy in the machine with Stern and rushed him to the hospital. It was found that Levine was suffering from a fracture of the skull, lacerations of the scalp and internal injuries.

Stern, it was said, was also in a precarious condition with little chance to live. The accident proved an added shock. At the hospital he gave the police $42 to be used for "any useful purpose" if he died.

Hurt in Avoiding Two Women.

C. R. Von Egloffstein, a real estate dealer of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., was driving his automobile at Union and Atlantic Streets, Hackensack, in the afternoon, when an automobile occupied by the Misses Lillian and Emma Metzler got in his way. Rather than endanger the young women, Mr. Egloffstein drove his automobile into a tree. He was thrown out with two companions, Horace W. Dunston, a hotel keeper, and Gustav Gerstner of Brooklyn. The men were bruised, but escaped serious injury.

A boy, 10 years old, was taken to the General Hospital at Elizabeth, N. J., at night in a critical condition from injuries said to have been inflicted by an automobile in Wood Avenue, Linden, N. J. It was said at the hospital that the boy was suffering from internal injuries. His name and address had not been obtained and it was impossible to get any information from the Linden police. What became of the automobile that hit the boy the hospital authorities did not know.

AUTO RACER IS KILLED.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 10.—Douglas Gray of Lima, Ohio, was instantly killed, and Clarence Robinson of this city, a negro chauffeur, was injured, probably fatally, when an automobile which Gray was tuning up for the Ohio amateur championship 100-mile race skidded and overturned at the driving park track here today. Robinson had asked to be taken around the track in Gray's machine. Gray and Robinson were thrown clear of the wreck, but Gray's head was crushed. He was 23 years old, and formerly lived in Chicago.

No accidents marred the race, which was won by Dr. Harry E. McCord of Cincinnati in 1:42:12.

Says City Merchants Have Reputation in the Country of Being Crooked.

IGNORANT POOR DEFRAUDED

In a speech last night before the League of Foreign Born Citizens, at 82 Second Avenue, Commissioner Hartigan of the Bureau of Weights and Measures denounced unscrupulous small merchants of this city. He said in part:

"Merchants in this city unfortunately have the reputation throughout the country of being crooked; crooked in the sense of trying to 'do' somebody. If any of you are traveling salesmen you will know that almost every hotel keeper throughout the country will try to take advantage of a man from New York. It is because at some time when he or a friend of his has been in New York he has been cheated by the people of this town. He thinks it only fair to get back at the man from this city.

"You can impose on the people of this city, however, more easily than upon the citizens of any other town in the United States. That is because the people of this town have so many advantages and luxuries that they have not the incentive to be frugal and saving. They do not take the trouble to look for the little ways in which they are constantly being cheated.

The gasoline situation in New York City illustrates this almost better than any other. In this town there are, I am informed, 125,000 automobiles for commercial and pleasure purposes in daily use. These cars consume 75,000,000 of gasoline yearly, and this is a very conservative estimate. At 15 cents a gallon, and gasoline is now selling around 19 or 20 cents, the price of this gasoline would amount to $11,250,000 a year. Complaints from citizens, users of automobiles, that they have been receiving short measure have been so numerous that it has been impossible for my inspectors to cover all of the cases. There are some 2,000 sellers of gasoline here, including curbstone stations, garages and stores where they sell gasoline.

"The customary measure of delivering gasoline today is not a measure, but a pump. Here's the game: You ask for five gallons of gasoline. Out comes the gasoline merchant with his pump, but while you are not paying close attention he turns the handle of the pump around only four times, when he should have made five revolutions. A pump should be invented which would have an indicator which shows the quantity of gasoline delivered as measured by the number of revolutions made by the handle."

Mr. Hrtigan said that one of the methods frequently employed by dishonest tradesmen in cheating customers who cannot readily read English is to raise the amount of their purchases in their account books. He told of a case a grocer had cheated a poor couple out of $75 by this method in a year and a quarter. The offender could not be prosecuted because of lack of evidence, but inspectors subsequently watched him and caught him.

ZIEGLER DRIVER SUMMONED.

Capitalist and Wife Reported in Car Said to be Speeding.

Emil Kuntz, a chauffeur employed by William Ziegler, Jr., the young capitalist, will appear in the West Farms court this morning to answer a summons for exceeding the speed limit in Mr. Ziegler's automobile yesterday morning. Kuntz was driving north on the Boston Road, near Eastchester Road, the Bronx, when he was overtaken by Motor Cycle Policeman Donovan.

Donovan told the chauffeur that he had been running thirty miles an hour and must accept summons for violation of the law. In the automobile were a man and woman, who, Donovan thought, were Mr. and Mrs. Ziegler. They did not oppose the policeman beyond offering an initial objection to his intereference, and, after the summons had been served, the automobile continued northward. According to Kuntz, he was driving from Mr. Ziegler's city house at 40 West Fifty-seventh Street to his country estate, Great Island, Noroton, Conn.

DEFINES NEW WEDDING RITE.

The Rev. Bouck White Says It Will Openly Recognize Divorce.

The Rev. Bouck White, pastor of the Church of the Social Revolution, explained to his flock yesterday afternoon the new form of Socialist marriage ritual which is to be tried for the first time next Tuesday night by a Jersey City couple.

Victor Arthur Kilian of 162 Griffith Street and Miss Daisy Leonore Johnson of 179 Winfield Avenue, the Jersey City residents who are to be married by the Rev. Mr. White, were not in the congregation at Bryant Hall, but about 150 other persons were, and most of them seemed to be enthusiastic church members.

In explaining the reasons for the new form of ceremony the Rev. Mr. White said:

"The woman's movement of today is a recognition of the fact that woman is coming to self-consciousness—that from now on the individual and not the family is the social unit. The family is no longer a possible social unit, for today many people cannot enter into the family relationship. In a primitive society every woman had a man and every man a woman; but now for many people the economic basis of family lif is shattered.

"The restlessness in marriage relations and the increase of divorce which characterizes this age is not necessarily a sign of badness. Divorce is sometimes evil and should be frowned upon; sometimes it is the sign of a highly sensitive sex consciousness. The more civilization advances the more divorce we find. The absence of divorce in the Roman Catholic Church is a sign that most of the communicants of that body consider marriage as a mere breeding institution. We admit divorce as a fact and consider that there are cases where it is the lesser of two evils. Marriage is so sacred that nothing but love can sanction it. Our marriage rite by openly recognizing divorce is a safeguard against divorce. We are not destroyers but builders up of marriage."

POLICEMAN HURT BY BOMB.

Infernal Machine Explodes When He Tries to Put Out Fuse.

After Policeman Nealon of the Mulberry Street Station tore the sputtering fuse out of a bomb in the hallway of a six-story tenement house at 9 and 11 Prince Street, occupied by twenty-four families, early yesterday morning, he started with it to the Police Station, accompanied by Policeman Bierman. In front of 190 Elizabeth Street, the bomb, a torpedo-shaped affair, began to sputter again and Nealon tried to beat out the fuse with his hands. He was unable to do so and placed it on the ground and stamped on it. Suddenly the bomb exploded and fragments lacerated his right hand and the right side of his face. Bierman was thrown off his feet, but not injured.

The patrolmen took the fragments of the bomb to the Police Station. Nealon was attended by Dr. Pulkin of St. Vincent's Hospital and went home. Owen Eagan, Inspector of the Bureau of Combustibles, said the bomb was a powerful one of the "Mandarin" type and that, had Nealon kept it in his hand, his arm would have been blown off.

The bomb was discovered by a tenant in front of the apartment of J. B. Infantion, a jeweler, whose store is on the ground floor and who lives in the rear. Infantion said he had received several Black Hand letters and had turned them over to the police. A demand was made on him for $2,000 and the police were seeking the senders of the letters when the bomb was placed.

FIREMEN'S BASEBALL TOO HOT FOR POLICE

BLUECOATS BOW TO UMPIRE

Crowd Howls in Delight as Everyday Autocrats Are Silenced and Sent to the Bench.

New York's policemen are deserving of praise as dispersers of riots and pinchers of burglars and murderers, but at baseball the firemen put them into the Giant class. The teams of the departments played for the second time in their annual series yesterday, and the firemen won, 3 to 2. A week ago they played the first game of the series at Ebbets Field and the fire-fighters won, 6 to 3. The two victories give them the championship and a big silver loving cup.

Police Commissioner Arthur Woods, Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson, Collector of the Port Dudley Field Malone, and 44,997 other fans jammed the stands and aisles at the Polo Grounds.

Before the game there was such a throng in the park that the firemen on duty ordered the gates closed, and it was a shock to many policemen in uniform, some with gold badges, who arrived late and couldn't get in.

The fans were friends of the players, but they showed their delight when a mere umpire ordered a policeman to be quiet and go to the bench. To think of a policeman being rudely ordered about by the "ump" tickled the crowd. Messrs. Connelly and O'Sullivan were the arbiters, and they took no back talk.

Twice a fire fighter scampered across the plate in the third inning. Three slashing singles, an error, and a passed ball resulted in Lynch and Fitzpatrick tallying. Then the police broke into the run column in the fourth inning. Tienken smashed a screaming double to left. He waited around while Malcolmson and Barry went out, and then he came racing across the plate when Connelly poked a single to centre. In the seventh Art Romer, who is a policeman, cracked a triple to the right field fence. At the third corner Barry, who was coaching, shouted to him to slow up, but Romer was headed for home and Barry grabbed him. "Ump" O'Sullivan spotted the play and shouted, "Out for interference." Froelich singled and scored on Tienken's bang to left for two bases.

Then came the ninth. Romer had been pitching like an Alexander. Lynch, the first smoke eater at the bat, fanned. Then Dowling sent out a double to the left field bleachers. With the crowd yelling itself hoarse, Fitzpatrick went out at first on an easy bounder. Then Seger came to bat. Seger isn't afraid of a conflagration, but he was nervous at the plate. Romer looked calm and cool, but he wasn't. He hurled the ball four feet above the catcher's head and Dowling romped in with victory. The score by innings:

Business will be bigger in Des Moines this year than it was last year. It will be bigger next year than it is this year.

Des Moines has the best market in the world—a market that is growing steadily.

The value of Iowa's yearly corn crop alone is greater than that of the entire wheat crop of Canada or the Argentine Republic.

Between 1900 and 1910 the value of Iowa farms increased more than those of any other state.

Build your factory in Des Moines, and its growth will be certain.

READ THE AWAKENING OF WOMAN
By FLORENCE G. TUTTLE

"It is very fortunate that 'The Awakening of Woman' has been published in the year 1915, which is the campaign year for woman suffrage not only in New York but in Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, and New Jersey, as well. The reading of the book should awaken many voters to their sense of responsibility in the matter of enfranchisement of women, which is one big step in the awakening of women."—Mrs. R. C. Talbot Perkins, President of the Kings County Women Suffrage Association.

THE GREAT AUDACITY.

In the new European war theatre opened suddenly by Germany on the Balkan Peninsula the Teutonic forces enjoy certain obvious and perhaps insurmountable advantages. They have first of all, the facilities and resources of their own countries immediately at their back and cannot be cut off from their sources of men and supplies. They operate from their own bases and have only to cross a river to reach the enemy. When they have smashed their way across Serbia they will meet their friends the Bulgars, if, indeed, the Bulgars have not come part way across Serbia to meet them. And then, directly on the other side of Bulgaria is what remains of Turkey in Europe. Thus, with Serbia conquered, a thoroughfare lies open from Vienna to Constantinople. Herr Direktor of the Imperial German Railways would no doubt a few days later whisk a crowd of awe struck journalists from Berlin to the Turkish capital.

For the Allies, on the other hand, to reach Serbia with force enough in time to save her, or to stop the Teutons' impulse toward Asia, seems a super-military task. They have first to transport their troops 2,000 miles or more by water, land them at a neutral Greek seaport, and dispatch them by rail across a strip of neutral Greek land into Serbia, with one enemy to meet head on, namely, the Austro-Germans, and another to fend on the right hand, namely, the Bulgars. Greece, that was to have helped as Serbia's bounden ally, looks on, giving only access to a port and gangway across her land, uncertainly, like admitting the Anglo-French forces into a bear den to which she fearsomely holds the door.

Bulgaria to have cast her lot with Germany, Rumania perhaps and Greece without doubt going the other way, had been until a while ago the worst the Allies feared in the Balkans. But with Bulgaria become a German ally, Rumania and Greece remaining neutral, the worst that could have happened has. Bulgaria, the second strongest and the most powerfully placed strategically of all the Balkan States, makes weight suddenly on the German side and there is no offset. It is a clear loss to the Allies. No wonder the French and English papers speak harshly of Greece, think scornfully of her neutrality and regret having employed until now too much abstract persuasion with all the Balkan peoples. No wonder either that Germany's enemies have felt pangs of pessimism at this new and wholly unfavorable development.

The effect upon Russia is expected to be profoundly depressing. The thought of an open Turco-German pathway between Europe and Asia must be a bitterness to her. The psychological effect upon the whole world, enemy and neutral, is something to consider. Everybody says: "What! With the Russian campaign "unfinished and with the Anglo-"French forces on the western front "making a supreme offensive effort, "Germany begins a third new cam-"paign requiring perhaps half a mil-"lion men. How can she afford to do "it? Is she even stronger than her "boast was? Has she been conceal-"ing her resources?"

The audacity alone is magnificent. Perhaps that is the highest factor in it. For, if you take the most pessimistic view that is possible and abandon the whole Balkan peninsula to the Teutonic forces, what further calamity follows? The Turks, of course, are reinforced, so that their hold on the Dardanelles is made secure, but it has never yet been notoriously insecure. Russia, it is true, will be deeply distressed, but after having lost Poland and her Baltic provinces, losing her dreams and her political prestige in the Balkans cannot seem so very much more. Then there is the possibility of a separate peace. Russia, beaten on her western side, disappointed in her allies' attempt to force the Dardanelles, and now about to see her ambitions in the Balkans wrecked, might be persuaded to make terms. Those who hold this thought will not admit its invalidation by the agreement among the Allies to make a joint peace or none. There is, however, a stronger reason. The most that Russia could have expected from her allies, victorious, was an arrangement securing her interests jointly with theirs in the Mediterranean, after the Turk's expulsion from Europe. She could not have expected them to give her Constantinople. Nor could Germany, on the other hand, offer her Constantinople. If Germany should win the Turk would remain in Europe, astride the Dardanelles, and keep Constantinople. How could it be otherwise? Theoretically, Germany, next to losing the war, could of all other things least reconcile herself to a Slavic Constantinople. Actually at this time she could not, being the Turk's ally, offer Russia the only bauble that would conceivably tempt her to make a separate peace.

So, if Germany cannot reasonably hope by success in the Balkan theatre, to win a truce with Russia or bend conditions in the Mediterranean more to her advantage than they seem to be already, what motive would she have to devote so much strength to this mid-world adventure? The answer naturally is that she aims at the two most dazzling jewels of the British Empire, India and Egypt. That may be. It is very satisfying to the imagination, no less, perhaps more, to the Teutonic imagination than to any other. To burst through the "iron ring" and seize an Oriental empire, all by one heroic impulse—that is a colossal idea. The monster of the nightmare become the good genie of a fabulous dream! Alas, however, it is only too wonderful to be true. A people who have lost their access to the sea, who have not a warship or a merchant vessel free, now suddenly go abroad to pot an ocean-spaced empire—go overland, afoot, across mountains and deserts? Fantastic! It cannot be supposed, except romantically, and yet, of course, even romantically it is possible. These are Germans.

But how this Balkan campaign, with what success it may achieve, can greatly if at all change the former predilection of events in Europe is something very hard to prove. As a piece of sheer, imaginative audacity it would have its value. As a distraction it might prove to be important, especially if it should worry the Anglo-French forces into an unequal contest in a theatre of the Germans' own choosing, when the whole of the allied strength should continue to be devoted to "the drive." Either the Germans are much more contemptuous of that undertaking or much more afraid of it than has yet been supposed. Which it is will soon appear.

THE REGISTRATION.

The result of the registration is very satisfactory. This is unmistakably an "off year." Normally the registration would be light. Yet the total of registered voters in this city, 667,400 is 13,000 larger than it was last year when there was an exciting contest for the Governorship and a United States Senator was elected for the first time by the direct vote of the people.

Of course, it may be argued that the desire to vote for or against the new Constitution this year, or for or against the woman suffrage amendment, may be even more stimulating to the spirit of the voters than the issues of last year. Nevertheless, the larger registration is certainly significant, and it will be pretty generally agreed that the continuous week of open registration books has proved serviceable in enabling a larger number of citizens having the right to vote to get their names on the lists.

JOHN DOE OF GENEVA.

At last a much-pursued and ancient defendant is vindicated. A "legal fiction" is running for Mayor of Geneva in Ontario County. Dear old legal fiction, the poetry of the common law! What clerk's, what scrivener's parchment face crinkled as he made the song: "The manor of Dale "and the manor of Sale, lying both "in Vale"? Taken from the musty law books, "J. S. of Dale" was the pen name under which FREDERIC JESUP STIMSON, now Ambassador to Argentina, published "Guerndale" and other not legal fictions. It wouldn't have done for a future Professor of Comparative Legislation and author of law books to be known as the writer of stories.

Many law students have found that "Byles on Bills," STORY, and GREENLEAF tempted them to BALZAC and Old Man DUMAS. Why, open a law dictionary at almost any page and you find it rhymed. De Coronatore Eligendo, writ to elect a Coroner; De Custode Amovendo, writ to remove a guardian; De Contumace Capiendo, writ for contumacious contempt: no doubt in the Middle Ages all writs ran in rhyming Latin, Leonine, verse. But the permanent surviving character of legal fiction is John Doe. In the old action of ejectment John, alias Goodtitle, was the imaginary lessee of the plaintiff; Richard Roe, alias Troublesome, was the fictitious defendant. Dick has retired. John is the busiest man in the world. The number of warrants and writs against him transcends computation. In this county he is always running, usually faster than the writs. Innumerable crimes have been attributed to him. Every means has been used to give him a bad name. Yet some tender hearts have always had a sympathy for him. They were justified. He has turned up in Geneva, N. Y., and, of course, he is still running.

Eleven enrolled Geneva Democrats voted at the primaries for John Doe for Mayor. John Doe's eleven was the highest and winning number of votes. The County Attorney and the County Election Commissioners held that Mr. Doe was properly and legally nominated. His name adorns the official ballot. If the Genevans have any reverence for distinction, any compassion for the victim of centuries of persecution, they will make John Doe Mayor. He is no more of a figurehead than most Mayors. His "running qualities" are incomparable.

Did any of the young gentlemen of Hobart College, Geneva, have a part in this late but just vindication?

WHAT RECOGNITION MEANS.

Now that the Administration is practically committed to the formal recognition of VENUSTIANO CARRANZA as the de facto ruler of Mexico, all good citizens will hope that another serious mistake has not been made. There have been some grievous errors in the development of our Mexican policy, but as Secretary LANSING seems confident that he has done the right thing this time, we are encouraged to hope that international amity and tranquillity will ensue. It would be foolish to forget, as the Administration will not be permitted to forget, that this action is in direct violation of the plan originally formed by Mr. LANSING and his Latin American conferees. That plan was to invite all the faction leaders to join in a peace conference and agree upon a program of pacification. It was understood that any faction leader disregarding the invitation or rejecting it would be ignored in future proceedings. But the one faction leader who rejected the invitation is now to have formal recognition and the others are to be ignored. This seeming inconsistency needs no excuse if the action is justifiable. It is better to be inconsistent than wrong. It is possible, however, to be both.

The conditions that must exist before foreign powers are justified in extending recognition to a new Government were clearly set forth in a message sent to Congress by President GRANT Dec. 7, 1875, in relation to a movement for a premature recognition of the independence of Cuba. In this it was explained that "where a "considerable body of people, who "have attempted to free themselves of "the control of the superior Govern-"ment, have reached such point in oc-"cupation of territory, in power, and "in general organization as to consti-"tute in fact a body politic, having a "Government in substance as well as "in name, possessed of the elements "of stability, and equipped with the "machinery for the administration of "internal policy and the execution of "its laws, prepared and able to ad-"minister justice at home, as well as "in its dealing with other powers," it is within the province of those other powers to recognize its existence as a power. The message further specifies the conditions essential to recognition. The people recognized must be "united "under some known and defined form "of government, acknowledged by "those subject thereto, in which the "functions of government are admin-"istered by usual methods."

All the information obtainable from Mexico clearly indicates that CARRANZA's Government is not stable; that it is not acknowledged by all Mexicans, or nearly all; that it has no sure means of administering justice; that it is not "equipped with the machinery for the administration of internal policy," and that it is, on the contrary, depending upon this very recognition to enable it to overcome strong opposition and to dismay its opponents, some of whom are as stanchly patriotic and as strongly pledged to the establishment of a constitutional Government as CARRANZA or any of his adherents.

This message of President GRANT, written, of course, by his able and learned Secretary of State, HAMILTON FISH, indicated "the policy and the principles" which had been the nation's "sure and safe guides." Unless the present Administration possesses information concerning the strength of CARRANZA which has been withheld from the American people, it has departed from that well tried policy and those excellent principles, has discarded those safe and sure guides of statesmanship. But we are encouraged to hope that when the reasons for this action are made known they will be found sufficient. Unless they are, if the statements of CARRANZA's opponents are to be heeded, the situation in Mexico will not be improved, but quite the contrary.

"HOME RULE" TAXATION.

Inside and outside this city there is a demand for "home rule" in taxation specifically, apart from the desire for home rule generally. But home rule in taxation means different things in different places. In this city home rule in taxation means release from the system of taxation for the continuance of which there is an agitation throughout the State outside of this city. What the country considers "home rule" in taxation can be described no better than in the words of Mr. WICKERSHAM, supporting the constitutional amendment which the country opposes:

> At present the same property in a given county may be, and often is, assessed at totally different valuations for the purposes of taxation for county purposes, for village purposes, for school district purposes, or for special fire district purposes. No uniformity exists respecting the imposition of taxes on the same property within the same county. The assessment of personal property exhibits even greater inequalities. There is no rule respecting the method of assessing personal property to residents of different counties of the State.

The bill of particulars under this general complaint is familiar in the case of real estate. After the various assessments of realty have been "equalized" the ratios to market value vary in different cities this year from 50 to 91 per cent., although the law requires 100 per cent., and the tax officials are compelled to make the most stringent oaths that such is the valuation. This is so frequently remarked that it will be more instructive to examine the working of "home rule" taxation in the cities of the State except New York, where object lessons are now proceeding, making further remark about local conditions unnecessary. In 1911 Mr. LAWSON PURDY gave the results of his examination of the personal tax rolls of the State and discovered sixteen towns where there is no personal tax assessed. In 136 towns the assessment was $5,000 or less. In 334 towns the assessment was between $5,000 and $25,000. Each of the 334 got from $100 to $500 from personal taxes, which would not go far this year toward the State direct tax of $20,000,000. These towns, or some of them, are the refuges from the personal assessment now exemplified in this city. In Tuxedo the assessment of personalty is $672,500, and in Tarrytown $3,387,550. In the cities of the State the showing is similar. In seven cities the personal assessment is less than one-half of 1 per cent. of the total assessment. The largest percentage of personal to total assessment is 12.96 per cent., and in only four cities. The conclusion is inescapable that the personal tax is no reliance for the support of government, and that the larger part of it is borne in New York City. For the year above analyzed the personal tax assessment in this city was $435,774,611, for forty-seven other cities $54,710,973, and for all towns $59,595,532. No honest man can wish for the continuance of such injustice and futility.

The election this year affords an opportunity to supply an answer to what ought to be done about it. If the amendment to Article X. of the Constitution shall pass, the legislators chosen for the most part by the country can decide what the tax system shall be. They cannot make it worse. They can make it as much better as the enlightenment of the legislators shall provide. The plea now openly made for "home rule" is a plea for no rule, and for a practice which is a reproach to the fairness of mind of any man who supports it. There is no possible argument against the amendment except the possibility of what the country legislators may do to the injury of the country. The argument in favor of the amendment is what the Legislature may do for the benefit of city and country alike.

THE NATURAL HISTORY MUSEUM.

The remarkable development of the American Museum of Natural History as a factor in the city's system of free education is noted in the summary of the address of its President published this morning. This institution, in the size of its collections and their variety, the enormous field of scientific study and investigation which it so fitly represents, and the completeness of all its branches, is easily foremost among the museums of this country. Probably it is unsurpassed in the world. Its educational influence was early manifested, in the beginning of the late Professor BICKMORE's curatorship. His lectures to teachers gave a new impetus to study in the common schools. The museum lectures are continued these days, and are given also in various public school buildings; the lantern slides, of which the museum has an enormous and valuable collection, are always at the service of the schools; circulating natural history specimens are also supplied as aids to study.

In fact, quite apart from its larger scientific importance and its influence on research and exploration, the work of this museum as a factor in public education would make it a public institution of uncommon value. It is estimated that it reached 1,300,000 children last year, and its educational work, which involves the other scientific and art institutions of the city, and the public libraries as well, will be further extended in the future.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Confederates Compared to Unionists. Observers of the ex-Confederate soldiers who held a reunion in Memphis last week were struck, according to The Commercial Appeal of that city, by what it describes as the "spryness" of the veterans, and it quotes an unnamed Northerner as saying that the participants in the Grand Army parades of these days are feebler and seem older than their surviving opponents.

Generalizations as broad as this one are dubious things when based on less than a survey of the whole field, and the men who gathered in Memphis may have had the advantage, physically, if they did have it, over those who met in Washington a few days before simply because the desire to be present in the latter instance was strong enough to inspire really desperate efforts by men who should have stayed at home, while in the other case the call was strong enough to attract only the better preserved men. The Commercial Appeal, however, accepts the difference between the two classes as real and makes an elaborate explanation of it.

The Southern soldiers, it says, endured severer hardships and lived on shorter rations than did those in the Union armies. But what food they had was good, and made for health by its very simplicity, and life in the open with poor equipment, while it involved suffering for all, made rugged those whom it did not kill. After the war was over, the Southerner returned, not to a more or less easy, and usually pensioned, life, but to another hard fight—that with poverty, and oftener than the Northerner he fought it in some occupation that kept him out of doors for most of the time, in the country, not in cities.

These are plausible arguments, but they are not quite convincing. One who looked further for a theory of the alleged difference might find it in the probability that the ages of the men in the Southern armies, especially toward the end of the war, averaged lower than did the ages on the other side. That hardship and hard work tend to produce a hale old age is a familiar contention, but it is not supported by exact observation, and the biography of practically all centenarians contradicts it. They not infrequently come to the poorhouse toward the end of their careers, yet almost always their lives have been "easy" and emotionally uneventful.

A Coroner Speaks in Haste. A Brooklyn Coroner, possibly because he deals so much with the unresentful dead, has ignored or forgotten the risk—a large one in these days—of offending a full half of "the quick" by declaring that in his opinion women are temperamentally unfitted for running automobiles. This unkind statement he was moved to make to his jurymen while they were considering the case of a man over whom a feminine chauffeur had driven her car, but something, perhaps a warning from his subconscious ego, made him hastily admit that there are some, and even many, women who are as competent at the steering wheel as any man.

Finally the Coroner's all-including condemnation simmered down to the declaration that no woman should be licensed as an automobilist until after an examination that proved that for her to act in this capacity was reasonably free from danger to the general public.

Had the Coroner included men in this assertion he would have arrived at a perfectly sound and tenable conclusion. While it is presumably true that women are inferior to men, as far as concerns the possession of the instinct for and sense of machinery which is required for the operation of an automobile, the difference is probably more than made up by the caution which knowledge of the lack gives most of them when running a car. By running it slowly they avoid meeting many of the highway emergencies with which the majority of women drivers might be unable to cope. At any rate, of all automobile "accidents," more happen to men than their greater number demands, and the woman scorcher is almost unknown.

And if the Brooklyn Coroner or anybody else wants to investigate the subject he will find that there are men, too, and not a few, who are "temperamentally unfitted" for driving automobiles—men to whom no amount of training or experience will ever give the quick mental and muscular response to the demands for instant and correct action which the automobile so often makes. They are the automobilists to whom and from whom comes trouble or danger—all of it, nearly—and the new psychology could easily separate them from their fellows who are abler in this particular direction.

Confession and Repentance. One of the correspondents of THE TIMES demands and shall receive an expression of deep compunction for recent remarks in this column about dyeing codfish pink and selling them for salmon.

It is true, as this critic says, that the operation was a nefarious one, condemnable by moralists, economists, and sanitarians alike, and true is it, too, that the Board of Health deserved credit, not reprehension, for ferreting out and stopping the fraud.

One seeking excuse for sin committed, error promulgated, and the treating of a serious subject with levity, might say, of course, that as it is quite obviously wrong to dye codfish pink and sell them for salmon, it ought to be, and was expected to be; equally obvious that commendation of the dyers and regret for the suppression of their art were not seriously meant. The fact remains that untruths were written—that evil was called good and good evil.

The thing said should be the thing meant—always, always, always. Jesting is well enough in its way, but jokes should be tagged, lest they pass for earnest, and tender sensibilities, as in this instance, be hurt. At least one codfish is sacred, and all of them are respectable. Hereafter, in this column, at least, they shall always be mentioned reverently.

But why doesn't the friend of exact veracity get after the somebody over in Philadelphia who has caused to be printed in a paper there the statement that "the late Mrs. WILSON, like the President, was the daughter of a Presbyterian minister"? Isn't it as wicked to make an unintentional joke about solemn matters as to praise dyed cod?

From Him That Hath Not.

May I, as a social worker greatly interested in the present problem of the "unemployed situation," add my voice as a protest against the cutting of salaries for the city's "small employes"?

I do not feel at liberty to state my official position in this connection, but I am in a position to deal daily with many men looking for work. Many of them have, until recently, held small clerical positions, and every cut in wages (which has reached always to the "small men" first) means a nearer approach to actual poverty. The tendency is for a man—especially if he is married—to take any work that offers, and thus the drift is constantly downward toward mere manual labor. These men in turn displace the poorer laborers, and the problem of the "great unemployed" is created for the city to help solve. Why, then, recruit its ranks from their own offices? What is the economy? If there must be a cut, why not, therefore, begin at the top? Of course this would be, comparatively speaking, as hard for the men at the top, but actually they would not be on the verge of poverty, and it would seem that it would work out more economically for the city.

THE MADDENING HORN.

Is there no one to rise up and protest against the din and noise made by the infernal electrically operated automobile horns? This nuisance has now become in many sections of the city almost unbearable.

I have an office in Forty-fifth Street, just off Fifth Avenue. Across the way is a popular shop, where rich people in automobiles come to trade. Because the street is narrow and crowded with trucks it is difficult to get through, and the chauffeurs who run the automobiles will often sit and hoot and toot for several minutes at a stretch in an insolent demand to get out of their way. The noise they make can be heard at a distance of three or four blocks.

Why should it be allowed? The rich people of this town do not own the streets, nor have they a right of way over them. Why, indeed, should the automobile be such a shrieking nuisance, anyway, not only in the busy streets but in the country and everywhere? I own a motor car, and I will undertake to drive it all day long on Manhattan Island or in the country at good speed and never touch the horn. The only time I ever use it is when I am impatient and in a hurry, and want to hoot somebody out of my road.

Sometimes it is needful and justifiable, as when, for example, a truck or hay wagon is squarely in the middle of a narrow road, and you cannot get by on either side. But when it comes to pedestrians, I have no right to ask them to look out for me. It is my business to look out for them.

On the seas, for obvious reasons, the right of way is with the slowest moving vessel. Why should it not be the same on land? There is not one person in a thousand who can own or ride in an automobile. Why should the rights and convenience of the other nine hundred and ninety-nine people be given up to one arrogant and ruthless beast, for that is exactly what the hooting, tooting motorist has become.

The State of New Jersey and the City of New York have legislated against blinding lights at night, and many other nuisances which have arisen with the advent of the motor car have been abated, as, for example, excessive speed, the use of the muffler cutouts in cities and villages, and so on. Why not also the needless and abominable noise?

The electrical razzle-dazzle, miscalled a "horn," is simply an invention of the devil. It is the most nerve-racking, maddening device that could be imagined. If I were to take an ordinary tin horn and stand on the corner of the street and blow it for an hour I should be arrested. Why are chauffeurs allowed to do what other people are not?

A soft little buzz is all that is needed to warn another vehicle of my approach, and, as for pedestrians, it is the writer's belief as a motor car driver, that the chauffeur has no right to warn them at all.

When a motor car driver strikes a pedestrian, it is absolutely the fault of the driver, and never anything else. It is certainly an astonishing condition of affairs when the rights of the great body of the community are utterly ignored for the sake of the few who are able to own motor cars. When I walk along the street I do not feel that I have any right to carry a tin whistle in my pocket to shriek at some one to get out of my road. Neither when I drove a horse and carriage did I ever feel the need of a horn. That came only with the speed maniac and the motor car owners, who think they own the earth.

May I suggest that we are a strange kind of people to permit this hoodlum type to kill and maim unoffending people, largely little children or helpless old people, for the sake of their being able to gratify a maniacal desire for speed?

If it were the law that any motor car driver who kills or runs over a pedestrian should be forthwith hung or shot on the spot, may I express my belief that these atrocious murders, for they are nothing else, would cease within twenty-four hours?

Are we simply a lot of barbarians to let these things go on?

Shall Sex Impulse Be Added to Religion and Greed in Politics?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Woman suffrage, as I conceive it, is not the great evil to be fought, but rather mixed suffrage.

It is elementary that the mainspring of human action is the desire of self-perpetuation. From this, as from a common source, flow the three elemental passions: The desire for the possession of worldly goods, sex impulse, and religious emotion. Through the acquirement of worldly goods man hopes to defeat the forces of nature leagued for his destruction; through the sex impulse, to perpetuate himself in his children; through religion, to live forever in another world.

Money, or its equivalent, has always proved a prolific source of corruption in political life, in all countries, and in all ages. Religion, pure and holy as it is, has ever shown itself, when allowed to interfere in worldly government, an element of oppression and corruption. It corrupts itself and the civil government.

The founders of this country, well aware of this, placed as a cornerstone of our Constitution the absolute separation of Church and State. Mixed suffrage being undreamed of, they esteemed that the only source of corruption possible would be money, and this they saw no way of eliminating.

Heedless of the lesson of the ages, we are now asked to introduce into our politics a still more potent weapon of corruption than religion, namely, the sex impulse.

The demoralizing effect of this impulse in political life is known to all acquainted with the history of, among others, Louis XIV. and Louis XV. of France and Catherine II. of Russia. Poniatowski was made King of Poland by this last. It was not, as I read history, because he was known to be an able administrator. It was for far different reasons.

If women have proved more efficient, more capable and more intelligent than men, by all means give them the vote, but by the same measure disfranchise men. Mixed suffrage will be an unmixed evil. ANTIEPICENE.

The Weaker Vessel.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to reply to your correspondent signing herself "A. M." I do not doubt that hers is a deserving case, and that there are many female stenographers who should share with their male associates the chance of advancement.

In my long business career I have found that as a rule the female worker expects much more consideration than the male, by staying at home through indisposition, begins the business day later, and stops earlier than her male colleague.

I have seen the fairer sex while away hours at a time reading or embroidering, while the sterner sex feels compunction at this ruthless wasting of the firm's time and will endeavor to ask for additional work or offer his services to help out in another department. X. Y. Z.

What Do Dogs Think of Death?

Why is it that dogs never have feelings of affection for their own kind while so faithful and devoted to human beings?

Two dogs of the same litter may be raised together, play together for years, yet one can be killed and mangled in sight of the other without the slightest interest being taken, unless it be, possibly, to sniff around the body, apparently out of curiosity. It is plain that dogs understand what death is, for there are many authentic cases where dogs have followed a dead master to the grave and had to be removed from the spot by physical force, refusing all food for days afterward, seemingly from grief. A NEW CONVERT TO SUFFRAGE.

By ROBERT UNDERWOOD JOHNSON.

A Letter to Mrs. William Vanamee of Newburg, Equal Suffrage Leader of the First Assembly District of Orange County.

My Dear Mrs. Vanamee:

In response to your request and in fulfillment of my promise several weeks ago, I gladly send you this record of my chief reasons for deciding to vote for the equal suffrage amendment at the November election. I trust they may commend themselves to others who have been studying the question with a desire to arrive at a reasonable conclusion, but who are yet hesitating.

I have not been precipitate in coming to my decision. I was born into an atmosphere of woman suffrage, and every man of four generations of my family has favored it—my grandfather, my father, three uncles, my brother, and my son. Until last Winter I classified myself as "unconvinced" rather than opposed. In the last year of my editorship of The Century I wrote four articles in the magazine against the policy of militancy which prevailed in England at that time. In these articles I did not consider the merits of the main question. In response, certain State Suffrage Committees came out definitely against the use of violence, and I received many individual assurances of approval, which showed conclusively that the rank and file of the suffragists of America are opposed to that fatal policy.

Moreover, I have been deeply impressed with the large number of cultivated, refined, and distinctly feminine women of my acquaintance to whom the desire for the ballot is a matter of sincere and well-reasoned conviction. Indeed, it seems to me that the strongest influence in the campaign is the clear thinking and persuasive speech of the many intellectual women who are advocating equal suffrage.

An Analogy with Copyright.

I think it not very enlightening to discuss the theory on which the suffrage is conferred. For many years, in trying to put an end to the national disgrace of literary piracy, we encountered interminable hair-splitting as to the theory of copyright. Was the right to control the value of one's literary output a natural right or a statutory right? And if it was a natural right under common law before the statute of Queen Anne, (which limited the term, with a view to giving a better remedy against infraction,) did that statute abolish the natural right? While theorists were busy with such niceties, the friends of international copyright pushed home the ethical argument: that it was outrageous that an author should be deprived of the result of his labor, that this product should be considered so valuable to the public that it must be confiscated to its use, and yet not valuable enough to be paid for. We said: On whatever theory the security of copyright is conferred upon the property of our own citizens, we demand it for the property of citizens of other countries within our gates.

Something analogous seems to me to exist in the suffrage. If it be a natural right, then it should be conferred without the test of sex. And whatever theory may obtain, whether of privilege or public policy or duty to the State, I can see no reason for drawing the line against women.

We need give but a word to the preposterous argument that the suffrage should be conditioned upon the ability to bear arms, when in fact no such duty is exacted of large classes of men such as invalids and cripples, and when only able-bodied men are knowingly included in the posse comitatus. And supposing the enlightened world should some time arrive at an agreement that would virtually make an end of war, what then would become of that argument, and who would be qualified to vote?

Property Representation.

Since the ballot has been conferred not only on all men who hold property, but on all men whether or not they are property holders, the present exclusion of all women, including property-holding women, is manifestly unjust. Most candid opponents of a general extension of the suffrage admit the injustice and absurdity of vicarious representation of property holders. Women taxpayers, I believe, have no representation except at certain special elections, to decide certain questions, in towns and small cities.

I see no escape from the conclusion that property owners should be represented whether they be men or women. I am not moved by the reply that minors and aliens are not represented in the electorate or that a single ballot would be a very slight protection to a woman worth a million dollars. Minors and aliens are not confined to either sex, so that in no event would there be a sex discrimination. The woman with the million dollars would have the same protection as a man having the same amount, not merely the protection of the single ballot, but the protection of the power and influence that accompany the vote. It seems to me that here, too, the sex line should not be drawn and that sane native women, and especially property-holding women, should not be excluded from participation in the suffrage, since it has been conferred upon all classes of men.

Are Women Dangerous to the State?

But are women, whether property holders or not, so dangerous to the State that safeguards must be maintained against them? I believe that not only have we nothing to fear from this quarter—in which of the suffrage States has the experiment resulted disastrously?—but that we are failing to avail ourselves of a sorely needed force of recruits for good government. It is objected that we should be doubling the electorate without improving it. On the contrary, I find the strongest argument for equal suffrage in the prospect that ultimately the quality of the voters will thus be greatly improved. Is it not true that the influence of the intelligent and virtuous is much greater than their relative numbers? What progress we have made since 1787 has been largely due to the leadership of intelligent minorities, and where we have failed, it has been because the intelligent leaders have not always been virtuous. Some one has said: "The safety of the world lies in the fact that bad men are not always wise." Conversely, the danger to the world lies in the fact that good men are sometimes unwise. If a numerical preponderance of ignorant and vicious could have swamped us we should long ago have failed. What we need is not so much to diminish ignorance and vice as to increase the potentiality of intelligence and virtue. If to the male vote of this class—let us call it one-third of the whole—can be added the same proportion of intelligent women, there is little danger to be apprehended from the other two-thirds of either sex.

Candor compels any man with his eyes open to admit that at present good government is obtained at a frightful waste and against great odds. The chief obstacles are indifference and lack of ideality. Men absorbed in the struggle for life want both imagination and a sense of responsibility, and in this respect we appear to be getting worse. It is not to be expected that, by some magic of the ballot, women will rise to the perfect exercise of every political function—that, for instance, they will be able to manage governmental finances, (few men are so qualified;) but it is reasonable to expect that they will bring to many problems valuable qualities; comprehension of human needs, special experience, ideality, sympathy, freedom from deadening traditions, refined instincts, interest in the higher life as reflected in literature, art, and music, and, best of all, common sense in dealing with such subjects as public health, prison reforms, child labor, the drink evil, municipal going-to-seed, &c. In short, the more intelligence, culture, and morality we can get into the electorate to react against bad government the better for all.

How Women Can Help.

Leaving aside the college graduate of both sexes, the average woman of today is certainly not less well educated than the average man. For two generations, while he has been hard at work in business, she has been able to keep a closer touch with the world, through newspapers, magazines and books, by study, intellectual club life, settlement work, society, and travel. She has made amazing progress. She has learned how to economize time and effort in the conduct of the household and the care of children; many things which she formerly made laboriously are now purchased cheaply, and in many ways her interests have broadened while her husband has not kept pace with her. She is as capable as he of making decisions in the main both wise and free from improper influences. Men have only to remember what they say to one another of the incompetence of the average male voter to see how far short the electorate of today comes of the standard of perfection which they are inclined to exact for women. It will be much if we can add a large body of voters in the main willing and competent to follow good leadership.

Moreover, as the main influence upon the next generation, whether in the home or in the school, women need to be prepared to train citizens. Shall mothers learn and teach everything that is useful to impart to their sons and daughters except the most necessary? What time does the average father—whose place certainly is not in the home—have to give to the direction of his sons in political principles? I feel sure that the extension of the suffrage will give women a higher sense of responsibility to the State, and through this key men up to their own civic duty.

Woman, War, and the Saloon.

Believing that the greatest evil of our epoch is the resort to war to settle international differences, I hail the coming of woman into the electorate as a forward, if not a final, step toward universal peace. From the day of Horace women have opposed war. He says:

> Many the camp delights, the trumpet's call
> With bugle mingling, and fierce battle's brawl
> By mothers hated. * * *

Certainly women do not need to be convinced of the awful suffering caused by war any more than a starving man needs to be shown that he is hungry. Woman is often the innocent sufferer from wars waged by man without her consent. So far as we know, no woman is responsible for the insane precipitation of the present conflict. The millions of widows of Europe, added to the millions who will have to support, in part or wholly, the maimed, crippled, half-witted, or invalid veterans, will not have to be converted to the idea that "war is hell," while on this side of the Atlantic the dreadful carnage has aroused the sensibilities of our women to a lively horror of the cruelty and the mad extravagance of war. Wanton war has given to woman one of the strongest reasons for her enfranchisement. As the laborer needed the voting power to improve his condition, so woman needs the power that goes with the ballot to help her assist man to prevent war, at the same time safeguarding the country with adequate defense. Woman should be privileged to assist freely in solving this problem.

I am further influenced by the fact that in the mass equal suffrage is opposed by several objectionable classes. No doubt many sincere and patriotic men and women are opposed to suffrage, but there are elements of sordidness in the opposition that have no counterpart on the other side. For obvious reasons the rank and file of professional politicians of both chief parties in this State are against the entrance of woman to political power, while the liquor interests are solidly and aggressively, though so far as possible secretly, at work to defeat the amendment. I believe that here, as abroad, even among men who are not abstainers, there is a great awakening to the fact that the drink evil is a monstrous obstacle to national progress. It is women chiefly who suffer from it, as they do from war, and their intelligent and reasonable influence will be exerted as inevitably against one as against the other. In this respect, their further participation in responsible Government will be an immense public benefit. Should the amendment fail in New York, it will probably be due to the fact that every saloon in the State is a recruiting station for the opposition, and the defeat itself would be a conclusive argument for a speedy reconsideration of the question.

A SONG FOR FALL.

Autumn's no foe to flee!

What if the year is today turning over
The garden be but one rose?

Love still goes tramping ahead, working wageless,
To play at surveyor and break a new road.
So in thy heart shall the Spring blossom ageless—

TRUCKMAN SINGER A RIVAL OF CARUSO

WILL BE TRAINED FOR OPERA

Turn in His Life Came While Sitting Despondent and Out of a Job in Riverside Park.

A week ago this morning a disconsolate truck driver, out of a job, sat on a bench along lower Riverside Drive, and as he counted his last few pennies mourned the wreck of the dream of wealth and happiness which was to have been his in free America and repented the morning sixteen years ago when he walked away from his home in far-off Galatz, perched among the Rumanian hills.

Then the tide of his fortunes turned.

Something whispered to him to try his luck once more in the Land of Opportunity. Leaving his bench of despair he turned into Seventy-second Street, and was walking toward Broadway when from high up over the street came the sound of a girl's voice in the tune of an opera the truck driver had never heard. He knew only that it was so beautiful that he forgot his troubles and began to hum the lines of "Donia," a Rumanian love song, as he passed the house. Touched by the cheer of the song, he turned and passed the house again and repassed, held to the place by his love of music.

The maid who answers the door of the Aborn School for Opera Classes, 240 West Seventy-second Street, found standing on the steps a man in uncouth clothes who seemed not able to speak. Finally he pointed up to where the voice came from and said:

"I, too, can sing. I want to sing for you."

Returns for Another Chance.

When the bell rang again she found the same man with the same plea. His face and voice were so earnest that the maid called Mrs. Alice Parker, a vocal instructor, and, more in the spirit of fun, she took him to her studio, and there the truck driver in overalls sang. People on the street stopped to listen at the great volume of sound as the man sang "Donia," "Naptatrito Plassinge," songs of Rumania, and then surprised by ignoring the accompanist and launching into "When the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold." When every one in the building—they had all gathered when they heard the truck driver sing—had finished applauding him Mrs. Parker said:

"You must, please, sing for Mr. Aborn. Come again tomorrow. Come at noon."

The next day, Tuesday, Milton Aborn looked from the window of his office to see a furniture van stop at his door. It was about 10:30 o'clock. It was the truck driver, about two hours ahead of time. He had gotten another truck job, but hadn't forgotten the music place.

The outcome of Mr. Aborn's listening is that today the truck driver begins his last week of manual labor, and buttoned over his heart carries a five years' contract to sing. A week from today he enters Mr. Aborn's school, with a guarantee of all the money he needs and the prospect of earning $1,000 a week instead of the $12 pay of a truck driver.

A Rich Baritone.

Before an audience of music folk and reporters Morris Horn sang yesterday afternoon. He said his real name was Morris Hornfeld, but Mr. Aborn thought he could do without the "feld." He had a piece of which he had learned the words and the tune, for he can read not one note of music. It was called "My Song." No one present had ever heard it, and it didn't matter where Horn got it—he could sing it! A rich baritone, indeed, almost a tenor, his voice filled the room. Without the benefit of his first music lesson, not knowing one note from another, with only his ear for music, Horn sang. When he found the accompanist couldn't play the music for his Rumanian songs, he said that made no difference, and went ahead without the music. Then he concluded with "When the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold." Horn has an enormous chest, with six inches expansion, and the volume of his voice was such that Mr. Aborn said jokingly that he intended to rent Madison Square Garden in which to teach his protegée the technique he must learn. Sunday afternoon promenaders stopped in Seventy-second Street to listen, automobiles slowed up as the audience grew. The man protested when Mr. Aborn ordered him to stop singing after half an hour.

When he finished singing Mr. Aborn had him run the scale, when he showed a range of more than two and one-half octaves—from low D to high A.

"When did you learn to sing?" a dozen voices asked Horn when he had finished.

"All my life I sing," he said. "I sing in the truck, I sing in the street car when I am motorman. I love to sing always."

Promises Great Future.

"Horn is a discovery," said Mr. Aborn. "I may be mistaken, but I think he has a great future. I believe his voice will prove to be far superior to Ruffo's. Indeed, I think with training that Horn will become a great tenor. You can see how he is handicapped by lack of technique. He doesn't know how to breathe, but all that is easy for him, if his voice proves to be what I think it is."

Horn is Mr. Aborn's slave. When the opera impresario asked him if he would be willing to work for $25 a week, for $50, for $100, Horn's eyes grew big. Then when Mr. Aborn told him that he would care for him, teach him, board him, clothe him and make him able to earn hundreds of dollars a week, Horn didn't know what to say.

"Anything you want," was his only answer.

On Saturday Mr. Aborn went with his protégé to a lawyer's office and there was signed a contract by which Mr. Aborn will teach Horn and manage him, giving him money enough to live on, and when Horn goes on the stage, he and Mr. Aborn will share evenly in what the singer earns.

"You can say," said Mr. Aborn, "that it is useless for vaudeville managers to come after Horn. He is destined for grand opera. I am going to try him out with the prologue of 'Pagliacci' first. Greater things will follow."

"I am 30 years old," he said. "I was born in Galatz, Rumania. My father and mother, they kept an inn. They were murdered by robbers soon after I was born. I was taken in by relatives. Then when I was 12 years old, with a number of others, I walked for two weeks to a port, from where I sailed on the Barbarossa for New York. I remember it was July 4, 1899, when I landed.

Ran Away from the Shoemaker.

"Then some society sent me to Hartford, where I was to work for a shoemaker. He beat me and I ran away and walked to New York. Here I have done almost all things. I sold peaches, I sold vegetables, I ran errands—anything—until I was grown. Then I drove a truck for several years. Always I sang. I got a job as motorman on the Sixth Avenue street car line in 1913. Always I sang while I ground that brake. I quit that job for a street cleaning job. That I kept three days—the smell, it was so much I couldn't sing. I couldn't work unless I sing. Then a little while I was a fighter—a boxer, down at Ike Fedensky's club. I quit that and go to work in a furniture store. That failed. Then I got a job on a truck. I work on a truck till I lose my job two weeks ago.

"I never can forget it was last Monday I walked from way down on Eighth Street where I live, looked for job all time. I asked everywhere but nothing doing. I got up to the park by the river there and I stopped to rest. I didn't sing that day. I was sad. Presently I start to walk some more and then I heard the music from Mr. Aborn's school. Then I start to sing—and music, it bring me good luck again. Such fine luck—I sing, and they tell me I'll be great some day. I think they fool me.

"But luck had come back. I go out and the first thing I get a truck job. You see, I think they fool with me But then Mr. Aborn he tell me I'll be great and I know—it's all too good to be true. I quit my truck job Saturday night. I'm going to be a great singer.

Always Loved to Sing.

"All my life I love to sing. Down on the east side I used to go into restaurants where they have phonographs. I hear Caruso sing and I go out and try to sing like him. I stand behind theatres and hear them sing, for I have not money to buy a ticket. I have never heard grand opera, but Mr. Aborn he will take me next week. And I will sing grand opera. Caruso, he sing in a butcher shop; I sing on a truck.

"I can sing four languages, but I must learn to sing in English best, for Mr. Aborn says there will be great English opera some day and I must be one of them."

"Are you married?" Horn was asked.

"No," he replied, and then drew up to his full five feet seven inches of stature and, smiling, added: "But soon. My sweetheart she has been waiting long for me.

"I am all happy. They say I make lots money. But I care not for the money, I only want to sing."

SISTERS BECOME BRIDES.

A double wedding was celebrated at 6:30 yesterday evening in the Roman Catholic Church of St. Charles Borromeo, in West 141st Street. The brides were sisters, the Misses Mary and Eleanor Smith, the former becoming the bride of A. J. Bradbury, and the latter of Joseph King. A wedding dinner for the bridal party and a few relatives was served at the house of the brides' mother at 217 West 139th Street.

Miss Mary Smith wore a gown of white lace and pale pink silk, and was attended by her sister, Miss Lillian Smith, and Mr. Bradbury had Daniel Welsh for his best man. Miss Eleanor Smith in a deeper shade of pink silk, with white lace, was attended by another sister, Miss Agnes Smith, and Mr. King had Watson Young for his best man. There were no ushers, and the Rev. Father John Boyland officiated at both weddings. Mr. and Mrs. King will spend their honeymoon in Bermuda, while Mr. Bradbury will take his bride to the Yellowstone.

Miss Mary Smith made the acquaintance of her future husband in a romantic fashion. In 1910, when she lived in West 135th Street, Mr. Bradbury, then a student at Columbia College, occupied rooms directly across an open court from her home. He saw her and was at once attracted by her. He failed, however, to find any one who could introduce him in the customary fashion, and so he introduced himself to Mrs. Smith and begged her to present him to her daughter. She finally did so, and last night's wedding is the outcome.

MISS LOTT'S WEDDING PLANS

Miss Anita Livingston Lott, a daughter of the late Jeremiah Lott, of Flatbush, and Russell V. Cruikshank are to be married Wednesday, Oct. 20 at 5 o'clock in the afternoon in the Old Dutch Reformed Church in Flatbush, where Miss Lott's sister, Miss Marie Ditmas Lott on Sept. 18 married Donald McCullough Hills. Mrs Hills is to be the matron of honor and the bridesmaids are to be the Misses Ida Livingston Hagedorn, Margaret Lewis, Vera Robbins Browne, Louise Banks Lott, and Dorothy Loomis Betts.

Mr. Cruikshank will have his brother, Douglas M. Cruikshank, for his best man, and the ushers are to be Donald McCullough Hills, Lieutenant Edmund Brandt, U. S. N.; Richard Young, Jr., Cornelius B. Kouwenhoven, F. Goldthwaite Sherrill, and Edward W. Walker. The reception will be held at the Lott homestead.

Miss Searing Makes Wedding Plans.

The wedding of Miss Florence Elizabeth Searing, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Preston James Searing of Brooklyn, and Roswell Homan, a son of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Homan of Riverhead, L. I., will take place on Monday, Nov. 8, at Rusurban, Lefferts Place, Brooklyn. Miss Searing's sister, Mrs. William Kleinteich, will be the matron of honor, and Mr. Kleinteich is to be the best man. The Misses Eleanor Winne of South Orange, Isabel Murphy, and Lucie Fonda will be the bridesmaids, and little Miss Alice Preston Thomas and James Preston Searing, Jr., the niece and nephew of the bride, will be the flower girl and page.

Miss Bridwell to Wed on Oct. 27.

Miss Jeannette Bridwell and Raymond M. Partridge will be married on Wednesday evening, Oct. 27, in St. Paul's Church, Flatbush, L. I. Miss Florence Fuller will be the maid of honor, the Misses Helen Selover, Evelyn Kingsley and Charlotte Leaf are to be bridesmaids and the little Misses Helen Whitcomb and Dorothy Reynolds, flower girls. Dr. George Brickelmaier will act as best man, and the ushers selected are William Engelman, Donald Smith, Harold Munger, and Willis H. Safford.

GASTON—WRIGHT.

Miss Mary Wright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wright of Teaneck, N. J., was married yesterday to Edward F. Gaston in St. Francis's Roman Catholic Church at Ridgewood Park, N. J., by the Rev. James McDonald. The bride was given in marriage by her father, and Miss Ethel Woodters of Philadelphia, a cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. Alexander Gaston, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man. After the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Gaston will live in Teaneck after a honeymoon trip through New England.

THRONG HEARS EULOGIES

The sarcophagus of Benjamin Altman, the merchant, who died on Oct. 7, 1913, leaving one of the finest private collections of paintings in the world to the Metropolitan Museum of Art and his business to be conducted for the benefit of his employes, was unveiled before a thousand persons at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Salem Fields Cemetery at Cypress Hills, L. I.

Two of the old employes of Mr. Altman unveiled the memorial as a prayer was said by Rabbi Joseph Silverman. Robert W. de Forest, President of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, delivered a eulogy. He said:

"In his life Benjamin Altman was widely known as a great merchant. In his later life he was known to a small circle as a great art collector. It was only after the publication of his will that he was known as a true lover of his fellow-men.

"The immense building which he erected in Fifth Avenue for his extensive business bore witness to the world of his greatness as a merchant. The simple stateliness of its architecture evidenced to the dicerning eye his aesthetic taste. But only his will revealed him as he really was. As Dr. Sachs said in the noble tribute he rendered to his old friend at the funeral: 'His modesty was unusual; he abhorred notoriety.'

"To me he seemed to carry these qualities to the point of extreme reserve. But he expressed his innermost thought in his will. Some of the most tender-hearted and sympathetic of men altogether lack the power of expressing their sympathy. The written word, penned in solitude, often gives the first intimation of that. So it must have been with him. The public which he loved first knew him after death through his will.

"I have read many wills. In fact, I have drawn many wills myself. Not infrequently wills are not only lawyer-drawn but lawyer-composed in response to a general desire to do what is proper—a conventional division among the members of the family, and a decent regard for charity."

Mr. de Forest spoke of the greatness of Mr. Altman's gift to the Metropolitan Museum of Art and continued:

"But however much this gift of his art treasures evidences his regard for his fellow-men, there are other gifts in his will which evidence it still more. He recognized the faithful service of those by whose co-operation he had been enabled to build up a prosperous and successful business. He provided for a continuance of that business, and he gave all his interest in it to those who do continue it and to charity. His gift to the people through the Museum is a visible monument. Self-pride, the desire to perpetuate a name in striking form, might be the chief motive for such a monument. Not so, however, the monument he had erected in the hearts of those who are now and who are hereafter to be associated in the business which he built up."

A letter of regret was read from Mayor Mitchel, who wrote:

"Let me express my earnest regret that I am prevented from participation in this greatly deserved tribute to one of New York's best citizens. The Altman collection in the Metropolitan Museum of Art is in itself a monument which attests more eloquently than any spoken or written word Benjamin Altman's fine and unselfish public spirit."

Dr. Bernard Sachs, a lifelong friend of Mr. Altman, said:

"Mr. Altman's name stands for a conscientious performance of duty, for supreme efficiency in all the affairs of life, for a generous and well-directed philanthropy, and for the furtherance in this beloved country of ours of a healthy interest in the highest forms of art."

Besides those who spoke there were on the platform, which had been erected in front of the sarcophagus, Michael Friedsam, President of B. Altman & Co.; George R. Read, E. J. Steiner, John Henry Hammond, Justice Samuel Greenbaum, General Rush C. Hawkins, Arthur Brisbane, and several other friends of Mr. Altman. Nearly all of the employes of B. Altman & Co. attended the ceremonies.

MISS PURVES WEDS OCT. 23.

Ceremony Will Take Place in the Hampton Institute Church.

The plans for the wedding of Miss Ruth Purves, the daughter of Mrs. Alexander Purves of New York and Hampton, Va., and Alfred Van Santvoord Olcott, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Eben Erskine Olcott of New York, have been completed. The wedding will take place at 12 o'clock on Saturday, Oct. 23, in the Memorial Church at Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va., and will be followed by a small wedding breakfast at "The Moorings," the home of Mrs. Purves.

Miss Purves will have Miss Katharine Olcott, a sister of Mr. Olcott, as her maid of honor. The six bridesmaids are to be the Misses Louise Tilge and Emma B. Murphy of Germantown, Margaret Armstrong of Hampton, Florence Colgate and Eleanor White of New York, and Eleanor De Graff of Plainfield, N. J.

Mr. Olcott will have his brother, Charles T. Olcott, as his best man. The ushers are to be J. L. B. Buck, Joseph Coughlin, and Sidney Frissell of Hampton, William Arnett of Philadelphia, William Floyd Crosby of Albany, and Van Santvoord Merle-Smith of New York. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Hollis B. Frissell, the Principal of Hampton Institute.

Engagements Announced.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Ella Louise Adams, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Russell Adams of Brooklyn, to Harry Crocker Hutchins of Ann Arbor, Mich., a son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burns Hutchins.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Grover of Westfield, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Grace I. Grover, to Lewis G. Callahan, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius H. Callahan of Brooklyn. Miss Grover will be married some time next month.

MOROSCO AN INDEPENDENT.

Oliver Morosco, the California theatrical manager who arrived in New York a week ago to direct the production of the plays he will offer here this Fall, announced last night that hereafter he would book his attractions in New York in Klaw & Erlanger as well as in Shubert theatres. Heretofore, Mr. Morosco has booked exclusively in the Shubert houses. He gave, last night, as one reason for his change in policy, the fact that the Shuberts had refused to admit the dramatic critic of THE TIMES to review the first performance of his latest play when it was produced in a theatre under the Shubert management, Mr. Morosco said:

"When I found I could not get an advertisement in THE TIMES if I produced in Shubert houses, on account of the refusal of the managers to admit THE TIMES critic, I went to Klaw & Erlanger and arranged to present some of my plays in New York in their houses. 'Sadie Love,' a new play, by Avery Hopwood, will be given in the Gaiety Theatre Nov. 8, and I have booked another production for one of this firm's Broadway theatres. Altogether I expect to make seven productions here this season and I told Mr. Erlanger that I wanted to act as an independent manager."

ARTISTS OUTPLAY ACTORS.

They Score 17 to 3 in Five Innings of Baseball Game.

Lack of punch caused the defeat of James J. Corbett, Willie Ritchie and other theatrical stars on the actors' baseball team at Bayside, L. I., yesterday afternoon, when they played a nine of cartoonists led by T. A. Dorgan.

Most of the balls batted by the cartoonists got through the infield and were stopped only by the force of gravity, which did the principal defensive work for the actors. In the fifth inning the score stood 17 to 3 in favor of the cartoonists, and the game was ended by mutual consent, in which about 1,000 spectators participated.

Among Corbett's athletes were Carter de Haven, Chris Brown, Herbert Corthell, Junie McCree, Marshall Farnham and Maurice Costello. The official scorer had on the cartoonists' line-up: "Rube" Goldberg, Tom McNamara, "Stuffy" Miller, Harry Hirschfield, Clarence Bathchelor, Milton Gross, Hal Coffman, "Gunboat" Hudson and Walter Hoban.

Second Sousa Hippodrome Concert.

John Philip Sousa and his band gave the second concert of a series they will give on Sunday nights during the Winter at the Hippodrome last night. The bandmaster played a new composition called "Dwellers of the Western World," in which there were passages descriptive of the red, white, and black races. Dvorak, Nevin, Sarasate, and Wagner were represented on the program. Miss Grace Hoffman, soprano; Miss Florence Hardeman, violinist, and Herbert L. Clarke, cornetist, were the soloists.

To Assign Parts in Reicher Plays.

Emanuel Reicher will assemble the players who will appear in his two companies, the Modern Stage and the American People's Theatre, this season at the Garden Theatre tonight to assign parts for the first plays to be given, Bjornstjerne Bjornson's "When the New Vine Blooms" and "Gerhard Hauptmann's "The Weavers." There will be more than fifty players in the two companies, with supernumeraries for the plays that require them. Mr. Reicher will direct the companies and his assistants will be Francis Powell, Kraft Walton, and Augustin Duncan.

Gatti-Casazza and Caruso Sail.

According to a cable message received here yesterday by the agents, McDonnel & Truder, 5 State Street, the Italian liner Dante Alighieri will not arrive in New York until Oct. 16, because she has to call at Almeria for grapes. The dispatch also stated that the company had fitted up special cabins for Enrico Caruso and Gatti-Casazza, the general manager of the Metropolitan Opera House, who are among the 151 cabin passengers on board.

SOCIETY AT NEWPORT.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 10.—John R. McLean of Washington, who has been occupying a cottage at Narragansett Pier several seasons, was here today looking over several places. It is understood Mr. McLean, who spent one season here, will resume his Newport Summer residence next season.

Paymaster Robert S. Chew, Jr., attached to the United States steamship Neptune, was a guest of friends in the Summer colony today.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Marie Narelle, an Australian mezzo-soprano, will be the Adelaide in the operetta of that title when it is given at a series of special performances by David Bispham beginning next Sunday afternoon in the Harris Theatre. Others in Mr. Bispham's company will be Idelle Patterson, Kathleen Coman, Henri Barron, and Graham Harris.

A steam yacht that cost $40,000 when it was built will be dynamited in Princess Bay, off Staten Island, some day this week in the taking of a Vitagraph feature film entitled "The Surprises of an Empty Hotel." The yacht, the Wayward, was the winner of two races to Bermuda in her early days.

A theatre party will be given in the York Theatre tonight by George Henry Payne, candidate for Alderman in the Forty-first Aldermanic District, in honor of Thomas W. Whittle, Park Comissioner of the Bronx. Bronx officers and politicians will be present and there will be speeches between the acts. "Twin Beds" is the attraction at the York this week.

Frederic McKay has placed Valeska Suratt under contract for a term of years. Miss Suratt is acting for the movies in California and later will appear in vaudeville there. Negotiations are pending for her appearance in London in a revue.

In Andrew Mack's new play, "The Irish Dragoon," he will appear in dual roles—that of O'Malley, the hero, and in an impersonation of an unconventional spinster.

MARIE DORO FACES PERILS ON THE FILM

MARY PICKFORD GOES ALOFT

Whatever objections players from the legitimate may make to acting for the screen it is not monotonous, and it does keep them out in the open. All the plots of all the drawing room drama in which Miss Doro ever appeared never provided her with so many exciting episodes as this one movie sends her through. She is the daughter of a sea captain, and when the rich importer objects to his son marrying her she takes a voyage on her father's schooner in order to forget. But the son sails as a stowaway, and it is he who lashes her to a raft when the vessel is sinking off the coast of Japan; it is he who rescues her from the tea garden in which, her memory gone, she is sold into slavery after she is washed ashore into the very arms of the idol whose pearl she wears—the pearl stolen from the image's forehead and given to her by the sweetheart who received it from a dying sailor, who killed a Chinaman to get it. For the long arm of coincidence in the movies being elastic stretches further than in the drama.

Consider dainty Marie, lowered on a rope to a raft wallowing in the waves of an eastern sea—east of Greenwich, most likely. Miss Doro lies there looking very lovely, her loose hair falling about her and mingling with the seaweed, her great eyes staring up to the sky that reflects their blue-gray softness. Sometimes in her new art Miss Doro must sigh for the scanter realism of painted oceans, and of ships that could not possibly sink.

But if Miss Doro is a cinema actress at purse, she is still a legitimate actress at heart. Nancy, the sea captain's daughter, startled from her cabin by the confusion attendant upon the sinking of the ship, rushes out on the rickety deck in tango pumps (hearing, perhaps, the cry, "Man the pumps"). The daughters of the down East sea captains may not be wearing such fine footgear this season, but if one must lie on one's back in the water with the camera man cranking away, one owes it to the movie public to look as attractive as possible.

The realism that may dwell side by side with the fiction in any good picture—and "The White Pearl" is an excellent one of its type—is illustrated by two scenes. The lover, hiding in the hold, is disclosed breaking into boxes in search of food. Just as he is about to take a bite two rats crawl out of the darkness to join the feast, a clever touch of realism of the Griffith kind. Climbing up to the deck a moment later the young man is unconscious of his sweetheart's presence, although she is sitting on the edge of the hatch, until he has looked in every direction but hers, while she, also for dramatic suspense, fails to recognize him for some little time after he embraces her.

For the William Fox picture, "The Little Gypsy," shown in the Academy of Music, a dam a hundred feet in length was built. When it burst it is estimated 15,000 tons of water was released.

Last week's Triangle program, which includes an unusually fine picture called "The Coward," has been kept on for another week at the Knickerbocker.

GOLF BALL AT HOT SPRINGS.

Special to The New York Times.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Oct. 10.—The golf ball last night at the Homestead Hotel at the close of the Fall tournament yesterday was the occasion of dozens of supper parties and several large dinners. During the dance the cups were presented to the winners.

Harold C. Richards of New York won the tournament cup, and there was a cup for Dr. C. H. Gardner of Providence, the runner-up. The handicap cup went to Count J. H. de Sibour of Washington, and others were won by Josiah C. Thaw of Pittsburgh, George N. Richards, New York; J. G. Douglas, New York; Phelps Newbury, Detroit, and D. W. Bell, Philadelphia.

E. Clarence Jones of New York gave a dinner for twenty, including Mrs. Alexander Brown, James J. Van Alen, Mr. and Mrs. William Ellis Scull, Miss Margot Scull, Charles Inman, and Mr. and Mrs. Wertheim.

Mrs. Allon Fuller Morse.

Mrs. Allon Fuller Morse, wife of Tyler Morse, the traveler, died yesterday at her home, Morse Lodge, at Westbury, L. I. She was a Miss Allon Fuller, daughter of the late George A. Fuller, who left her $2,500,000 when he died. Mrs. Morse was married to Harry S. Black, then head of the United States Realty and Construction Company, when 17 years old. In 1904 she divorced her first husband, and two years later married Mr. Morse. In 1907 she attained notoriety through the announcement of the loss of her $40,000 pearl necklace, which she had placed in the safe at the Hotel Savoy and then forgotten. Mrs. Morse was prominent in society in this city, and in addition to her husband, is survived by a son, Fuller Chenery Morse.

MANY MOTOR AT LAKEWOOD.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Oct. 10.—The bracing air today was an incentive to motoring and riding, and numerous motor parties had the resort as their objective point. Among them were E. W. Beatty of Montreal, W. Norman Mather, J. W. Hobbs, Mr. and Mrs. William Gale, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Street of New York.

The Fall golf tournament, it was announced today, will take place on Nov. 4, 5, and 6. The Shanley Cup match for seniors will be played on Nov. 3. The women's tournament will be held at the end of this month. A large number of golfers were on the links today, among them being Judge William C. Speer of Jersey City.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick H. Strawbridge of Philadelphia were here over the week-end, arranging for a coach and four run from Philadelphia later in the month.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tilford entertained a small party at the Laurelton Farms over the week-end.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—The country's leading baseball teams, the Phillies and the Red Sox, came to this city today to resume here tomorrow their series for the championship of the world. Each has scored a victory in the opening installment of the games just finished at Philadelphia, and their overnight transfer brought the teams to the scene of their further test on equal terms.

Indications tonight were that tomorrow's game would be noteworthy at least for the attendance. The crowd will undoubtedly be the greatest that has ever seen a world series contest, and possibly the greatest that has ever seen a baseball game. It will exceed 45,000 persons, probably. More than half that number of tickets already have been sold, and the 20,000 rush seats are expected to fill before the game is started. The first of the crowd that will occupy bleacher seats took up positions at the gates of the Braves' field tonight.

Weather conditions approaching those of Summer are in prospect. The weather forecaster predicted that the day would be fair and somewhat warmer than today, when light coats were aids to comfort.

The third game of the series, it was expected, would develop a more studied scheme of play by both teams. Having grappled for eighteen innings, the teams have gained an understanding of the method and calibre of their opponents, and each is expected to show improvement in strategy and action.

Philadelphia's campaign will again revolve around Alexander, the leading pitcher of the National League champions. The failure of Mayer, who pitched for the Phillies in the game which Boston won on Saturday, has emphasized the fact, admitted by the Philadelphia team's supporters, that it is largely in Alexander's pitching skill that the team's hopes for a world championship lie. The Red Sox were successful in an unexpected degree in hitting his delivery in Friday's game, and followers of the local club are sanguine of the team's prospects in the contest tomorrow.

To oppose Alexander, Manager Carrigan is expected to select "Dutch" Leonard, a strapping young man who pitches with his left hand. His cunning, which brought him to the head of all American League pitchers last year and to a high place on the list this season, is expected to overcome the advantage which the Phillies hold over left-handers in presenting a lineup almost entirely composed of right-handed batsmen.

The opposing managers had no word tonight as to their probable pitching choices tomorrow, but among the players and close followers of the teams the opinion appeared general that Alexander and Leonard would contend. Burns again will catch Alexander and it is thought that Manager Carrigan will make his first active appearance in the series as the Boston backstop.

It was remarked with satisfaction by Red Sox supporters tonight that the team has outhit the Phillies in the two games already played. Expert opinion prior to the series was generally to the effect that Philadelphia was potentially the better batting team. But the Red Sox have hit for a team average of .269 so far as compared with .140, the average of hits by their opponents.

George Foster, hero of yesterday's game, has contributed largely to the Red Sox advantage in this connection, with an average of .750 for his three hits yesterday. Gardner, with three hits out of seven times at bat, leads the regular players of both teams at .429, and "Duffy" Lewis is second with .375. A pitcher is high batsman of the Phillies also, Alexander having an average of .333, the only mark above .300 held by any member of his team. Cady and Thomas of Boston, and Stock, Niehoff and Burns of Philadelphia have gone hitless so far.

From outward appearances, the strain of the games last week did not greatly affect the contending players. They arrived on the same train from Philadelphia and took their off day here much as they would any Sunday in the regular season. Members of both teams went to church in the forenoon. Several were out on the golf links this afternoon, while others motored during the day. A few of the Philadelphia players lounged about their hotel, and some went out to Braves Field, scene of the games of tomorrow and Tuesday, where today a band played, and United States Senator Borah spoke on "Preparedness."

The return of the Red Sox was signalized by an official welcome by Mayor Curley, who greeted them in behalf of the city as winners of the American League championship. The team has not been here since the league pennantship was made certain ten days ago, and Mayor Curley made its coming today the occasion for celebrating a success which, he said, "was only a step to a greater victory." The Mayor had a band at the Back Bay station, and as the players came out of the trains they heard again the strains of "Tessie," their song of battle, sounded as a welcome.

When it came time to close Braves Field tonight after the talk by Senator Borah it was found that a number of boys had taken advantage of the opportunity to hide themselves within the grounds. Stowaways were found in several places and turned out of the inclosure.

These youngsters and others formed the first of the line which later stretched out from the gates leading to the bleachers. There were about 7,000 places to be had at 50 cents, about 3,500 of which were seats. Ten thousand other seats, in the left field pavilion, are to be placed on sale at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, these to sell at $1 each.

The Red Sox management obtained permission from the National Commission to turn the open spaces at the back of the grand stand into profit, and it was arranged to sell standing room there when the gates open tomorrow. It was estimated that about 4,000 persons could comfortably see the game from the rear of the stand.

The number of reserved seats, 25,000, although unusually large, was not sufficient to satisfy the demand, it developed today. It was thought a few days ago that nearly every one who applied had obtained seats, but many persons today went to the ticket offices at Fenway Park, where distribution of the seat checks was made, and complained that they had received no reservations. Some of these said they had applied as early as July, and had been notified at that time of the receipt of their requests. Notwithstanding the numerous allotments, street speculators also were said to have few tickets for sale, and some tonight were trying to buy rather than to sell.

ST. LOUIS AMERICANS WIN.

McCabe Pitches His Team to Championship in Intercity Series.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10.—"Tim" McCabe, who came to the local American League ball club from the Three I League only a few months ago, today won the post-season championship for his team, shutting out the National League club, 5 to 0, in the second game of a double-header, the first of which the Nationals won, 7 to 2. The victory gave the Americans four games won, one lost, and one tied. Scores:

FIRST GAME.

National Commission Gives Little Encouragement to Delegation.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—There was speculation here tonight among baseball fans as to whether anything would develop from the informal meeting held in Philadelphia late last Friday night of the three members of the National Commission and men identified with the Federal League, at which the present situation of baseball was discussed. It was learned that organized baseball has not changed its attitude; that, while there are men in the Federal League who would be welcomed into organized baseball, present conditions warrant only two major leagues.

The suggestion that two ten-club circuits be organized, the extra clubs to come from the Federal League, was not entertained by the members of the National Commission. It was admitted at the meeting by most of those present, it is understood, that the game would be better off in Chicago and St. Louis with two clubs instead of having three in each of those cities.

The meeting, which was brought about by men identified with the Federal League, ended without any understanding that the informal talk was to be resumed. Members of the National Commission are said to have consented to meet the Federal Leaguers because the leaders in organized baseball did not want to be put in the position of refusing to listen to suggestions for bringing about better conditions in the sport.

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—The Chicago American League team won the championship of Chicago, four games to one, from its National League opponents today, by winning today's game, 11 to 3. Lavender, who shut out the American Leaguers in the second game, was hit hard today, and this, with erratic fielding, gave the White Sox their victory. Pierce succeeded Lavender, but retired in favor of Standridge. The score:

White Auto Team Wins.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 10.—By beating the Luxus team of Omaha, 11 to 6, this afternoon in Brookside Stadium, the White Autos of Cleveland won the amateur baseball championship east of the Pacific Coast. The winners are scheduled to play the Tacoma team, champions of the coast, at San Francisco, for the world's title.

FAST SPEEDWAY BRUSHING.

Twelve Light Harness Events Decided on the Harlem Speedway.

An interesting program of trotting events was arranged by the Brush Committee of the Road Drivers' Association of New York, for the second matinée of its Fall meeting, which was held yesterday on the Harlem Speedway. A large crowd of spectators watched the sport along the half-mile course, and many viewed the races from the walks which overlook the Speedway and Harlem River.

The 1:11 trot drew the largest number of entries of any of the twelve brushes. Seven horses faced the starter. The race went three heats. The first was won by L. V. Hunt's Emily. The winner of the event, Acoro, owned by C. Hiawatsch, got into a pocket half way down the course and did not finish better than sixth. But in the second and third heats the gelding raced in front from the start, and was never headed, easily defeating the other contestants.

J. A. Murphy's Oakland Boy, one of the Speedway favorites, was beaten by Nathan Straus's Fair Maiden in the 1:03 trot. The former took the first heat in 1:02¼, but he won by several lengths in the two following heats.

The 1:15 trot furnished the most exciting race of the afternoon. There were three starters. R. Allen's Clay Wiggins took the opening heat, just beating the brown mare Estelle Cord by a short head. The latter turned the tables in the second heat, but was beaten, only by inches, in the third and deciding heat.

Seven of the races were decided in straight heats. They were: The colt race, won by W. J. O'Neil's Peter Cecil; P. Conroy's Oakland Boy in the 1:13 pace; Joe Mapes, owned by G. Slamtledger, the 1:05 pace; C. Cramer's Wood Olicott the 1:00 trot, J. A. Murphy's Clover Patch in the 1:03 pace; W. Gartrell's Jean Oakland the 1:07 trot and S. Post's Jack Dillon the 1:10 pace.

Grand Circuit Closes This Week.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 10.—With fair weather predicted the last four days of the meeting of the Grand Circuit meets give promise of the best racing of the year. The Grand Circuit will end its 1915 career next Thursday, provided rain does not interfere in the meantime. Before that time, however, there are a number of races that should produce some sensational trotting and pacing. The Walnut Hall Cup, 3 in 5 trot for a purse of $3,000 is the feature of tomorrow's card, and will bring together such horses as Peter Scott, Worthy Prince, Nathan Axworthy, Dick Watts, the Guide, and others equally as good. Another feature of tomorrow's card is the Lexington, for two-year-old trotters. Among the probable starters are Volga, Walnut Tree, Anvalita, Leading Spirit, and Nelly the Great.

ALEXANDER IS ONLY HOPE FOR PHILLIES

Fullerton Says That Defeat of Pitcher Today Probably Will Decide the World's Series.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

BOSTON, Oct. 10.—The world's series now has reached a stage where every one you meet insists upon shoving a stiff forefinger through your chest bone, thereby proving that you are wrong. Whoever can push his forefinger deepest into the chest of the other guy wins, and on that basis the Red Sox are big favorites. Boston forefingers seem larger and hornier and stiffer than the Philadelphia variety.

We lost an argument today and retreated, taking our chest bone with us to a place where no forefinger can reach. The gentleman was trying to convince us that Alexander will not pitch tomorrow's game, and his forefinger argument is more convincing than any logic.

The game tomorrow, as both teams recognize, probably will decide the series. If Alexander can go through again the Phils still have a chance. If he fails, and the wisest of the critics believe he will, the series is as good as ended.

The Philadelphia argument all appears to be based upon the assumption that the Phillies can hit left-handed pitching, and in support of this contention they cite figures to show that the Phils this season have been slamming the left-handers of the National League in terrific style. The Boston reply is that the species of left-hander existing in the National League is in no ways comparable with the kind that shoots them across in the American League.

As I see it there is no left-handed pitcher in the National League who ranks with either of the Red Sox south-paws, and, further, that the Phillies have not hit the National League left-handers to the extent that they assert they have. Undoubtedly they bat better against left-handed pitching than the average club does, and they have two men who hit the south-paws hard. Beyond doubt, too, Carrigan has had news of this alleged prowess of the Phils against left-handers, and it looks as if he has displayed good generalship in saving his south-paws until the teams got on to the Braves' field.

With two fellows who have been hitting left-handed pitching over the short right-field wall in Philadelphia it seems Carrigan decided he would not use them until they met on a larger field, where his speedy outfield can chase and capture such hits provided they are made.

It looks as if the pitchers would be Alexander and Leonard, and although the Philadelphia contingent is backing Alexander, and holding the odds to even money, there is not so much belief in Alexander as there was before the series opened. He pitched a smart game and won on the opening day, but few judges of baseball think he ever could beat the Red Sox again if he pitches that kind of ball. His speed did not seem keen, and when in the pinches he used curves instead of his old zipalong hop ball, many of the students refused to believe that he has his speed.

You may, if your forefinger is stiff enough, argue it the other way; supposing Alex. comes back tomorrow with all his speed, he will look so much different to the Red Sox that they will not recognize him as the same pitcher.

Reports from the Phils' camp today are that Alexander is prepared for a big game, and with two days' complete rest is ready. The Red Sox are more confident and cocky than they have been. They were a bit nervous until they got into their stride late in yesterday's game, and now that they are back on their home field they expect to play the game naturally.

I can see no reason to change judgment as to the players, and the dope is working out very close to form. Scott does not look as good as he figured, Gardner and Lewis seem to have taken a brace, and Niehoff looks much worse than his season's play indicated. Otherwise the teams are just about as they figured to be. The change in figures is scarcely great enough to make any essential difference in the result.

MOTORCYCLE SHOW TONIGHT

Madison Square Garden opens tonight on a $150,000 display of motorcycles, bicycles, and accessories. The last foot of available floor space has been taken and the workmen are now engaged in putting the finishing touches on the first annual exhibit of its kind in the greater city, so that all will be in readiness when the doors are thrown open to the public at 7 o'clock this evening.

Featuring, as it does, all the newest developments in both motorcycle and bicycle trades, and with attractions of a special nature such as a special exhibit of the military motorcycles which took part in the recent manoeuvres at Van Cortlandt Park, and at the military training camp at Plattsburg, it is confidently expected that the show will draw a crowd of at least 75,000 people during the week.

Those who are wont to look upon the motorcycle as a speed-law-defying, noise-making contraption, will be gratified to see in the 1916 models a tendency toward less weighty and less powerful machines—little "fellows" which travel at a moderate speed, are easily handled, and cost only a third as much as the large twins, which have been so much in evidence during past years. The prices of these lightweights range from $90 to $150, and they incorporate many of the refinements of the higher priced models.

Slosson to Play De Oro.

George Slosson, who is matched to play Alfred De Oro in a three-cushion contest at Doyle's Forty-second Street Academy, will play practice matches afternoons and evenings this week. The Slosson-De Oro match will settle a question which has been argued by billiard enthusiasts for years. The conditions call for 250 points three-cushion caroms, to be played in blocks of fifty each night, beginning Oct. 18. The outcome will decide if a first class balk line player is the equal of the man who has helped to make three cushions famous, as De Oro is the greatest of the three-cushion match players.

Wrestlers to Decide Title.

Zbyszko and Aberg are to wrestle again, to a finish. They have been practically matched to meet in New York in three weeks' time. The details will be settled upon, today, at a meeting of the two athletes. The four-hour draw between Waldek Zbyszko and Alexander Aberg at the Manhattan Opera House last Spring, was the final contest of a five weeks' international wrestling tournament. After four hours of lightning fast work, the curtain was rung down and the two giants, both of whom completely collapsed from exhaustion, were taken to the hospital. Now they are to battle again and the articles which will be signed today, will call for the acceptance by Wednesday, of the best offer for the contest. It will be stipulated that the match take place before Nov. 1.

Wilcox Takes Gold Medal.

C. F. Wilcox won the gold medal in the championship round of eighteen holes of the Knollwood Country Club yesterday, with a score of 80. In the match rounds for the club championship the winners were: C. F. Wilcox beat H. Wilson, 1 up, (20 holes;) J. M. Breed defeated Tom Forrest, 7 up and 6; B. Fairchild defeated E. T. Fox, 3 up and 2; W. C. Breed defeated Alfred Mestre, 8 up and 6; W. T. Koch defeated C. C. Carroll, 1 up; E. T. Dunnell defeated G. Slinner, 7 up and 5; W. C. McCord won by default; F. Sadlier defeated E. B. McAran, 3 up and 1.

OBJECT TO OFFICIALS.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 10.—Yale has for the first time formally protested to the Central Board of Officials against the assignments of officials sent to Yale football games. The action of the entire set who conducted the Yale-Lehigh game yesterday is regarded by the Yale football management as adverse to the interests of the college sport, and a vigorous letter has been sent to the central board informing it of the feeling at Yale. Since Yale came under the central board's scope of authority two years ago there has been little cause for complaint until yesterday.

The Yale coaches saw repeated violations of the rules by the Lehigh players which escaped the notice of the officials, and Head Coach Hinkey committed an act almost without precedent at Yale when he stopped the game and called the officials around him and protested against their ignoring violations any longer.

Several Yale and Lehigh players became mixed up in a physical argument when Harry Legore, the Yale full back, was jumped upon after scoring the only touchdown of the day. Yale players pulled Lehigh men off Legore, but the officials refused to inflict a penalty. Once a Yale player was held by the ear without penalty upon the offending player.

Denials were made tonight by Yale football authorities that any change in the coaching staff would be made before the close of the season. Former players and Captains were in close conference till after midnight last night on the problem of improving the Yale team play, but it was announced tonight that no change in the coaching policy was considered. "There is no friction among the coaches, and we believe that everything will come out all right," said ex-Captain Talbott, one of the coaches.

Hard Games for N. Y. U.

In addition to the hard schedule of nine games which the New York University 'Varsity football team will play this Fall, arrangements have been made for a schedule of gridiron contests for the second Violet eleven which this year contains an abundance of promising candidates for the regular teams. Assistant Manager F. Roberts Baldwin announced yesterday that three games had already been arranged and that there was every possibility of completing the necessary negotiations for a fourth. The teams that the Violet second eleven is scheduled to meet this season are: Oct. 16, Morris High School at Ohio Field; Oct. 23, Mt. Vernon High School at Ohio Field; Nov. 12, Cullum Hall at West Point, and a game with the Stamford High School, for which the date has not yet been decided.

FRIEDE DEFEATS FROHLING.

International Canoe Champion Victor by Wide Margin.

Leo Friede, the international canoe champion, had little difficulty in defeating Hilding Frohling in the third race between the two over the six-mile course of the Knickerbocker Canoe Club yesterday. They were to compete in three races. Friede won the first and Frohling the second, so that the one yesterday was the deciding competition. Friede went into the lead shortly after the men started away yesterday morning and never was in danger of defeat. Frohling was caught in the strong tide and his light craft swept out of the course so that he finished long after the time limit of two hours had expired. Friede apparently knew conditions better than his rival, and was never in serious difficulties, and came to the finish just ten minutes before the expiration of the time limit. W. G. Harrison, who refereed the race yesterday, will probably compete against Friede Tuesday over the six-mile course.

Tennis on Knollwood C. C. Courts.

The men's doubles tennis handicap tournament of the Knollwood Country Club at White Plains, N. Y., reached the final round yesterday, and will be completed tomorrow. W. Sykes, Jr., and H. B. Legg (scratch) and F. B. Prentice and B. S. Edmunds (scratch) are the finalists. In the first set of the final round Sykes and Legg were victorious by the score of 11—9, when darkness put a stop to further play. The summary:

Men's Handicap Doubles.—Third Round—H. M. Reed and Brent Tanner (30) defeated E. H. Hoolbrook and W. H. Merrall (plus 15) 13—11, 5—7, 6—4; F. B. Prentice and B. S. Edmunds (scratch) defeated Al C. Welsh, Jr., and E. C. Fox (plus 15) 3—6, 6—0, 6—1.

Semi-Final Round—F. B. Prentice and B. S. Edmunds (scratch) defeated Walter Moore and Cornelius Fox (plus 15) 6—4, 6—2; W. Sykes, Jr., and H. B. Legg (scratch) defeated H. M. Reece and Brent Tanner (minus 30) 6—4, 6—1.

Final Round—W. Sykes, Jr., and H. B. Legg versus F. B. Prentice and B. S. Edmunds, 11—9, unfinished.

Wright Takes Tennis Title.

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 10.—Irving C. Wright of Boston today won the tennis singles championship of Virginia by defeating Hugh G. Whitehead three sets to one in the final round of the fifteenth annual tournament, played on the courts of the Norfolk Country Club. The scores were 6—1, 9—7, 4—6, 6—3.

WHEN WORLD SERIES DREW ONLY 3,000

Providence and Metropolitans Received About $3,000 for Series Played in 1884.

Nothing shows the growth of baseball more than a comparison of gate receipts taken in during the different series played for the baseball championship of the world. The series of 1912 between the Boston Americans and the New York Giants leads all series for cash receipts and attendance. In the year 1884 about 300 people attended the final game between the Providence team and the Metropolitan Club, champions of their respective leagues, and the total attendance at all three games was less than 3,000. That amount of paid admissions at a dollar each would hardly pay the umpires of the present series. Radbourne and Keefe, the opposing hurlers, were at the height of their respective careers, but they failed to draw the throngs. However, the players did not worry, as there was nothing in it for them except glory.

In the season of 1885 the series was a failure from all standpoints. Only 8,000 saw the six contests between the men of Anson and the Browns led by Charles Comiskey. The series was marked by continual scrapping and at times real fighting. The series ended or broke up with honors in games won and verbal scraps "fifty and fifty." In 1886 the first real series for the world's championship was staged and pulled off in a successful manner. The six games drew out 40,000 and the net receipts were $14,000, which was handed over to the St. Louis Browns as per agreement. Anson and his merry men did not get even a pleasant smile out of the encounter.

The series of 1887 was considered a wonderful affair at that period, with an attendance of 50,000, and gate receipts amounting to $42,000, which amount caused unusual amazement in baseball circles at that time. The teams traveled in special cars, and the whole affair was carried forward on a scale of magnificence never before attempted in baseball. Fifteen games were played and ten cities got the privilege of witnessing the two best teams battle. Chicago had a "grouch," and when the Detroit and St. Louis played that city it sent out 365 spectators. Brooklyn turned out the largest crowd, 6,746. Detroit won hands down, with ten contests to their credit.

In 1888 the New York Giants and the St. Louis Browns were the contenders, ten games were played to an attendance of 35,800 people. Twenty-four thousand dollars was taken in and divided 60 and 40 per cent. between the owners, and players were promised $200 each. The hitherto grand organization under Comiskey made a sorry showing, and Owner Von der Ahe was so thoroughly disgusted that he refused to pay his men the promised $200. Arlie Latham got wise and drew his $200 before the series was half over. The other fellows had to wait many days before they received their share.

Perhaps the best series of all early day affairs was played in the season of 1889, between Brooklyn and the Giants. Forty-seven thousand fans saw the nine games and paid $46,000 for the privilege. New York won in easy fashion.

The season of 1890 was a failure as a world's series year. One was played between the Brooklyn Club and the Louisville team, champions of the National and American Associations. The winners of the Players League, the Bostons, were by long odds the best club in the land that season, but they were regarded as outlaws, so the other law-abiding organizations ignored them entirely. The two above-named contenders played seven games of the ten agreed upon, and the struggle ended in a tie, and the balance of the games for the supremacy of the baseball world were postponed until the next spring, but no record can be found where they met and settled their argument, and it is probable that it isn't settled yet. Seven games were played, one being a tie, and 13,500 people attended the entire series.

From the year 1892 until 1897 no real world's series games took place. Tilts were held between the winners of the first and second seasons of the big twelve-club National League, but they lacked the intense rivalry which exists today. For six years the fans of the country had to be satisfied with watching the annual struggle between the first and second contenders for the flag in their respective leagues. In the year 1903 the first big battle was staged for world's championship honors in baseball, and from that date the crowning event in the great national game has grown steadily, and today it is regarded as the greatest event in the athletic world.

GOLFERS IN FINAL ROUND.

Barnhill and Kammer to Play for Staten Island Championship.

Two Fox Hill players, W. Roy Barnhill and A. F. Kammer, are left to fight for the championship of Staten Island in a 36-hole match, to be played tomorrow over the Richmond County Country Club links. Kammer, the present title holder, worked his way into the finals by disposing of his fellow-member, A. W. Dole, 4 up and 2 to play in the semi-final round yesterday. In the morning match with M. L. Feary of the Richmond County Country Club, Kammer had his hands full to win out on the twenty-second green. With the match all square Kammer took a par 3 on the fifteenth, but lost the hole when Feary put down a long putt for a 2. The sixteenth was halved in par 4, and Kammer evened the score by winning the seventeenth with a 2, although he was twenty feet from the pin on his tee shot, while Feary was only five feet away. The eighteenth was halved, leaving the match all square.

The play was even to the twenty-second hole, where Feary sent his drive out of bounds, losing the hole and the match when Kammer took a par 3. Kammer had an easier time in the afternoon round with A. W. Dole, but at the thirteenth hole, with the match dormie 6, Dole began to play better golf. He drove into the rough on the fourteenth and then laid his second dead to the pin, winning the hole with a 3. On the fifteenth green Kammer had a six-foot putt for a half, but his ball ran around the rim of the cup and returned to its starting point, giving Dole the hole. Kammer clinched the match on the sixteenth when Dole dubbed his second shot completely, leaving Kammer 4 up and 2 to play. Scores:

FOUR-BALL GOLF MATCH.

Before a gallery of more than 500 people Oswald Kirkby, former Metropolitan champion, and Maxwell R. Marston, New Jersey title holder, defeated Jerome D. Travers, national open champion, and Archibald Graham of the home club in a four-ball match yesterday over the links of the Arcola Country Club. The margin was 4 up and 3 to play.

Kirkby practically won his own match, for it was he who played in the finest fettle and incidentally equaled the amateur record of the course in his afternoon round with a 72. His gait may be imagined when it is said that he was three less than par figures on the last ten holes.

The only two of the day was Kirkby's on the ninth green of the afternoon. He ran down a thirty-foot putt to turn the trick. The match started off finely, being an even thing at the turn. Once or twice Kirkby lapsed coming home and Marston could help him on only the thirteenth hole, so that Travers and Graham were one up at the end of the morning. Following are the cards:

ASTOR CUP RACE A BIG SUCCESS

The Sheepshead Bay Speedway presented a deserted appearance yesterday as compared with the opening day, when perhaps the largest crowd ever brought together for a sporting event in the metropolitan district attended the inaugural ceremony of the $4,000,000 motor-racing track. On all sides were heard praise for the manner in which the Astor Cup race had been conducted; also the successful efforts of the management in providing for the convenience and comfort of the spectators.

Few of the racing pilots put in an appearance, being contented to rest after their strenuous efforts of Saturday. Among those who made the trip to the Speedway late in the afternoon the general impression existed that the two Stutz cars which finished first and second in the race were justly entitled to the honors, and Gil Anderson and Tom Rooney, the drivers of the first two cars, were still busy receiving congratulations. Perhaps the big surprise of the race was the failure of the Peugeot cars. Although these were handled by the most famous auto pilots in American motor history, they were put out of the race at different stages through the troubles that frequently eliminate machines in competition.

The drivers will receive their rewards today. Eight cars finished the race, and the drivers of these machines will receive sums ranging from $20,000 to $1,200, in addition to $1,000 donated by accessory firms throughout the country. The remaining four prizes, for which $3,400 had been appropriated, will not be awarded, as a sufficient number of cars did not finish the race, and the money will be turned back into the Treasury of the Sheepshead Bay Speedway Corporation.

It developed yesterday that the electrical timing apparatus did not work accurately until after the fiftieth mile, and for this reason the time up to this distance was approximated. Several records were announced in the early part of the race, but the officials did not give the time for fifty miles, which is one of the important distances on a speedway. The only announcement with regard to the fifty miles was that the leading car was two miles ahead of the record, but no indication was given as to which was the leading machine. It is probable that the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association will not allow records up to fifty miles.

There is considerable controversy as to the total amount of money taken in at the race. Manager Everard Thompson stated yesterday that he would not be in a position to make any announcement until probably tomorrow night, as it will be impossible to get the reports in order before that time. According to official estimates, there were 97,000 persons in the grounds. These were divided as follows: Grand stand, 35,000; field stand, 22,000, and field, (including 8,000 automobiles,) 40,000. Thirty-five thousand persons in the grand stand at $5 a head would amount to $175,000. The field stand returns should amount to $44,000 and the field should add to this amount $80,000, giving a total of $299,000 for admissions only. To this must be added the privileges, program, and other receipts, which should take the total well beyond $300,000.

Conservative estimates, however, place the attendance at 80,000 and the receipts at approximately $225,000. This amount includes the money for concessions, privileges, and the program. The attendance did not, however, come up to the expectation of the management, even admitting that the official estimate is correct. It was stated yesterday that the Speedway management expected a crowd of considerably more than 100,000 but the attendance, however, is expected to satisfy the promoters.

To take care of the huge crowd 2,000 men were employed by the management on Saturday. This army of employes was divided among special officers, ushers, ticket sellers and takers, pit men, and many others.

Plans have already been made for another big race meet to be held on Election Day, when the feature event will be a 100-mile race for a trophy presented by President Harry Harkness and $20,000 in cash. A number of other events will be added to the program ranging in distance from 5 to 50 miles. Many of the cars which competed in the Astor Cup Race will be entered in the Election Day events.

The drivers of racing cars are superstitious just like a good many other individuals. This is shown by the fact that the number "13" was not given to any car at the Astor Cup race Saturday, and that number did not appear on the score boards.

Barney Oldfield's badge number was 2,236. An hour before the race W. Bob Holland jokingly called Oldfield's attention to the fact that when the figures on his badge were added together the total was thirteen. Barney examined the badge and added the figures himself to be sure about it.

"Oh, I'm not superstitious," he remarked. "The badge and the number don't bother me."

An hour later Barney's car broke a connecting rod while he was covering the thirteenth mile. All afternoon the scoreboard showed that his car, which was right with the leading Peugeots when the accident occurred, had completed six laps or twelve miles. He was unable to carry that hoodoo badge over the thirteenth mile.

Tamaqua Yacht Club Race.

A. W. Middleton's raised deck cruising motor boat Grace Irene proved the winner yesterday of the Tamaqua Yacht Club's 45-mile race for the $50 cup offered by the owner of that yacht. The course was from a mark off the Oriental Hotel to and around the Scotland Lightship and the buoy off Jones's Inlet, to a finish off the starting point. Dana Sievert's Dana S. was second boat. Her prize was a $25 gold piece given by Harry Haggerty of the New York Athletic Club, and the third boat was H. H. Hayman's Cachalot. Her prize was a binnacle. Dr. R. H. Reese won the fourth prize, an electric "trouble finder," with his Louise II. F. Sylvester's Rudder was the scratch boat. The rest were handicapped.

Boxing Bouts for This Week.

Fred A. Wenck, Governor Whitman's recent selection as chairman of the State Athletic Commission, will preside at his first meeting in the commission's office, 41 Park Row, this morning. There is some important business to be transacted, including the renewing of licenses which expired on Sept. 30. The principal organizations which are in need of renewals are Madison Square Garden and the New York Athletic Club. It was because the commission failed to act last week on the application made by the Garden that the scheduled bout between Willie Ritchie and Johnny Dundee was cancelled. Billy Gibson, the new boxing manager of Madison Square Garden, will be present at the meeting to ask for his renewal. Although the Fairmont A. C. and Sharkey A. C. held shows on Saturday night they did it under special dispensation, and they too will have to have their licenses renewed today if they are to continue in business.

There will be somewhat of a lull in boxing this week, but there will be plenty of shows at the so-called small clubs to keep the active fans busy. Wednesday night of next week one of the biggest attractions of the season will be staged in the Garden ring in the ten-round encounter between Jim Coffey and Frank Moran, the winner of which will be in line for a match with Champion Jess Willard.

The present boxing week will start off tonight at the Olympic Club when Mike McTigue, the Irish middleweight champion, boxes Al McCoy in the main event. Marty Cross and Farmer Sullivan will be opponents in another ten-round go.

In the afternoon the Broadway S. C. will renew its boxing matinees with two ten-round exhibitions and ten three-round tilts. On Wednesday night the City Athletic Club in West Fifty-fourth Street will stage its first professional boxing match for the entertainment of its members.

The New Polo A. A. announces two ten-round bouts for Friday night in which the principals will be George Mass, a graduate of the amateur ranks, and Johnny Hayes of the east side, and Eddie Gifford and Knockout Smith.

Heavyweights make up the Vanderbilt A. C. card for the same night. Jack Read of Toledo and Battling Jim Johnson, the South Sea Islander, box in the final event.

On Saturday night at the Broadway Sporting Club bantamweights will be featured. The principal bout brings together Dutch Brandt of Brooklyn and Kid Taylor. The stars in another ten-round bout will be Teddy Jacobs and K. O. Eggers.

We almost burst into song—just think of so impressing a stranger with your goods and service that he remembers you on his next trip to New York some fifteen years later and drops in to ask for the salesman who gave him such courteous attention.

Of course, he wanted "our very latest" and was immensely pleased with one of the new "Forefather" suits, which, by the way, seem destined to become quite as popular as our "Scotch Mist" overcoats.

"Almost forgot to get some songsters," said another friend as he turned back into our Furnishings Department—it certainly was a new one on our "Solo" socks.

No. 31, you remember, is our long wear "Solo" for a quarter.

COLLEGE RELAY RACES

NEW EVENTS FOR COLLEGE GAMES

Several changes will be made in the program of the second annual indoor games of the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A., to be held at Madison Square Garden March 4, if the recommendations of the Executive and Advisory Committees, adopted at a meeting held at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday, are passed upon favorably at a special meeting of the association which will be held in Boston on Nov. 19, the day before the intercollegiate cross-country run. The event last year was much in the nature of an experiment, and the actual competition showed where there might be improvement in the fixture. The main idea is still adhered to, that of making the games anything but a championship, and the recommendations all tend to this fact.

At the Garden last Winter there was some confusion in the relay races, and to obviate this the committee asks that the relays be run not as actual miles or parts thereof, but that they be indicated by laps. This makes it so that the start of each relay is at the same point on the track, with the finish of the race also at that point. It is also recommended that the games be held on a track that approximates closely ten laps to the mile. There are five relays on the tentative program, one in which each man runs two laps, another of three laps for each contestant, one of six laps, and another of twelve. There is also to be a medley relay which totals twenty-two laps, and a team race has been arranged for the distance men, the scoring in this to be on the same basis as in the cross-country run.

There are two new events recommended, one a straightaway dash, 75 yards in the Garden, and the other a straightaway hurdle race. In these two events it is obvious that there must be a definite individual winner, still the team competition is in fact adhered to for the actual winner, individually, cannot gain any trophy, a system of point awards being made so that there will have to be team competition.

As all of the track events are for teams of four men this stipulation will hold true in both of the straightaway races. No college will be allowed to start more or less than four men. In each preliminary, semi-final or final heat the places will count four for first, three for second, two for third and one for fourth. As the team with the highest number of points is to win the race the possibility of one star athlete winning for his college is practically precluded unless he is well supported by others of lesser ability.

The field events will be run the same as last year and will be open to teams of five men. Romeyn Berry of Cornell, who managed the games a year ago, will have charge of the event this season.

One action taken by the committees yesterday was the election of a President to fill the unexpired term of B. Burcham Clark of Columbia, who did not return to college this year. In his place Walter P. Pfeiffer of Columbia was appointed. The others present yesterday were, Secretary, William H. Draper, Jr., of New York University, and Treasurer D. M. Lake of Princeton, the Executive Committee composed of Frederic P. Clement, Harvard, Paul F. Sanborne, Cornell, A. H. Bunker, Yale; C. W. Townsend, Pennsylvania, and the Advisory Committee of G. T. Kirby, Columbia; Thornton Gerrish, Harvard, and Romeyn Berry, Cornell.

HARRIERS OUT IN FORCE.

The cross-country course at Van Cortlandt Park was alive with harriers yesterday, a touch of frost in the atmosphere bringing out more than 100 men who will be seen later in championship runs of the Amateur Athletic Union. Lawson Robertson's Irish-American A. C. squad was missing, Tom Barden, the veteran hill-and-dale chaser, being the only Wing Fistite to jog around the three-mile course. The New York A. C., Millrose A. A., Bronx Church House, and many other smaller clubs were represented in the big collection of athletes out.

Bernie Wefers had more than a dozen of his candidates at the park, and Mel Sheppard directed the work of about eight Millrose standard-bearers. Jack Kelly of the Bronx Church House had the largest representation, about fifteen.

There were several new faces among the New York A. C. men, including Gaston Strobino, who was the first American to finish in the 1912 Olympic Marathon. The New Jersey runner, an ex-member of the South Paterson A. A. and Long Island A. C., displayed excellent form yesterday, and if he improves with training he should be a valuable addition to the Mercury Foot squad. Taylor, a New York athlete, who last year was one of the most promising candidates for the Yale cross-country team, is another N. Y. A. C. recruit who looks good. Among the veterans who passed inspection by Wefers are O'Connor, the Rigby brothers, O'Neil, Monohan, Ackerman, Hellawell, and Cobb. Win Bailey, once ten-mile national champion, is a member of the squad, but was not out yesterday because he will compete today in a Marathon at Hamilton, Ont. Mitchell, a youngster, and Wilson Adams, late of the Montclair A. C., were other New York A. C. representatives in togs.

Mel Sheppard looked over Jim O'Connor, J. Best, J. Soukup, Win Gough, Ted Ellertsen, Charles Pores, Matt Geis, and Fred Safarowic. Nearly all the Millrose A. A. and New York A. C. men are eligible for both the junior and senior championships.

Renz Defeats Relay of Walkers.

Eddie Renz, champion walker, defeated a team of three men in a five-mile handicap, which was the feature of the final games of the Mohawk Athletic Club at Macomb's Dam Park yesterday. The title holder, who is in training for the seven-mile championship, went the distance in 0:39:22, defeating the team composed of J. J. Cullen, O. Lindquist, and Alexander Jessup by forty-five yards. Cullen and Lindquist each walked a mile and a half, while Jessup went the final relay of two miles.

C. Gutmann, one of the Mohawk's leading sprinters, captured both the 100 and 220 yard dashes from short marks, in each defeating L. Cohen, who started from scratch, for first honors. In the century dash Gutmann had an allowance of 1½ yards and triumphed in 0:10 1-5, and in the furlong dash, with a handicap of 1 yard, he won in 0:23 1-5. In each event P. McAndrews finished third.

Harry Biddle, scratch starter in the three-quarter-mile race, was the pick of the field, and came home in front, with yards to spare, in 3:25. Handicaps were too much for Arthur Roth, back marker in the three-mile run, and he finished only third, the principal honors going to F. Bergano, who received 180 yards start. R. Malary, with 250 yards, was second. The running high jump went to J. Donohue, with an actual jump of 4 feet 11 inches, and 8 inches handicap.

Walkers in Long Trip.

Two squads of the American Walkers' Association were out yesterday, one journeying from the City Hall to Coney Island and the other going over the same route and returning by way of Fort Hamilton, covering a total distance of twenty-five miles. The long distance trip earned century medals for A. W. Meyer, L. Kotten, A. Milek, and J. Leibowitz. The Walking Club of the New York Evening High School accompanied the association pedestrians. Those out were: G. Trefry, Sr., G. Trefry, Jr., F. Gage, G. H. Swartz, J. Daniels, D. Goldberger, J. Farrell, J. Haltigan, F. Heath, F. Lackemacker, W. Probst, F. Trinker, J. Leibowitz, M. Leibowitz, S. Brodsky, A. W. Meyer, C. Gross, S. Freedman, P. Gardner, M. Cibener, G. Hormet, M. Schulman, J. Nathan, C. Stone, M. Kaufman, J. Miller, A. Kaplan, M. Schwartz, J. Giannico, A. Goldschmidt, J. Jacomoy, C. Stritch, A. Cisney, H. Morrell, P. Hughes, F. C. Hooker, M. Deeker, E. Koenigsberg, W. Lorenz, J. Unick, A. Daneman, W. Bockerman, M. Patins, A. Clark, F. Benedetto, C. Dunleavy, P. Kuchukian, P. Pollak, R. Hellstern, E. Rabinowich, E. Werzinger, A. Connelly, H. Hainer, M. Duffy, and J. Lynch.

SWEDISH ATHLETES LEAD.

Almlof Captures Five Firsts in Dual Athletic Games.

A long-standing question of supremacy between the athletes of the Swedish-American A. C. and the Kaleva A. C., a Finnish organization which holds the championship of the Scandinavian-American Athletic League, was settled yesterday at Ulmer Park in a dual set of track and field games. The Swedes scored 87 points to 66 for their Finnish rivals, and captured eleven first places, whereas only six went to the Kalevas.

Half a dozen individual stars featured the sports, but the work of A. Almlof, one of the Swedish team who was a scorer in the 1912 Olympics at Stockholm, stood out above all others. Five first places were annexed by this athlete, and two second places were also credited to him. He was returned victor in the 120 high and 220 low hurdle races, the running broad jump, hop, step, and jump, and the javelin throw, and was placed in the running high jump and the pole vault. The versatility of the Swedish athlete is best demonstrated by the fact that after winning the hurdle exhibitions he threw the javelin 147 feet 6½ inches.

The Finlanders were supreme in the distance events, but they were outclassed in the sprints. Hannes Kolehmainen, the national champion at all distances above a mile, was an easy victor in the mile run, but in the half-mile event he was defeated by J. Pieltila, his clubmate, who had finished second to Hannes in the mile.

Kolehmainen did not start in the three-mile run, and his clubmate, Willie Kyronen, was so far superior to his field that he won easing off by more than 200 yards. W. Lindfors and O. Laakso of the Kalevas were second and third respectively in this race.

K. Haglund of the Finnish combination proved best in the 12-pound shot put, 12-pound hammer throw, and the heavyweight throwing contest. S. Petander, for the Swedes, scored a number of second places, as did Mike Pieltia of the Kalevas. The Swedes cleaned up in the sprints, with C. R. Reimerth winning the 100, S. Steen the 220, and F. S. Danielson the 440-yard dash.

ROAD RUNS IN ORDER.

Season for Hill and Dale Runners Opens Auspiciously.

Fourscore aspiring athletes took part in the four invitation road races which were held through the streets of the greater city yesterday. The cross-country season is not yet under full headway, but the representation in each of the quartet of races contested yesterday was indicative of a big year ahead.

The biggest field of harriers started in the five-and-a-half-mile chase of the Brooklyn A. A., in which Jim McNeil of the Presentation Athletic Club was the victor, going the route in 34:25. McNeil won by twenty-five yards from Harry Schetzen of the New Lots Evening High School, with H. Whitney of Loughlin Lyceum in third place. A small pack started out after the regular field had departed, and of these E. Vickstrom of the Finnish-American A. C. proved the best.

In preparation for an open novice race to be staged on Sunday, Nov. 7, the Holy Cross Lyceum promoted a three-and-a-half-mile run from the clubhouse in West Forty-third Street. M. Nicastro of the Ozanam Association and M. Ornstein of the Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A. had an interesting duel for the first honors, with Nicastro annexing them by less than five yards. E. Hecker of the Holy Cross Lyceum was third across the finish line. The winner's time was 19:49½.

W. Deegan of St. Anselm's A. C. marked the opening of his club's hill-and-dale season by creating a new course record of 17:50. The former Victorian Lyceum representative defeated a field of twenty in the three-and-a-quarter-mile run. Dick Brand and Frank Foran, clubmates of the winner, ran with him most of the way, but in the last quarter mile they were distanced and finished second and third, respectively. Brand was beaten twenty-five yards and Foran by about thirty.

The initial road run of the Glencoe A. C., from the clubhouse at 247 East 126th Street, resulted in a clean-cut triumph for E. Rieger of the home club, who was clocked in 23:02 for the four-mile journey. George Crosby of the Bronx Church House was the runner-up finishing eight seconds after the winner. Third place was taken by T. Hanley of the Morningside A. C. These practice events will be held by the Glencoe Club every Sunday for several months.

GOULLET'S NEW RECORD.

Alf Goullet of Australia created new world's figures for a ten-mile bicycle race at the Newark Velodrome yesterday, when he led Reggie McNamara by six inches at the finish of a race at that distance in 21:12 2-5. Alf Grenda of Australia was third, and Jackie Clark fourth. National Champion Frank Kramer finished in fifth position.

Goullet and Grenda won an international team match, in which Kramer Verri and Morretti of California fourth. Goullet received the Brassard race and Lawson of America were second. The Yankees won the first heat, and the Australians the second and third. Bob Spears and McNamara were third, and through the disqualification of Clark, who fouled Goullet on the final lap.

Gordon Walker won the half-mile professional handicap from the forty-yard mark. None of the scratch men made the final. Bedell (40 yards,) captured the two-mile handicap.

With a handicap of sixty yards Leonard Mazzei, Newark, won the third of a mile handicap. The amateur champion, Hans Ohrt of the Olympic Club of San Francisco, ran away from the best field of amateurs the East can produce in the mile open. Ohrt finished twenty yards in advance of Frank Whitney of the New York A. C., who was second. Chester Smith of Baldwin, L. I., was third.

Cyclists Hold Road Races.

The first two unpaced races of the series of four to decide the championship of the Inter-Club Amateur Cycle Road Racing League were contested yesterday at Pelham Park, with Edwin Jensen of the Century Road Club Association, scoring ten points by winning both the five and ten mile events. The roads were in good condition, and the time recorded by Jensen in each race was fast. In the five-mile contest he went the distance in 12:47 3-5, and over the longer course he was clocked in 26:00 2-5.

James Papesca of the Unione Sportiva Italienne was the runner up to Jensen in each event, and he is credited with six points. Eugene Aickelin of the New England Wheelmen wound up the competitive with four points, finishing third at five and ten miles. The final races of the series at one and three miles will be decided next Sunday. The contestants finished in the following order yesterday:

Five-Mile Race.—Edwin Jensen, C. R. C. Association, 12:47 3-5; James Papesca, Unione Sportiva Italienne, 13:13 4-5; Eugene Aickelin, New England Wheelmen, 13:14¾; Paul Reinecke, Acme Wheelmen, 13:29 3-5; A. L. Everard, C. R. C. of American, N. J. Division, 13:47 2-5; J. G. Schmidt, C. R. C. of American, N. Y. Division, 13:49 3-5; Henry Garbade, Glunz Wheelmen, 14:08 3-5; Robert Henderson, Bay View Wheelmen, 14:41 1-5.

Ten-Mile Race.—Jensen, 26:00 2-5; Papesca, 26:58 3-5; Aickelin, 27:36 2-5; Reinecke, 27:58 2-5; Everard, 28:47; Schmidt, 28:54; Garbade, 29:56 4-5; Henderson, did not finish.

Ideal Conditions for Tramp.

Ideal weather for walking yesterday brought out one of the best gatherings of the season for the Walkers' Club of America fifteen-mile tramp from Columbus Circle to Flushing. Pathfinder Hocking took charge of the novices and Pathfinder Rode looked after the veterans' interests. The Walkers' Club's annual journey to West Point from Van Cortlandt Park has been scheduled for Oct. 31. Those walking yesterday were: Anthony, Moore, Kanowitz, Matlawsky, Freund, Ryan, Ettinger, Levy, Lieberman, Schmitz, Goldstone, Rode, Schickls, Scharges, O'Connor, Cordes, Major, Heffernan, D. Emerson, C. Emerson, Geary, Hasson, Weiss, Herns, Givlin, Maher, Morse, Murphy, Campbell, Greengold, Hinder, De Laris, Baumgarden, Spencer, Steiner, Abbihl, Bernstein, H. Levy, and Hocking.

TAXES ON RAILROADS SHOW BIG INCREASE

HOW EXPENSES LEAPED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Official figures compiled by the Bureau of Railway Economics show that between 1905 and 1914 taxes paid by all the railroads in the United States increased 136.9 per cent. The railroads paid in 1905 $63,474,679 in taxes, and in 1914 they paid $150,371,100, an increase of $86,896,421. Since 1905 taxes have increased almost steadily year by year, the only exception being the year 1908, when the taxes were slightly lower than in 1907.

Taking 1905 as a basis year, it is shown that taxes in 1906 were $74,785,615, an increase of $11,310,936, or 17.82 per cent.; in 1907 the taxes were $79,640,013, an increase over 1905 of $16,165,334, or 25.47 per cent.; in 1908 the taxes were $78,673,794, an increase of $15,199,115, or 23.95 per cent. over 1905; in 1909 the taxes were $85,139,554, an increase over 1905 of $21,664,875, or 34.13 per cent.; 1910 shows $98,034,593, an increase of 54.45 per cent.; 1911, $108,309,512, an increase of 70.63 per cent.; 1912, $120,619,874, an increase of 90.03 per cent.; 1913, $129,836,100, an increase of 104.55 per cent., and 1914 taxes were $150,371,100, an increase over 1905 of $86,896,421, or 136.90 per cent.

These figures the Bureau of Railways Economics says, show a startling increase in taxes imposed on all the railroads, but the increase in taxes on the anthracite roads is even more startling. The figures for the anthracite roads follow:

1907	10,083,235	4,493,021	80.37
1908	10,364,655	4,774,441	85.41
1909	10,760,742	5,170,528	92.49
1910	12,251,674	6,661,460	119.16
1912	16,152,917	10,562,703	188.95
1913	16,956,030	11,365,816	203.32

This table shows that the anthracite roads paid $5,590,214 in taxes in 1905, and in 1914 they paid $17,226,165, an increase of 208.15 per cent.

The figures showing the increase in taxes are compared with the increases in gross revenues, operating expenses and net revenues. The gross revenue of all the railroads in 1905 is given as $2,082,482,406. The gross revenue in 1914 was $3,047,019,908. The 1914 figures show an increase of 46.3 per cent. over the figures of 1905.

Operating Expenses Leap.

The total operating expenses of all the roads in 1905 were $1,390,602,152, and in 1914 the total operating expenses were $2,200,313,159, or an increase of 58.2 per cent. The net operating revenue of all the roads in 1905 was $691,880,254, and in 1914 the net operating revenue was $846,706,749, an increase over 1905 of 22.4 per cent. The following table shows the comparison by percentages of operating revenues, operating expenses, and net operating revenues of all the roads each year from 1905 to 1914—the year 1905 being the basis year:

PER CENT. OF INCREASE OVER 1905.

1907	24.3	25.7	21.5
1908	15.0	20.1	4.7
1909	16.2	15.1	18.4
1910	32.2	31.2	34.2
1911	34.0	37.7	26.4
1912 (all roads)	36.5	41.8	25.8
1912	35.7	40.9	25.4

The figures given above for operating revenues, operating expenses, and net operating revenues represent the figures for all roads up to 1911, and after that for all roads having annual operating revenues exceeding $100,000. Both sets of figures for 1912 are given above. Thus it is shown in a comparison of the figures of 1905 and 1914 that, while total operating revenues, or gross revenues, increased 46.3 per cent., operating expenses increased 58.2 per cent., and net operating revenues increased 22.4 per cent. Taxes at the same time increased 136.90 per cent.

The ratio of operating expenses to operating revenues in 1905 was 66.7 per cent., and in 1914 72.2 per cent. There has been a gradual increase in operating ratio since 1910. The ratio of operating expenses to operating revenues in 1906 was 66 per cent.; in 1907, 67.5 per cent.; in 1908, 69.7 per cent. In 1909 the ratio dropped to 66.1 per cent. It was 66.2 per cent. in 1910, 68.6 per cent. in 1911, 69.3 per cent. in 1912, 69.4 per cent. in 1913, and 72.2 per cent. in 1914.

Comparison of Wages.

The number of all employes of all the railroads of the United States in 1905 was 1,382,196. In 1914 1,695,483 were employed. The compensation of all employes of all railroads in 1905 was $839,944,680, and the compensation of all roads having annual operating revenues exceeding $100,000 in 1914 was $1,373,422,472. The average daily compensation of all employes in 1905 was $2.07, and in 1914 $2.53. The average daily compensation of engine men in 1905 was $4.12, and in 1914 $5.24.

The average daily compensation of firemen in 1905 was $2.38, and in 1914 $3.22. The average daily compensation of conductors in 1905 was $3.50, and in 1914 $4.47. The average daily compensation of other trainmen in 1905 was $2.31, and in 1914 $3.09.

Machinists in 1905 received $2.65 a day, and in 1914 they received $3.27. Carpenters received $2.25 in 1905, and $2.66 in 1914. Other shopmen received $1.92 in 1905, and $2.36 in 1914. Telegraph operators and dispatchers averaged $2.19 a day in 1905, and $2.56 a day in 1914.

Some idea of the development of railroad operation in the ten years between 1905 and 1914 is shown by the fact that in 1905 the total number of locomotives was 48,357, and in 1914 64,760.

The average tractive power of locomotives in 1905 was 23,666 pounds, and in 1914 30,420 pounds. The number of freight cars increased from 1,731,409 in 1905 to 2,325,647 in 1914, and their aggregate capacity from 53,255,083 tons to 90,977,098 tons in 1914.

Flag Rush at Columbia.

Freshmen and sophomores at Columbia will meet this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock on South Field for the second of the series of underclass contests, the flag rush. Already this event has been postponed three times, but under favorable weather conditions the rush will be held today. A large attendance of alumni gathered Friday afternoon for the battle, but the wet condition of the field caused Harry A. Fisher, graduate manager of athletics, to call it off. It was feared the trampling of about six hundred students would damage the football gridiron. The delays have increased, rather than lessened, the bad feeling between the two lower classes on Morningside Heights, and a more strenuous battle than usual is expected.

Ithicans Prepare for Bucknell.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Cornellians are very cautious in their comments on the showing of the team against Williams yesterday, because the one-sided score and the ineffectual opposition of the New Englanders proved that they had the weakest team they have brought here in years. As a test of Cornell's development and strength, the game is considered worthless, and the coaches are hoping that Bucknell next Saturday may furnish some more formidable opposition. The coaches this week plan to have a showdown between the second and third teams and to pick the substitutes for every position on the 'Varsity team. They are anxious to select these men at once so that a powerful second team may be developed.

'JITNEY BASEBALL' A DREAM.

"It's all a dream. If we tried to play 10-cent baseball we could close our gates and discharge our players. It can't be done, and any league attempting it looks only for advertising and puts itself in a position to commit involuntary suicide."

This is the comment of William J. Shettsline, business manager of the Philadelphia National League Club, in discussing the subject of big leagues pastiming for two "jitneys." Shettsline, through his long association with the national game, is in a position to be well acquainted with the facts he quoted in connection with cheap baseball.

"It's fool talk," said the Phillies' business manager. "A man with any common sense knows that, so why should I display signs of ignorance by telling that it can't be done?"

In supplying his reasons why "it cannot be done" Shettsline said:

"It will average $1,000 a day to run an average team. Some clubs may cost a little less; some a little more. That depends on the salaries they pay and the fixed charges they have to bear. But I guess it's a lucky club that will go through a season for less than $150,000. I don't believe there is one in the two big leagues. The schedule calls for 154 games, so you see it figures up about $1,000 per game."

"What is the average crowd at a big league game?"

"That is a question it is impossible for me to answer," he replied. "I will not try to answer it, but I see what is aimed at, so I will try to assist in solving the query. Under the present arrangement in our league, and the same applies in the American League, the visiting club gets one-half the bleacher admissions and 25 cents on every other seat. This means that in all 75-cent seats the home club keeps 50 cents, and on the dollar seats they get 75 cents. All the quarter and half-dollar admissions are divided.

"Say we had a crowd of 10,000 tomorrow. About 5,000 would be in the bleachers. They would pay into the gate $1,250, or $625 for each club. The 50-cent seats might contain about 2,000, which would mean $1,000, or $500 for each club. The other 3,000 would be in the better seats, and we will fix them all at 75 cents, which would give the visiting club $750, or one-third of the total paid in, $2,250. The home club would get $1,500 and might add $100 more by selling box seats at $1. That makes the total receipts $4,600, which is divided $2,725 for the home club and $1,875 for the visitors. Now, suppose this same crowd saw the game on a ten-cent basis. Here are the figures we would get then:

"Total receipts: Bleachers, $500; 25-cent pavilion, $500; grandstand, $1,500; box seats, $100. This makes a total of $2,600, which would be split $1,350 and $1,250, the visitors receiving the small end, naturallly.

"I have taken for the basis of this figuring a crowd of 10,000, but you know as well as I do that the average crowd today is less than one-half that at most parks. Probably we could attract 5,000 into the bleachers on a good many days if we charged a dime. But unless our crowd kept up to the figures I showed in the higher priced seats, what would happen? Why, the men who had their money invested would be bankrupt before long.

"Every day there was a 5,000 crowd the club would lose more than $200, which would mean a total loss of more than $30,000 before the season ended. Show me a man who has $30,000 to give away and I'll hunt him up. I've heard about them, but never saw one."

"But there would be a way to run a ball club and charge 10, 25, and 50 cents, wouldn't there?" was the next query. "For instance, couldn't they reduce the salary paid the players and otherwise pare down the fixed charges?"

"Of course, the magnates can do anything they make up their minds to do, I suppose," returned "Shetts," and he smiled. "I think, however, that they would find you fellows the first to kick if they started a cheese-paring policy in the conduct of a big league ball club. The fans have become accustomed to seeing high-class baseball; that brand of baseball costs money to produce.

"But don't ask me to tell you about the brand of baseball the fans want. You know as much about that as I do. If you can find a way to produce big league baseball, the kind you see today at semi-pro. prices, you will be the wizard of the twentieth century. Perhaps it can be done, but you can't show it to me on paper."

DIABETES DISCOVERY NOT A POSITIVE CURE

STARVES OUT THE DISEASE

An announcement from Cleveland, printed here yesterday, that a cure for diabetes had been discovered at the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, and that it had been tried successfully at the Lakeside Hospital in Cleveland, aroused much interest in medical circles yesterday. It was learned that the new treatment for the disease had been tried at the Presbyterian Hospital here with excellent results.

The discovery is at present only a new treatment, according to the New York physicians familiar with it, and cannot be called a cure, at least until there has been sufficient time to ascertain whether the disease will return after the patient has been discharged from a hospital.

The treatment was developed by Dr. Allen of the Rockefeller Institute, and before it was tried on patients he got good results with experiments on animals. It is remarkably simple, and consists almost entirely of starving out the disease. In this it is only a development of the treatment that has long been used. The most generally adopted treatment consists of eliminating carbohydrates, or foods containing starch, from the patient's diet, and allowing the patient practically a normal supply of fats and proteins. Dr. Allen's method eliminates the carbohydrates, but also reduces all other diet as much as the patient can stand.

The treatment calls for absolute fasting of the patient at stipulated periods. In some cases alcohol is given during the early stages. This is a new feature, though the alcohol is given to stimulate the patient and make up for the lack of food at first to some extent.

The policy of giving the patient bicarbonate of sodium to neutralize the effect of acids is adhered to in the new treatment, one of the physicians said yesterday, though it is considered questionable whether this has much to do with the results obtained. Bicarbonate of sodium has been administered in cases of diabetes for nearly thirty years. It is given in cases where there is sufficient poisoning in the system to cause nervous disorders, such as coma and fainting.

Despite its simplicity the new treatment has been producing results considered almost remarkable by the medical profession. It has been tried at the Cleveland Hospital, Johns Hopkins in Baltimore, and the Presbyterian Hospital here, and is still in use at all three institutions. It was first tried at the Presbyterian Hospital early in the year.

"Excellent results have been obtained at this hospital with the new treatment," said Dr. J. Eliot Overlander, the Assistant Superintendent of the hospital. "All of the patients treated by the method have improved rapidly."

It was learned that between fifteen and twenty patients had been treated by the new method at the hospital, and that all but one had been discharged. On leaving the hospital they said that they felt better than they had at any time before since contracting the disease. They were instructed to continue on a somewhat reduced diet after being discharged, but were allowed to eat a small amount of foods containing starch.

COKE INDUSTRY BOOMING.

UNIONTOWN, Penn., Oct. 10.—Announcement was made today by the H. C. Frick Coke Company that 500 additional coke ovens were fired last week. At Bitner, where the plant had been idle more than a year, 200 of the 300 ovens have been blown in. The Frick Company is now running 85 per cent. of capacity, working full time, six days a week. This week 750 additional coke ovens will be fired in eighteen plants, and the company will run 90 per cent. of capacity.

The Emery plant of the South Fayette Coke Company, which has been idle nearly two and one-half years, will resume operations next Monday. Managers of the W. J. Rainey coke operations in Fayette County announced that 100 additional ovens would be blown in next week at Allison. Additional ovens will be fired also within the next week at the Thompson No. 2 plant of the Thompson-Connellsville Coke Company and at the Tower Hill No. 2 plant of the Tower Hill-Connellsville Coke Company.

THEY SOUGHT A GENTLEMAN

Frank V. Martin was standing behind the desk at the Waldorf yesterday morning when a couple whose dress betokened origin in the country addressed him.

"Is Mr. Martin here?" they asked simultaneously.

Martin hesitated. Perhaps they were looking for him. So he asked: "Is he an employe of the hotel?"

MANILA SEES PERIL IN SEAMEN'S BILL

SAY PHILIPPINES SUFFER

The interest of members of India House, the downtown club formed by export merchants, shipping men, and bankers, has been stirred by a vigorous protest and plea for action just received from India House members in Manila against the La Follete Seamen's act.

The protest came in the form of a memorial, which has been posted on the bulletin board at India House. It was signed by Newton W. Gilbert, S. C. McCullough, Charles S. Derham, George H. Fairchild, H. F. Lowenstein, Jr., Frank B. Ingersoll, and W. S. Macleod. Leading shipping interests in New York are represented on a committee which will report to the Governors of India House on Oct. 25. The Manila protest says:

"We have in mind that the object of our organization is the encouragement of the foreign commerce of the United States, and the cultivation and perpetuation of American foreign trading traditions. If there ever was a moment when a strong body with this object should bend every energy to the task it is the present.

"For sixty-six years the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, flying the American flag, operated upon the Pacific. It, perhaps more than any other agency, has contributed to the up-building of American trade and commerce in the Orient. Even with this accommodation, freight coming to Manila and other ports has been piled up at San Francisco for many weeks awaiting transportation, and the capacity of outgoing steamers from these ports has frequently been insufficient. The Seamen's Bill has made it impossible for American ships to operate in competition with vessels which may carry Oriental crews, and which enjoy a Government subsidy. These ships have been sold to be operated upon the Atlantic and are about to be permanently withdrawn from the Pacific.

"The effect here will be disastrous. Commodities produced in the Islands have already fallen in value, because of the fact that they cannot be carried to market, and the expense of warehousing and storing, always large, will be greatly increased. The manufacturers of the United States will not be able to reach this market as easily as the manufacturers of Europe, and the trade between the United States and the Philippine Islands, so laboriously created, will be largely destroyed in a day as the result of this bill.

"The United States has a considerable trade with China and other nearby countries. The moment has arrived for a great development of this trade. Now, when the merchant shipping of Europe is so largely crippled, is the time to secure an unprecedented business with these countries. But instead, the trade we already have must be largely sacrificed.

"On the whole, the situation created by this legislation is so serious that it should enlist the active co-operation of all patriotic Americans, whether directly engaged in business or not.

"Cannot something be lone before all is lost? Cannot the eyes of Congress be opened early in the next session? Cannot the Government give some assurance of protection to the shipping interests of the United States, so that Pacific shipping may be re-established? Cannot the trade of the United States in the Orient yet be saved? Cannot the interests of the eight million Filipinos be considered? In other words, before all is lost, cannot the prestige of the United States be preserved in the Far East, and advantage be taken of the unexampled opportunity for commercial expansion?

"We appeal to you, with your vast influence and knowledge of the situation, to bring home to the people of the United States what has been done. It will be, and well-nigh is, irreparable. Action must be prompt, positive and intelligent."

On behalf of the India House, a committee composed of the following has been studying the Seamen's Bill with a view to recommending action for its repeal if it is working the injury that is charged against it: Joseph P. Grace, President of W. R. Grace & Co.; P. A. S. Franklin, Vice President International Mercantile Marine Company; James A. Farrell, President of the United States Steel Corporation; Minor C. Keith and S. G. Schermerhorn of the United Fruit Company; George S. Dearborn, President of the Hawaiian-American Line; Welding Ring of Mailler & Quereau; Skeffington Norton of Norton, Lilly & Co., and J. Parker Kirlin, admiralty lawyer.

GALLINGER FOR SUBSIDY.

Regards Government Operation of Ships as Economic Folly.

United States Senator Jacob H. Gallinger of New Hampshire, in the current number of Leslie's Weekly, attacks the Wilson Administration's scheme for Government ownership and operation of ocean-going ships as a menace, and says he will fight in the next Congress for a subsidy to privately owned lines.

"Only one thing could justify such a radical departure in the direction of State Socialism as a Government-owned merchant marine," Senator Gallinger wrote. "That would be the inability or unwillingness of private capital to furnish it under fair and feasible conditions. But no such conditions have existed in this country in the memory of most of the present generation of Americans.

"For reasons which I prefer not to discuss at present, certain Republican Senators and Representatives from the Middle West and Northwest have joined with the 'solid South' against the majority of their own party, and have been able year after year to prevent the extension of the protective policy to the American merchant marine in overseas trade. That is to say, the same elements from the same sections that brought about a gradual withdrawal of the preferential policy of 1789 and destroyed the mail subsidy policy that followed have defeated persistent efforts to put American ocean shipping on the same plane with manufacturing and agriculture.

"I regard the Administration scheme for Government ownership and operation of ocean ships as flagrantly unsound as an economic policy and a grave menace to what remains of our ocean shipping industry. I shall oppose it to the utmost, and I am sure that most of my fellow-Senators will do the same. What is more, I shall offer what I regard as a sound and practicable alternative.

"There will be no need of and no justification for Government ownership if the United States Government will do for private-owned ships what it is proposed that it shall do for Government-owned ships, and that is to make it possible for American ships to meet in fair and equal competition the wages and subsidies of foreign lands. I believe that a subvention, subsidy, or compensation should be granted from the Federal Treasury to every American ship owner who operates a vessel in overseas trade, so that he can pay American wages, furnish proper American food, meet foreign subsidies, and bounties where such exist, and have an even chance with his European or Japanese competitors.

"As a return for such a subvention the American ship owner should provide a vessel capable of rendering auxiliary service in war, and should be willing to place his ship, when needed, at the service of the Government. Such a policy as this will create ten, twenty, or thirty ships where inexperienced Government ownership would provide one. It will be in accord with the tried and approved practice of the maritime world, and, if properly explained and understood, I believe it will be upheld by a decisive majority of my fellow-countrymen."

New Cafe Savarin Opens Today.

The new Café Savarin in the basement of the Equitable Building will be open today. Merry and Boomer, managers of the McAlpin and Claridge, will run the new establishment. The floor is of Formosa marble and Rookwood faience, in keeping with the color of the walls and harmonizing with the dull ivory finished ceiling. Indirect lighting is used. Chairs, recess seats, and tables are of special design and upholstered in French tapestry. Set aside for the ladies is a specially designed room, divided into recesses, with accommodations for 250. The room is ventilated with air drawn from a great height, and is delivered to the dining room through small outlets beneath the tables.

STREET CLEANING EXHIBIT.

Mayor Will Open Week's Show in Armory Tonight.

There will be a display of modern street cleaning apparatus all this week at the First Regiment Field Artillery Armory, Sixty-eighth Street and Broadway. Manufacturers in various parts of the country will be represented, many bringing their machines thousands of miles. Mayor Mitchel will start proceedings by pushing a button in the armory this evening at 8:30 o'clock.

All the model apparatus used by the department in its "Model District" will be on view. They include motor-driven, ten-ton tractors and up-to-date plows for snow work, motor-driven sprinklers, sweepers, flushers and collection trucks, horse-drawn sweepers, sprinklers, flushers, garbage wagons, sand spreaders, squeegees and smaller paraphernalia, such as can carriers, odorless and dustless cans and brooms. There will be competitive tests of apparatus upon the streets, conducted by a committee of experts. Street cleaning officials and others connected with the sanitary and engineering departments of a hundred or more of the principal cities of the country will attend the exhibition. An association to hold annual conventions and exhibitions probably will be organized.

A feature of the exhibition will be the forum, in which men and women especially qualified will deliver addresses on subjects directly related to street cleaning work and to health and comfort. Each day during the week will have its special program.

PROPOSALS.

SEALED BIDS WILL BE RECEIVED BY the Board of Water Supply, at its offices, twenty-second floor, Municipal Building, Park Row, Centre and Chambers Streets, New York City, until 11 A. M. on Tuesday, October 19th, 1915, for CONTRACT 166, for the erection of two steel frame buildings, galvanized-steel-covered, for the drainage chambers, at Shafts 11 and 21, of the City Tunnel of Catskill Aqueduct, New York City. Both buildings are of, approximately, the same size, the larger one being about 48 feet by 40 feet by 83 feet. The substructures or foundations of these buildings are being built under other contracts.

At the above place and time the bids will be publicly opened and read. Pamphlets containing information for bidders and contract drawings can be obtained at the above address, at the office of the Secretary, by depositing the sum of ten dollars ($10) in cash or its equivalent for each pamphlet. For further particulars apply to the office of the Principal Assistant Engineer at the above address.

CHARLES N. CHADWICK,

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION IN AMERICA AND EUROPE

To nine men out of ten a rise in the stock market is of practical interest only in what lies beyond it. For the professional trader the stock market is the means of livelihood. For him it loses all significance save as he makes a point or loses one, as the market favors him or goes against him. For those who come into the market from the outside, buying only to resell, a rapid rise supplies an easy road to fortune or to disillusionment for those who trade too rashly. Even in times of active public trading these two together constitute but a fraction of the people as a whole. A great majority are still interested in a rising stock market on account of its causes rather than of its effects. This is true even of the vast number of holders of stocks whose value appreciates in times of market enthusiasm. If these are better off it is chiefly because of the increased returns which a time of prosperity brings. For the great majority, therefore, the rise in prices which has taken place on the Stock Exchange this year is important and interesting only in so far as this rise in prices has been brought about by favorable underlying conditions which promise increased employment and increased profits.

In the eyes of this great majority a violent reaction such as occurred in the early part of last week is an unimportant incident because it lessened real values no more than the previous advance in itself had increased in values. The market's composure was quickly regained, and even though it receded somewhat from the recovery which followed close on the heels of a violent setback in some of the most volatile of the industrials it gave signs in the second half of the week of the continuance practically without impairment of the confidence which had underlain the previous rise in prices.

The same great majority of whom we are speaking considers the broader range of the market practically to the exclusion of its minor movements. So viewed the markets of recent months offer to every business man and to every investor the encouragement which is to be found in any evidence which points to expansion in business and to improvement in the conditions under which business is being done.

The stock market of recent months is a sign that improvement has occurred in those quarters. But we are not dependent upon it for proof that fundamental conditions are favoring the commercial progress of the country. Never before did we have such crops as we have this year; never was our steel industry as active as it is today; never was our foreign commerce so great and never were we gaining so strong a hold on the sources of commercial and financial supremacy. Never was the credit machinery of the country as well adapted as today to the needs of an expanding commerce, and never was being taken so broad a view of American opportunities.

Under such conditions it would make relatively little difference if the stock market went up or not. As a matter of fact, given such conditions the market could not possibly remain at a level born of conditions the opposite of these. It is speculation which brings about large rises in the stock market, but it is upon fundamental conditions that the permanency of newly established prices depends. Both from the point of view of the minority whose interest lies in the course of prices and from the point of view of the many more who are interested in the business back of securities rather than in the securities themselves, it is a matter of very great satisfaction that we have entered upon this season, a period normally of trade activity, under conditions which favor a great expansion in the profitable employment of labor and capital.

The world today offers unusual opportunities for American enterprise in whatever field it may care to exert itself. One such opportunity we have just seized in granting a $500,000,000 credit to Great Britain and France. There are other opportunities in South America, in the Far East, almost anywhere we may turn, but all of these foreign opportunities are linked, most of them intimately, with opportunities here at home. The foreign trade which we have been doing these months has helped a great deal in stimulating home trade, and it always will be so. We cannot afford to take a narrow view of our opportunities if we would use them to real advantage, nor can we afford by ill-considered legislation or otherwise to stand in the way of our own opportunities here at home. That is one of the practical conclusions which may very well be drawn by the people at large from a contrast between the effect of political ways of dealing with business problems and the natural and business way of dealing with those same problems.

It was not by grace of any legislation that the cotton output this year was reduced and the grain output greatly increased. The two things came about in response to natural laws, and legislation which would have attempted to accomplish the same purpose otherwise would have failed. A closer practical application of the same sort is illustrated in the railroad field, where it has been seen that prosperity has attracted capital while it has been driven away from those roads which were too hard pressed to offer capital sufficient inducement. It may reasonably be expected after the experience of so many railroads falling into receivership that any increased benefits which the railroads may derive from the present expansion in business will not be begrudged them either by their regulators or the public.

Wall Street believes that a new era is opening for the railroads and believes it not solely on the ground that all the business signs point to an increase in railroad earnings, but also on the ground that there would be less disposition in the near future than there has been in the past to harass the railroads in the name of regulation. This belief found practical expression in the stock market last week in the strength which was displayed by the railroad stocks throughout the violent reaction in the industrials. This is a time to encourage enterprise, and it cannot be encouraged in any way so effectively as assuring to it the fruits of its labor. This is not in the remotest sense a plea for corporation license or for permitting railroads to go unregulated. It is merely arguing that regulation should be reasonable and that commercial enterprise should be allowed full freedom so long as it keeps within the law. To do anything which would check the spirit of enterprise, which is greater today in this country than it has been for many years, would be to strike a serious blow at the country's commercial progress.

LONDON MARKET FIRM

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The past was a quiet week in stocks, for the markets were checked by the dramatic happenings in the Balkans. The decision of Bulgaria to join the Central Powers was not unexpected, but the fall of the Venizelos Cabinet and the attitude of Greece caused surprise in view of the vote in the Greek Chamber on Tuesday. The turn of events in the Balkans helped to neutralize the good effect of the advance of the Allies on the western front and the stubborn defense offered by the Russians. The military situation is considered further complicated, which may mean a prolongation of the war.

Despite the inactivity prices have held steady. The 4½ per cent. war loan remains firm, which is very encouraging, having regard to the great rate of war expenditures and the certainty of new borrowing in the near future. A further loan through long term issues will probably be deferred until after the turn of the year, the treasury having resort, meanwhile, to the sale of short term securities. The sum required to carry on the struggle to Dec. 31 is estimated at £250,000,000 at the minimum.

Revenues may contribute £50,000,000, and Great Britain's share of the American loan, £48,000,000, leaving about £150,000,000 to be obtained by borrowing. There is a possibility of the issuance of exchequer bonds running a few years, but the authorities anticipate an advance in the rate on treasury bills after payment of the final loan installment on Oct. 26 and the withdrawal of special borrowing facilities granted to the banks and the money market.

The supply of credits was increased this week by the disbursement of Government dividends and the redemption of £30,000,000 of treasury bills, only a part of the proceeds having been reinvested in new bills owing to the expectation of better terms shortly. The surplus will be temporarily absorbed by the war loan installment of 10 per cent. which is due on Tuesday, but with the Government disbursing its funds rapidly the prospects are favorable for a continuance of moderately easy money. This caused an easier discount market.

An interesting announcement has been made of fresh credit operations on behalf of Russia. Bills will be drawn by various Russian banks and placed for disposal with the Imperial Bank of Russia. English banks and other institutions will accept and convert the bills into first-class bank paper, which will be readily taken by the discount market at about the current rate. The bills run for three months, but are renewable until one year after peace. The proceeds are to be at the disposal of Russian commercial interests, and it is hoped they will help to influence favorably the exchange rates on Petrograd.

BOURSE SLOWS DOWN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 10.—The Bourse was lifeless throughout the week. The Balkan problem is restricting new dealings. Prospective buyers prefer to await details of the forthcoming loan, which is expected at the end of the month. The liquidation difficulties appear to have been satisfactorily surmounted. Rentes are unchanged; railways continue weak, owing to the reduction in their earning power; French banks are firmer; American rails stronger after profit taking, and the coppers booming.

The allied loan was approved by the Chamber without any discussion. There are no indications of a weakening in exchange rates. Sterling is 27.34, cables 5.81, both firm. There has been a further war advance of 200,000,000 francs; gold received totals 50,000,000 francs; pre-war acceptances retired amount to 26,000,000 francs, and the note issue increase is 205,000,000. The Bourse will reopen Saturday.

Chicago, Lake Shore & Eastern Railway Co.

First Mortgage Gold 4½s, Due June 1, 1969

These bonds are secured by a first and only mortgage on the railways and all the property of the Company now owned or hereafter acquired.

The Chicago, Lake Shore & Eastern Railway operates about 428 miles of track, connecting the various works of the Illinois Steel Company, at Chicago and Joliet, Ill., and of the Indiana Steel Company at Gary, Indiana, with diverging trunk lines, and by trackage rights reaches the coal fields of Illinois and Indiana, also Joliet, Ill., handling between that point and South Chicago a large volume of business for the Steel Company. Also owns extensive round houses, equipment repair shops and yards, and other shop facilities located near Gary, Ind.

To the Holders of

CENTRAL BRANCH UNION PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY

First Mortgage 4% Bonds Due 1948

The property covered by your bonds has been placed in the hands of a receiver, together with that of the whole Missouri Pacific System, and a plan for the exchange of your bonds for bonds of inferior lien and stock (half each) has been proposed. It is therefore imperative that the holders of CENTRAL BRANCH UNION PACIFIC FIRST MORTGAGE 4% BONDS should unite for the protection of their interests.

To this end the undersigned have been asked by some of the principal bondholders to act as a committee to represent the interests of all the bondholders who may unite with them for mutual protection.

The Committee is of opinion that the property covered by the mortgage securing your bonds is of value sufficient to protect the interests of those bondholders who actively cooperate to protect themselves and that a sacrifice on their part is unnecessary, but those who do not act for their own protection are likely to suffer.

Bondholders are therefore requested to correspond with the Committee at once, stating the amount of bonds held.

The members of the Committee have agreed to act without charge for their services and it is thought that the general expenses will be slight.

FOR TARIFF COMMISSION.

Committee of the Merchants' Association to be Appointed.

The Executive Committee of the Merchants' Association has authorized President William Fellowes Morgan to appoint a committee of five members on the passage of legislation by Congress creating a National Tariff Commission. The committee will co-operate with a special committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce, which has been appointed for the purpose, and with such other similar agencies as it may select. The question of having a permanent Tariff Commission was approved in a referendum taken by the National Chamber of Commerce by a vote of 715 for and 7 against.

It is proposed that the President shall appoint the members of this commission subject to confirmation by the Senate, and that the number of commissioners shall be limited, preferably to five, with terms of six years. The members are to be selected so that no party shall have more than one majority in the commission. The commission would have authority to ascertain facts and report them to the President and to Congress as a basis for any proposed new legislation.

THIS PORT'S GREAT LEAD.

It Is More Than Holding Its Own as a Shipping Centre.

The present and future prominence of the Port of New York is treated of in an article prepared by the Industrial Bureau of the Merchants' Association from statistics in the monthly reports of the Department of Commerce. The following facts are brought out:

Forty-eight per cent. of the trade of the entire country passes through the Port of New York.

In spite of the growth of other ports, this city has maintained and has increased its leadership as a shipping centre.

The city is now planning and preparing to handle its future rightful share of the trade of the country in an adequate manner.

A table is given showing that the total foreign trade at New York, in 1915, was $2,000,000,000, which represents a gain in a decade of $1,000,000,000.

"Many persons in New York," reads the article, "who have a general interest in the development of our port are overawed by figures indicating precentage gain at some distant port, which seems to indicate that that port is rapidly passing the Port of New York. They forget that a ratio of growth depends upon two factors, namely, the extent of the increase and the size of the starting point. The ports of Oregon and, in fact, many of those much nearer home which are claiming supremacy over New York on a ratio basis, should not be so compared with New York until the figures on which the ratios are based equal those of this port."

BIG B. & O. RAIL ORDER.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 10.—Contracts have been let by the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad for 62,500 tons of rails for immediate delivery. The rails are to be made by the Maryland Steel Company, Cambria Steel Company, Carnegie Steel Company, and the Illinois Steel Company.

Practically all of the rails will be used for replacement in the main lines. They are of the heaviest type.

Austrian Goods by Parcel Post.

The Merchants' Association has been informed by the State Department that goods of Austrian origin may be sent by parcel post to this country without interference by the British authorities. The Department states that it has no knowledge of the interference by any intervening country of parcel post mails from European countries to the United States or of parcel post mails from the United States for those countries.

which is paying regular dividends of 4%, and in addition in the last six months of its past financial year paid two extra quarterly dividends aggregating $6 per share. In view of the excellent results of this year's business, which shows a profit of over two million dollars, I feel that further large disbursements may be confidently looked for, and that the stock should sell at a correspondingly higher level. Moreover, should the tax on sugar be retained, as is being recommended by the Secretary of the Treasury, this company will be tremendously benefited.

Subject to Prior Sale, I offer a limited amount at the market.

OUTLOOK FOR RAILROAD STOCKS

While speculative mania in Wall Street has been concentrated on industrial issues, steam railroad stocks have been neglected. And yet, as a careful analysis shows, there are some great investment possibilities in this far safer field.

During the past two months we have continuously pointed out the attractiveness of such issues as New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Norfolk & Western, etc. We have now prepared a special analysis, reviewing the entire railroad situation. Send for a copy while the supply lasts.

12 NEW HAVEN MEN ON TRIAL THIS WEEK

Eleven Directors and ex-Directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad and Edward D. Robbins, general counsel, who were indicted on the charge of conspiring to monopolize the transportation traffic of New England, will be brought to trial on Wednesday before Judge Hunt in the Federal Court here. The trial is awaited with much interest because of the prominence of the defendants and the fact that, for the first time, Directors of a railroad will face the possibility of a prison term if found guilty. The extreme penalty is a fine of $5,000 and one year's imprisonment.

The defendants aside from Mr. Robbins are William Rockefeller, Lewis Cass Ledyard, George MacCulloch Miller, Charles F. Brooker, Charles M. Pratt, D. Newton Barney, Robert W. Taft, A. Heaton Robertson, James S. Hemingway, Henry K. McHarg, and Frederick F. Brewster.

Whether the defendants must appear in court during the entire proceeding will be one of the first points settled. It has been stated by Government counsel that, inasmuch as the charge is a misdemeanor and not a felony, the defendants could absent themselves under their bail bonds if counsel for both sides entered into an agreement, but that the inherent right to do so without the consent of the Government is a point which the court must decide. Just what attitude the Government would take in this matter was not disclosed, but it was intimated that counsel for the defendants would enter a stiff protest against forcing them to sit out the trial.

The defendants will be represented by a small army of attorneys, among them De Lancey Nicoll, John G. Milburn, Charles F. Choate, Richard V. Lindabury, Royal Victor, and John W. H. Grim. The Government's case will be handled by Frank M. Swacker, special assistant to the Attorney General; James W. Osborne, a special assistant, and other counsel. It is understood that the proceedings were taken at the direct instigation of President Wilson, and represent the efforts of the Administration to carry to an issue in the courts the question of the personal guilt of the Directors of an alleged monopolistic corporation.

The indictments were procured chiefly on the testimony of Charles S. Mellen, ex-President of the railroad, who probably will be called as the star witness for the Government. Originally there were twenty-one defendants. Of these George F. Baker, T. De Witt Cuyler, Theodore N. Vail, Francis T. Maxwell, Edward Mulligan, and Alexander Cochrane were permitted to have separate trials on the ground that they were not Directors when certain acts charged in the indictments were committed. Immunity was granted to James Elton, John Billard, and William Skinner on the ground that they had testified at previous New Haven hearings.

It is expected that much of the testimony will be a repetition of matters brought out at the investigation of the New Haven by the Interstate Commerce Commission, but new developments of an important character are hinted at. It is understood that the Government prosecutors, after months of study of the case, have developed much matter which was barely touched upon at former investigations. The Government has subpoenaed 100 witnesses, and the trial may drag out over three months or more.

SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION.

SAVE AND BE SAFE
For your savings the great consideration should be Safety First. The old reliable Franklin Society for Home Building and Savings operates under New York's revised Banking Law which provides the strictest known system of supervision. Thirty thousands have found the Society a help and a blessing during more than a quarter of a century. On sums of $10 or over (up to $5,000) the Society has always paid dividends as large, and usually larger, than are paid by the best savings banks. The usual rate has been 4½% per annum. Payments made before Nov. 1st earn from that date.

On October 2, 1915, a libel of information was filed in the above-named Court on behalf of the United States against seven hundred cases of Tuna Fish upon a seizure thereof, setting forth the said seizure, and praying the condemnation and forfeiture of the property seized to the use of the United States for violation of Food and Drugs Act, June 30, 1906, of the United States.
Pursuant to the monition of said Court therein, I hereby notify all persons claiming said goods, wares, and merchandise, or interested therein, to appear before said Court in the General Post Office Building, on October 25, 1915, at 10:30 o'clock A. M., (provided the same shall be a day of jurisdiction, otherwise the next day of jurisdiction thereafter,) at which time and place the process will be returnable, and the trial had, and to interpose their claims and allegations, or they will be defaulted and said property condemned.
THOMAS D. McCARTHY,
October 2, 1915. United States Marshal.
H. SNOWDEN MARSHALL, U.S. Attorney.

Gertrude Cutter, deceased, and persons named as executors, testamentary trustees, guardians, legatees, devisees and beneficiaries in other papers purporting to be wills of said deceased filed in the Surrogates' Office, Send Greeting:

Whereas, Messmore Kendall has lately applied to the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York, to have a certain instrument in writing dated March 11th, 1914, relating to both real and personal property, duly proved to be the last Will and Testament of A. Gertrude Cutter, who was at the time of her death a resident of the County of New York, deceased.

Therefore, you and each of you are cited to show cause before the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York, at the Hall of Records in the County of New York, on the 25th day of October, one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, at half past 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, why the said Will and Testament should not be admitted to probate as a will of real and personal property.

In Testimony Whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed.

Witness, Hon. Robert Ludlow Fowler, a Surrogate of our said County of New York, at said County, the 13th day of September in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fifteen.

GIVE FREELY TO POPE, FARLEY ASKS CHURCH

Cardinal Farley has designated Sunday, Oct. 24, as the day when the Peter's Pence shall be taken up, and has issued an appeal for special generosity from the Catholics of the archdiocese.

"Never before," says the Cardinal in a letter, "in the history of the diocese has an appeal been issued in aid of the Sovereign Pontiff with such urging and compelling reasons for a larger generosity and greater effort on our part to meet the serious and grave needs of the Holy See. Were we simply to offer to the Holy Father on this occasion the amount of our usual contribution we, indeed, would be lacking in filial duty, sincere loyalty, and true devotion to the Vicar of Christ.

"The Pontificate of Benedict XV. has fallen upon most trying times, as all know. Never in the history of Christendom has such a shedding of blood deluged the world. Needless to say, whatever affliction strikes mankind brings a poignant grief to the heart of the Vicar of Jesus Christ. The claims upon his charity and bounty are greater than at any other period in the history of the Papacy, and the resources at his command to meet the desires of his tenderly paternal heart are less than the means any other Pontiff has had in centuries. The scourge of war has come upon almost every nation of Europe, and has so impoverished the most opulent that they are suppliants for the barest necessaries of life. Those people who were most generous in their offerings to the Holy Father in the past are utterly without means today, while the gigantic war now being waged continues to consume their strength and devour their sons."

To further the realization of a sum "commensurate with the pressing need of the Holy See" the Cardinal directs in his letter that the appeal of the clergy to their people be made in the form of a general envelope collection.

Concerning the Pope's efforts for peace and the mitigation of suffering while the war lasts the Cardinal says:

"Today the voice of the Sovereign Pontiff is again raised and heeded above the dreadful din and storm of an unheard of war. His prayers for peace have risen from the lips of millions of his children, and not without avail. In the face of what looked like a forlorn hope he has effected what no other power on earth has been able to effect. By his appeal to all the warring heads of nations, from the Czar of Russia to the Sultan of Turkey, he has brought back to the bosom of their families 150,000 exchanged prisoners, and thus assuaged the untold suffering of sorely embittered lives with the peace and the consolation of God. Furthermore, he has brought about the betterment of conditions in detention camps of thousands of prisoners of opposing nations. And who but the Vicar of Christ could have accomplished all this? Nor are we without hope that when the quiet times of peace return to Europe it will be largely due to the prayers and the persevering efforts of our beloved Holy Father, Benedict XV."

Cardinal Farley added that the Pope, "mindful of the millions who are hurriedly sent to their last account from the horrid fields of war," had granted to all Catholic clergy "the privilege of celebrating three requiem masses on the solemnity of All Souls' Day."

The World's Greatest Newspaper

had the unique advantage—in addition to its full quota of war correspondents and photographers—of sending Mr. Robert R. McCormick, President of The Tribune Company, to the Russian front. Mr. McCormick went to Russia, not as an ordinary war correspondent, but, in the language of M. Sazonoff, Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs, "as a distinguished foreigner, personally known to the Grand Duke." In his cable to The Chicago Tribune, extending his unique invitation, M. Sazonoff said:

> "The Grand Duke consents, as a unique exception, to admit Mr. McCormick on the field of active fighting. He must arrive, not as a war correspondent, but as a distinguished foreigner, personally known to the Grand Duke. This will give him an exceptionally prominent position, which is refused to others."

Our Credentials

The Chicago Tribune was established in 1847 by the ancestors of those who now own and control it. It has a circulation greater than any other morning and Sunday newspaper west of New York City. It prints more advertising than any other metropolitan newspaper in the world.

You can see them here today. The Chicago Tribune's special war photographer has brought the Russian trenches to 44th and Broadway. He has brought them here so you can stand exactly where he stood and with the Russian soldiers face the hail of Austro-German shot and shell. He has brought the fearless Cossacks, fiery as the steeds they ride, so you can see their wild, relentless charge across the fields.

He has brought a Russian warship—the only motion pictures ever taken of a fighting ship IN ACTION, IN ACTUAL WAR—so you can stand upon its deck and see its guns discharge their shrieking shells at the Turkish villages on the Bosporus coast—and a moment later see those shells explode with awful havoc in the Turk intrenchments. He has brought the Czar, himself, so you can see him face to face, with the Grand Duke Nicholas and his generals, at the front.

You thousands upon thousands who in the last three weeks have seen The Chicago Tribune's wonderful Motion Pictures of the German Battlefields can now step across the trenches and see the fighters on the other side. You can compare these two great war machines. In the German war machine you saw what all the world acknowledges as the greatest fighting force of all the ages—now you can see the guns and officers and men who have made possible the most masterly and successful retreat, in the face of heavy odds, that military history has known. No matter whether your sympathies are Pro-German or Pro-Allies, YOU OUGHT TO SEE THESE PICTURES.

The Chicago Tribune's photographer took the only motion pictures that ever have been taken inside the Russian lines. There are no other such pictures in existence. He has brought the Russian battlefields to Broadway. They will be here ONE WEEK ONLY.
